NDP Ahead in B.C. Poll

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The NDP is a solid eight point leader over the Socreds with 44 per cent of the decided voters, according to a province-wide poll conducted in December by Canadian Opinion Research.

The poll — commissioned by the provincial Conservative party — shows the Socreds trailing with 36 per cent, the Tories with 15 per cent and the Liberals in last place with five per cent.

A surprisingly high 67 per cent of the voters told the pollsters their minds were made up.

The results indicate marked increases in popularity for both the NDP and the Tories, while the Socreds and Liberals have fallen from voter favor.

Barrett refused to discuss the results of the poll saying he never comments on political polls.

In the December, 1975 general election, the Socreds won 49 per cent of the popular vote while picking up 35 seats, the NDP received 39 per cent for 18 seats, the Liberals gained seven per cent and the Tories under four for one seat each.

The Tory party has almost quadrupled its popularity since the election giving rise to hopes by Tory leader Vic Stephens that the party is on its way back in B.C. provincial politics.

In releasing the results of the poll, Stephens today told a press conference the poll shows the Conservatives don't take votes away from Social Credit as is popular belief, but gained its strength from the NDP.

Stephens said the poll proves that if Premier Bill Bennett goes for an early election, he's going to lose.

"There's a great disenchantment in the land at this moment," he said.

And the Tory leader feels the people of B.C. are growing weary of voting against one of the two major parties out of fear.

He said there's no doubt Bennett will rely heavily on the NDP resurgence to try to scare voters into voting Social Credit but Stephens says he will meet that fear campaign head on and feels voters are ready to do the same.

The poll surveyed the public's reasons for their voting preferences and what factors might cause them to change.

Based on that response Stephens said there is no possibility of Social

Tory Lead Slipping In Gallup Charts

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Liberals breathed a collective sigh of relief today after the latest Gallup poll showed the Progressive Conservatives' lead over the governing party is slipping.

The latest public opinion poll shows that among decided voters, support for the Conservatives dropped to 40 per cent from 45 per cent the previous month.

Liberal support increased to 38 per cent from 35 per cent and New Democratic Party support remained at 18 per cent. Four per cent of the decided electorate supported other parties and 33 per cent were undecided.

"We are pleased but not complacent," Senator Alastair Graham, Liberal party president, said in a telephone interview from Halifax.

Walter Baker, Conservative House leader, said he was not surprised at the results.

Baker (Grenville-Carleton) said Conservative Leader Joe Clark and he had predicted "there would be a coming together of the major parties."

"It would be healthy for the party (Conservatives) if we do not maintain the lead so we are not lulled by a false sense of security."

"It's good news for us," said Robert Kaplan (L—York Centre).

Kaplan said voters are realizing that "changing the government is not the solution" to their problems.

He said Canadians are rejecting Clark because of his stand on the Crown corporation Petro-Canada and his promise to negotiate sovereignty-association with the Quebec government.

Interviews for the poll took place Dec. 1 to 4, just after the three-day federal-provincial economic conference in Ottawa. At the conference, Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers were unable to make progress toward an industrial strategy.

Romania-Soviet Rift on Cambodia

Times News Services

Romania broke ranks with the Soviet bloc today to denounce the Soviet-supported Cambodian takeover as a menace to world peace.

The official Romanian Communist Party newspaper Scinteia said the insurgent move is "a heavy blow for the prestige of socialism" and a threat to East-West detente.

"No reasons and arguments whatsoever can justify intervention and interference in the affairs of another state, whatever their form, especially when two socialist countries are involved," the newspaper said in an article quoted by the official Agerpress news agency.

The Romanian statement was issued one day after the Soviet Union and other Eastern European governments recognized the new government in Phnom Penh.

Romania's break with Kremlin policy was the second in six weeks.

Late in November, President Nicolae Ceausescu told of major differences between his country and its Warsaw pact allies over military spending and defence co-ordination.

Meanwhile, in New York former Cambodian chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, seeking U.N. condemnation of Vietnam's "naked aggression" against his country, conferred for more than an hour today with Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

According to reports received in Bangkok, officials of Cambodia's ousted Khmer Rouge regime today claimed they are fighting "house to house" against Vietnamese invaders that have swept over the country.

The report came from Thai foreign ministry officials who said they met today with three Khmer Rouge officials in the Cambodian border town of Poipet and were handed a letter from a senior Cambodian communist.

The Thai officials told UPI correspondent Paul Wedel the letter was from former foreign minister Ieng Sary, the No 2 man in the Khmer Rouge regime.

Contents of the letter were not disclosed, but there was speculation it might contain a request for political asylum.

Ieng Sary and other Khmer Rouge leaders are thought to have escaped Phnom Penh and headed north along Highway 5 on the western side of the Tonle Sap lake hours before the capital fell Monday.

The whereabouts of ousted Premiere Pol Pot are not known.

Intelligence sources said the Vietnamese had slowed their advance into the northern part of the country, apparently to close up communications and supply lines.

WOMAN KILLED

Glenella Hardy, of 347-2251 Cadboro Bay Road, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday night.

Mrs. Hardy was struck by a car shortly before 4 p.m. Saturday as she walked across the road in front of her apartment.

The driver of the car was Lorraine Alice Ayers, 49, of 3940 Smuggler's Cove Road.

Cancer Element In Beer?

HAMBURG (AP) — Concern over the presence of a suspected cancer-causing agent in beer is spreading in West Germany, the self-proclaimed beer capital of the world.

The weekly magazine Stern reported here Tuesday that a West German study of 158 domestic and foreign beers found the agents — known as nitrosamines — in 111 brands.

Nitrosamines have caused cancer in animals when given in huge doses, but scientists do not agree on whether there is a danger to humans.

The U.S. Brewers Association said last September that initial studies showed some American beers contained tiny traces of nitrosamines — two or three parts per billion. Further tests are being conducted.

But the West German study found concentrations up to 68 parts per billion, Stern said, with heaviest doses in dark and strong beers.

"In view of the high consumption of beer (in Germany) even the smallest concentrations of nitrosamines are to be taken seriously," said the director of the study, Prof. Rudolf Preussmann of the Cancer Research Centre in Heidelberg.

The average West German drank 38.7 gallons of beer a year in 1977, the latest year for which figures are available.

The German Brewers Association said the study showed the most popular types of beer were practically free of nitrosamines.

We're Too Individual: Clark

TOKYO (CP) — Canadians are too individually oriented to learn to work for their common good as well as the Japanese, Opposition Leader Joe Clark said today.

"We simply have a different culture, we're far more individually oriented," he told an impromptu news conference in a Tokyo subway station after a sweaty five-minute ride with hundreds of Japanese commuters and an entourage of embassy officials, reporters and cameramen. (See Fotheringham on page 3).

Looking back on a four-day visit here before leaving on a 14-hour flight to New Delhi, Clark said he is impressed "by the way Japan operates as an integrated community."

However, he said that he believes it is probably impossible to transfer to Canada the kind of national unity found in Japan.

China Agrees To $1B Wheat Deal

PEKING (Reuter) — China has agreed to negotiate a long-term wheat-purchase agreement with Canada which should amount to at least $1 billion during a three-year period, Trade Minister Jack Horner said today.

Horner told a news conference in Peking the Chinese said they intend at least to maintain and perhaps increase purchases of Canadian wheat in the future.

The managing director of the China National Cereals, Oil and Foodstuffs Corp. will lead a mission to Canada in late February to negotiate a long-term contract with the Canadian wheat board, the minister said.

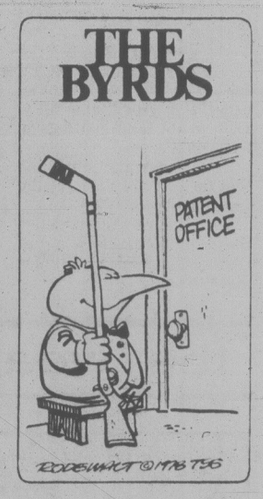
He said the Chinese also have expressed concern over Canadian transportation facilities, and the mission will begin its tour with a visit to the Vancouver port facilities. It is expected to arrive about Feb. 22, although the final date has not been fixed.

Horner said that China has purchased an average of 2.4 million tons of wheat annually from Canada during the last 10 years. Purchases in 1977-78 amounted to 3.5 million tons, while China has so far contracted to buy three million tons in the period from September 1978 to August 1979.

The minister said no specific duration has been agreed on for the proposed agreement, but the Chinese "may well be interested in a longer period than three years."

On pricing, Horner said the Chinese have clearly stated they have no complaints with the prices set by the Canadian wheat board and this is not expected to be a problem. In the past, he said, the Chinese have paid 25 per cent down on delivery and have completed payment in 18 months.

The minister, accompanied by Canadian businessmen, arrived in Peking last Sunday. He will leave for Canton Thursday and then go to Hong Kong.



Shovel Quote Cited

Cartoonist Bob Bierman was reminded of his life in Nazi-occupied Holland by a comment of Bill Vander Zalm when he was appointed human resources minister in 1975, B.C. Supreme Court was told Tuesday.

Bierman, freelance cartoonist for the Victoria Times, was testifying on the second day of a libel action brought by Vander Zalm against Times Publishers, a division of FP Publications (Western) Ltd., then-publisher Stuart Underhill, editor Barbara McLintock and Bierman over a June 22 cartoon.

The comment was to the effect that able-bodied welfare recipients should pick up a shovel and work for their income.

Bierman was being asked what actions and comments by Vander Zalm were in his mind as he prepared the cartoon in issue. One of them, he said, was the shovel statement.

"It scared me, to a certain extent. It recalled the time in my life when that sort of statement was being made in my home country during the German occupation and forced labor and the Nazi times," he said.

Of the cartoon in issue, showing Vander Zalm pulling wings off flies, Bierman said he tried to say in his cartoon that the minister had a cruel attitude towards underprivileged people cared for by his ministry, especially Indians.

The flies, he said, depicted the helpless Indians that in the minister's words were being attracted to the big lights of the city. The minister was depicted as clipping their wings so they couldn't roam around any more and be attracted to the bright lights.

What prompted the cartoon, he said, was a comment by Vander Zalm to the effect that Indians would have better opportunities if they returned to their reserves.

He referred to a number of other statements attributed to Vander Zalm and said it was his over-all impression that the minister's statements were thoughtless, not well thought out.

One of them, he said, was to the effect that women

3 Teenagers Held in Robbery

Two juvenile girls and a 15-year-old boy are in custody after an elderly storeowner was attacked with a knife and robbed of about $200 Tuesday night.

The girls, aged 15 and 16, and the boy are to appear in Family Court charged with armed robbery.

Victoria police said Matthews was closing his shop about 9:30 p.m. when two girls walked in.

One bought a candy bar and as Matthews was putting away the money the other girl came behind the counter, pulled a knife and demanded the money in the till.

As Matthews struggled with the girl — at one point she bit him on the right wrist — the other girl snatched a handful of bills from the cash tray.

Matthews said at the same time he saw a boy trying unsuccessfully to open another cash register at the rear of the store.

Constable Brian Tugwell, who was on foot patrol in the area, spotted the girls running along Yates and ducking into Maynard Court.

Although unaware there had been a robbery, he radioed other officers in the area to look out for the girls since they were acting suspiciously.

Two officers a block away on Johnson saw the girls run out of an alley and were questioning them when the report of the robbery came through.

The boy was found in a nearby restaurant.

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The post office has cut back on its service for redirecting wrongly-addressed mail.

No longer will post office employees use telephone directories, city directories or other sources to put the correct address on much of the mis-directed first-class items mailed in Canada.

The directory services will only be used for mail of international origin; first-class items of value; and special service items — registered and certified mail, COD's, Post Pak, telepost and special delivery — and first, second, and third-class domestic parcels containing items of value.

All other wrongly-addressed mail will be returned to sender or, in cases where there is no return address, left in the post office where it arrived.

Victoria post office spokesman Buzz Sawyer says the service is being trimmed for cost-cutting reasons.

He said last year there were 25.5 million pieces of mail that couldn't be delivered.

Using all available sources, post office staff were only able to redirect nine million pieces.

The cost for providing the service with a 38-per-cent success rate was $2.8 million.

"It's just one of those lost causes," said Sawyer.

He said every imaginable item finds its way to the post office's directory service section, including truck axles, wallets, hotel keys, social security cards, money and cheques.

He said the problem is people move around a great deal and those trying to correspond with them don't keep up with their change of address.

Sawyer said the only way to ensure your letter doesn't end up in the dead-end section of the post office is to make sure you keep all your correspondents advised of your current address.

Shah's Foes Keep Pounding

TEHRAN (UPI) — Iran's five-day-old civilian government today reeled under the combined blow of defection by its key military supporter and continuing sharp attacks from the opposition demanding that the shah leave.

But the country remained relatively quiet for the second straight day as demonstrators stayed indoors and heavy snow covered the streets that were the scene of numerous bonfires last week.

Thousands of Iranian oil workers who had been striking against the government returned to work at five major refineries at the urging of opposition leaders, industry sources said.

"The workers are back on their jobs," said an official of the National Iranian Oil Company. "Production is picking up."

There was no immediate reaction to the U.S. State Department statement Tuesday that the United States believed Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar's government would have a better chance of survival if the shah left Iran.

The National Front Opposition, which denounced Bakhtiar and expelled him from its membership, has mounted a campaign to bring down his government.

Front leader Karim Sanjabi said Tuesday, "The shah may have heard the voice of the revolution and has now got a new plot."

The Front attack reflected the radical position taken by the shah's archenemy, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, which denounced Bakhtiar's government last week as "a dangerous plot by the treacherous shah" and "a last brick thrown by the regime against the people."

Bakhtiar, however, battled to retain his position. He announced that several top officials, in jail on charges of corruption and abuse of power, might be executed after trial. This reflected an opposition demand.

Baktiar, in an interview published today, promised to "revise all future military contracts and cancel those completely contrary to its (Iran's) interests."

The shah Tuesday night appointed Lt. Gen. Abdol Ali Badrei commander of the armed forces, replacing hard-line Gen. Gholam Ali Oveisi, who fled the country last week to escape trial on a charge of channelling $17 million into a foreign bank account. Gen. Badrei was described by military sources as a staunch supporter of the monarchy and reputed to be of the same "school of thought" as Gen. Abbas Qarabghi, who was appointed chief of staff.

Diplomatic sources noted it was the first time in many years that so many Iranian generals had been reshuffled. They predicted wide-ranging changes in the military establishment "to fashion the overarmed, overpaid and overenthusiastic military to the needs of a civilian government desperate to restore calm and prevent further civil strife."

PER CAPITA DEBT UP $600, SAYS NDP

NDP finance critic Dave Stupich said today the Socred government has increased the per capita debt in B.C. in two years by more than $600 for every man, woman and child in the province.

The per capita debt now stands at more than $2,500, Stupich said, in claiming that the Socred government has failed live up to its promised pay-as-you-go philosophy.

Stupich said B.C.'s contingent liability — the indirect debts which the government guarantees — increased $1.7 billion in the first two full years the Socreds were in power.

According to provincial public accounts released last week, the contingent liability stands at $6.2 billion compared to $4.5 billion at the end of March, 1976, shortly after the Socreds took power.

The Socreds pride themselves on their ability to pay, but actually they are sinking the province even deeper into debt, the former finance minister said.

Stupich says he doesn't necessarily disagree with the policy but says the Socreds aren't being honest about it.

"They're borrowing money as they need it to keep certain things going. In fact, they're not helping the economy as much as we did."

The cost of debt servicing is rising constantly, and that cost must be picked up by the taxpayer and utility user.

For example, B.C. Hydro is almost $5 billion in debt. Hydro users have to pay for that through higher utility rates.

Stupich pointed out in the four years from March, 1972 to March, 1976 — mainly under the NDP — the contingent liability increased $1.8 billion, about the same increase the Socreds managed in just two years.

CITIES CAN SUE

VANCOUVER (CP) — In the first decision of its kind in Canada, the British Columbia Appeal Court has ruled that municipalities have the right to sue for damages in libel actions.

Mr. Justice J. A. Aikins, in rejecting an appeal by British Columbia Television (BCTV), said Tuesday that there are no Canadian cases in point.

The city of Prince George is attempting to sue BCTV for libel as the result of news reports in April and May, 1977, about land dealings in Prince George.

BCTV appealed, arguing that the city did not have the right to sue for libel.

Mr. Justice Aikins ruled that a municipality is a corporation and has a statutory right to sue.

U.K. Trains Halt

Engineers demanding a 10-per-cent—$14-a-week—increase in wages brought all but a handful of services to a halt in Britain's southern region, the major commuter route to London.

A national rail strike next week appeared likely after the breakdown of pay negotiations and there was the threat that 175,000 truck drivers would start a strike Thursday.

Prime Minister James Callaghan flew home from a six-day Caribbean trip to deal with the industrial disorder. The Conservative Opposition said his first action should be to declare a state of emergency.

About 50,000 truck drivers have been on an unofficial strike since last week, curbing supplies to stores, factories and farms.

After unsuccessful pay talks with employers Tuesday, Moss Evans, the engineers' union leader, said he expects the giant Transport and General Workers' Union to declare the strike official.

PHARMACY HIT AGAIN

For the fifth time in a little over a year the Sidney Pharmacy, 2416 Beacon was broken into overnight.

As on previous occasions the narcotics drawer was rifled and about $700 worth of drugs taken.

Ironically an RCMP officer had parked his car directly across the street and was on foot patrol checking store doors to the end of Beacon when the thieves made their move, kicking in a rear door.

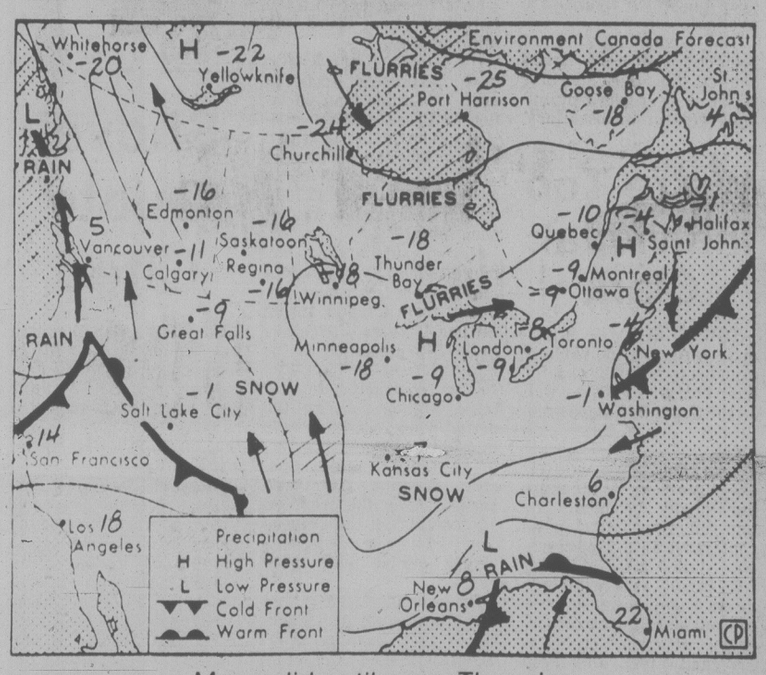

Map valid until noon Thursday

After weeks of relative calm, the south coast of B.C. was struck overnight by freezing rain, ice pellets, snow and the odd thundershower. As this disturbance moved northeastwards it spread snow to the southern interior and to the north coast. Drier air will follow in the wake of the unsettled weather but another vigorous disturbance may reach the province late Thursday. The warming trend along the coast will limit any snowfall connected with the next disturbance mainly to the interior.

Jet-Lag Jargon Jinxing Joe. . .

Conservative Party fears that the Opposition leader may come up with an equivalent to Robert Stanfield's famous fumbled football in the 1974 campaign have been raised with some press reports that Clark is bumbling his way through Japan, the first stop on his four-country trip.

Clark's demise, as Mr. Twain would say, has been greatly exaggerated. But as he winds up his three-day Tokyo stay it's clear he's going to have to gain greater control of his lip if he eager press contingent with him is not to turn the trip into a quotes-of-the year collection.

How else to contain the bewilderment when Clark emerges from a 30-minute session with Prime Minister Ohira to complain that "the conversation slows with translators"? He said it was something "I guess I am going to have to become accustomed to."

How the Opposition leader could set out on a world trip and then be surprised by the necessity for translators in dealing with foreign politicians is a trifle hard to understand.

If his aides did not, reporters shuddered.

When he was introduced to the prime minister, Clark nervously said, "I appreciate your ability to meet me." When reporters pressed him for a comment on the Cambodian situation, Clark declined, explaing that "I wouldn't want to be wrongly nuanced."

While Clark's stiff, formalized style undoubtedly has not disconcerted the very formalized Japanes, his samples of jet-lag jargon might be surprising in someone who has taken to Hawaii for a week's holiday— before setting out—exactly to ensure that he is well-rested and relaxed.

One of the problems is Clark's own playful fondness for an arch type of humor aimed at the press and designed to demonstrate he is one of the boys. Transmitted back to Canada via a merciless 30-second radio clip, it comes across as pompous utterance rather than deadpan humor.

A second problem is that idle hands make mischief. This is essentially a public relations exercise with more "photo opportunities" than news (Clark was driven by car through Tokyo so he could have a brief scheduled walk in the park so TV cameras could get footage). With nothing to cover, with a powerless Opposition leader paying courtesy calls on Japanese leaders in closed meetings, reporters have only one thing to concentrate on—a search for the next Clark gaffe.

The lack of experience in the Clark entourage will be put to its greatest test on Clark's departure today. His office has somehow made travel arrangements via Egypt Air that go via Manila before a schedule one-hour transfer in Bangkok on the way to New Delhi, a journey that will take 14 hours. When asked who booked the flight, some astute Japanese observers offer that it could only be Trudeau.

A third problem for Clark in Japan has come from a surprising source—Canada's diplomatic service. This is in the form of Canadian ambassador Bruce Rankin, a large rawboned man who is a cross between John Wayne and Jack Horner.

Rankin was born in Brandon, Man., raised in Saskatchewan, summers in Connecticut. He is independently wealthy with his business investments, is on the short list to head Petrocan and, as probably the bluntest man in the employ of external affairs, is a reporter's delight.

The problem is that Rankin made the headlines before Clark could, thundering during a press briefing that Canadians are "the most parochial, negative, balkanized" people in the world (as opposed to the cohesive Japanese)—a perfectly harmless point made very often by Trudeau himself. Rankin has received a rocket from Ottawa for his remarks and the subsequent fun (Rankin himself doesn't give a fig) has made a new star of the show.

Clark is somewhat a victim of his host's kindness. Rankin and his staff have pulled out all stops, with receptions or dinners for the Canadian visitors three nights in succession. It's been a remarkable demonstration of non-partisan support for a Tory who may be Rankin's next boss.

Rankin courteously shepherds Clark everywhere in Tokyo, with the results that the towering Rankin personality dominates, as when he stands at the back of the room, his hand making slashing motions across his throat and advising the young Clark that he had better cut things short "since I've got 100 voters from Rocky Mountain in the next room" waiting for a drink.

The ambassador who has the blunt charm of an Ian Sinclair, the Canadian Pacific chairman, at 61 is three years past the time when he could retire and he enjoys his freedom. Under Trudeau's guidelines for conflict-of-interst among senior bureaucrats, Rankin was faced with the problem of his own substantial private investments.

He travelled to Ottawa, confronted the ranking civil servant in charge of administering the guidelines and told him he was "the stupidest man I had ever met."

Rankin advised that he was transferring all his holdings into his wife's name and, if the bureaucrat thought it was improper for him to advise her how to manage the investments, "I told him one simple fact. The prime minister himself, Mr. Trudeau, says the state has no business in the bedrooms of the nation."

LEFTIST REVENGE FIREBOMB

Several thousand leftist students also marched through central Rome to protest the radio station attack that came during a live broadcast.

During the march leftists in a northwestern suburb firebombed an office of the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement Party causing minor damage in the second straight day of political violence in Italy.

Near the southern city of Naples, police said a time bomb damaged a power line carrying electricity to an Alfa Romeo automobile factory.

Bell Contract Revealed

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada and its employees working on a $1.1-billion telephone contract in Saudi Arabia are required to abide "by all regulations, traditions, customs and generally accepted practices followed in the Kingdom," according to the contract signed between Bell and Saudi Arabia.

The contract, considered top secret by Bell and the Canadian government, was made public Tuesday by the Consumers Association of Canada. It obtained a copy of the pact from the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington.

The consumers group wanted the contract made public last summer when Bell applied for telephone rate increases. The group wanted full details to back up its case that Bell didn't require the total increase it sought.

Various human rights groups, suspecting that the contract discriminated against women and Jews, also unsuccessfully asked it be made public.

Bell argued that Saudi Arabia wanted exact terms of the contract kept confidential. It also said revealing its details would benefit international competitors and cause great damage to Bell.

The consumers group said Tuesday that making the document public will cause Bell no economic harm, since certain cost statistics and other financial information had been deleted.

While the contract does not specifically discriminate against women or Jews, it does contain clauses which could facilitate discrimination against any group as well as arbitrary dismissal of an individual, the group added.

In addition to clauses binding Bell employees to accept Saudi traditions, customs and practices, it says Bell must dismiss any employee the Saudi government requests with no discussion.

Bell also is called upon to publish an ad in a major Canadian newspaper containing details of the telephone project "together with an attractive short account of the accomplishments achieved by the government of the Kingdom on its pursuit of development and progress."

Jumbo Crisis In Tokyo

NARITA (Reuter) — Four Boeing 747 jumbo jets belonging to different airlines made emergency landings at Tokyo's new international airport today after developing various kinds of mechanical trouble.

Company spokesmen said a total of 349 passengers and crew were aboard the jumbos, operated by British Airways, Northwest Orient Airlines, Japan Airlines (JAL) and Korean Airline (KAL).

There were no reports of injuries.

SPECIAL SAUCE. . .

TEL AVIV (UPI) — McDonald's, the Goliath of the fast food industry, took on MacDavids today, contending the small Israeli firm is misleading its customers.

"MacDavids and McDonald's are two different things," said David Magen after the first session of a court hearing. He is the proprietor of MacDavids, a small, fast hamburger restaurant located just off Tel Aviv's Dizengoff street.

Diners sit on stools at MacDavids hamburger joint and munch on a wide range of American-style delicacies including roast beef sandwiches, French fries, milk shakes and even a double cheeseburger smothered in sauce listed on the menu as a "Big Mac."

"I told them that I'm willing to concede on the use of the name Big Mac," Magen said in a telephone interview. "We agreed to drop that. But I don't think there's any similarity between our symbol and that of McDonalds Golden Arches." "And the name? The David comes from my first name and the Mac means son of in Scottish," Magen explained. "I make the hamburgers so they're my creations — hence MacDavids. Again, I don't think there's any similarity here."

But McDonald's apparently thinks otherwise and hired five top Israeli patent lawyers to plead its case.

Judge Hannah Even-Or heard the claims of both sides in the pre-trial hearing and was expected to announce her decision Thursday.

THIS IS ABSOLUTELY THE COLDEST EVER

OTANIEMI, Finland (Reuter) — Scientists in a Finnish laboratory said they recorded the world's lowest temperature—only 30 billionths of a degree above the absolute zero of minus 273.16 degrees Celsius.

The third law of thermodynamics says that absolute zero can never be reached. But the scientists at the low temperature laboratory here said they reached 0.00000003 K.

The feat was achieved underground in a Cryostat—a container used in low temperature experiments.

Sidney Island

It will be a senseless loss if some way can't be found to preserve Sidney Island, its unique features, rare plants and profusion of wildlife, as a park for the citizens of the Victoria area. We will all be the losers if, instead, it goes the too familiar route of much of the Gulf Islands — subdivision into "hobby farms" and recreational estates with names like Sunshine Valley and Enchanted Lakes.

Six miles long, the island sits in Haro Strait about three miles off the north end of the Saanich peninsula. The beaches which ring its shores are easily accessible by boat. Jack Todd, who with his family has farmed the island for decades, has welcomed visitors and built a network of trails through his property. They have kept the island in its natural state as much as possible and encouraged the proliferation of wildlife. It is not unusual to flush small herds of the island's deer while walking its trails.

Naturally, Todd wants to see the island and its interesting features kept together as a single entity, as a provincial park. He says he had a deal with the provincial government, that he appeared before the cabinet late last year to explain it, that the cabinet had "given it second reading," but suddenly everything was off.

The new provincial secretary, Hugh Curtis, said that the sale price of $3.7 million was too high, but Todd maintains that he was willing to negotiate, his "terms were made easy." The island could have been bought by the government and paid for over a number of years, for example.

Even at that price, the island is hardly extravagantly overpriced. Is $1,850 an acre too much to pay for such a gem? And what is $3.7 million but a little more than three months' provincial lottery profits, government "mad money" free and clear of encumbrances?

The government some years ago obtained the mile-long sandy spit at the north end of the island and made it a marine provincial park, but if it does not act now that it has the chance to add the remaining 2,000 acres — the larger and more varied part of the island — the opportunity will not come again.

Are we oversupplied with parks on Vancouver Island? Do we have so much access to the unique habitat of the Gulf Islands that we can easily turn down the chance to make a new park there? The answers to both questions must be a definite no.

Undeniably, public parks are few and far between on both coasts of Vancouver Island. A provincial parks official once estimated that in the 300 miles between Victoria and and the northern tip of the Island at Cape Scott barely nine miles of coastline was park. That has changed — a little — in recent years, although Private Property and No Trespassing signs are still commoner than driftwood logs. The problem is worst near the large centres of population on the Island. Victoria, the capital of British Columbia, is probably the region of the province worst served with provincial parks.

In the Gulf of Georgia where Sidney Island is located, there are a few parks but miles and miles of beautiful coastline less than two hours from the city have been alienated from public use. One example: two-thirds of 20-mile long Galiano Island is a closed tree farm operated by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., unavailable to hikers and swimmers and birdwatchers except if they trespass.

Of course, people still head out to the islands. The lack of public facilities means only that they trespass on private property, light fires that sometimes get out of control, break down fences, and irritate the farmers and residents who live there and can't afford to be chasing and cleaning up after unwanted visitors. Without the controls and restraints imposed by the staff of the provincial parks branch, the situation is sometimes chaotic. Even in the few small parks there are, conditions in the summer months are crowded.

Sidney Island is hardly a luxury we can easily do without; rather, it should be considered a necessity of life for the quarter of a million urban dwellers around Victoria. The price tag on that kind of oasis and breathing space should not be dismissed too quickly as excessively expensive.

Bill Scott

Bill Scott was one of the last of Victoria's genuine eccentrics, someone who made this a colorful and interesting city. They are dying out now and no one seems to be coming up behind them. More's the pity.

Like Scott, they came from the more exotic reaches of the British empire. And as the sun slowly set on that far-flung archipelago after the war, they washed up on our shores and made our usually dull civic affairs a bit brighter.

Bill Scott's role was Diogenes, always looking for an honest man. Did he ever find one among the dozens of politicians he bearded? Let's say he's probably still looking, wherever he is now.

Out of Step

This belatedly refers to the Times editorial of Dec. 15 (Encouraging First Signs) concerning children in need. The proposals make sense and have far reaching implications for social change.

The child that hates the first two people in his life for whatever reason is not likely to adjust to a traditional family unit. But if he is not helped, his hatred will spread to society at large and one day he will occupy one of those five new jails we recently read about.

What a waste of human potential! Will crime prevention never have meaning to governments, or to the electorate that puts them in power?

The provincial government white paper, a draft of proposed legislation for the family and child services, is a case in point. It takes little cognizance of the fact that society has undergone drastic change in recent decades. We might well deplore the breakdown in social institutions that in the past supported and strengthened the family unit. But that is where we are and it is to the question of providing substitute supports that we must address ourselves.

What use is it to punish a frustrated teenager, who neglects the child that she brought into the world, or the woman whose husband has left her, or vice versa, to provide both the emotional and physical needs for the child? Mothers are working. For most it is not a matter of choice. Where are the daycare centres? The handout of a welfare cheque is not enough.

The Times' suggestion that the community can help is sound. There are many retired men and women in this city who would be happy to be useful. It takes money to organize and develop community effort; but what is money if it saves a child and simultaneously improves the quality of life for lonely people?

It is expected that Mrs. McCarthy will bring to her new position the same innovative drive that she brought to the last and that the department of human resources will be the better for her presence. The first good news is that the above-mentioned draft will not be pushed through the legislature by mid-January, as first reported. So the public still has the opportunity to make its suggestions known. — Dorothy Potts, UNICEF, 3395 Browning Street.

Careless Words

Recently your newspaper reprinted an article by the British novelist Margaret Drabble titled Rape and Reason.

I agree with Ms. Drabble that certain left-wing feminists are overreacting to the emotive subject of rape. There has always been — and probably always will be — a manhating and vindictive kind of "feminist" within the women's movement. Their behavior is seldom a credit to other feminists, and often their actions are a discredit to the feminist cause, and an embarrassment to women in general.

I'm sure that most people will agree that civilized society has been unfair to men, too, not just to women.

On the matter of rape, current laws do punish the victim more than the rapist in certain respects, and these laws are supposedly being changed now so that rape victims will be treated more humanely by our courts.

Rape is a subject which has always titillated and fascinated the degenerative and bored segment of our society. The public should never be allowed to attend a court case dealing with rape. It is simply no one else's business except the court's, the alleged rapist's, and the rape victim's.

I'm annoyed at Ms. Drabble's closing remark: "If rape is a traumatic experience, I imagine that having one's teeth knocked out can be equally traumatic." What a flippant, insensitive remark, particularly coming from a women. British women are renowned for their "earthiness," but I can't imagine any woman of any nationality displaying such a carefree attitude towards being raped. Obviously, Margaret Drabble has never been raped. Her thoughtless, closing statement casts a pall over an otherwise fine article. — Ms. Kelly Haney, 1162 McClure Street.

Dinosaur Trees

Rayonier's tree farm licence on Moresby Island includes trees that are the living "dinosaurs" of the plant world. That we would allow their decimation, with only pockets saved (which could easily be destroyed by changes in the surrounding vegetation) is tantamount to opening a hunting season on the whooping crane or shooting the nose off the Sphinx.

Perhaps we should have the stumps marked with copper plaques dedicated to Tom Waterland or Premier Bennett, who has the capability of stopping the sale of MacMillan Bloedel.

The B.C. government does not need further input of facts. It already has the pertinent facts. If the public is expected to underwrite the cost of the various ministries and then hire lawyers to protect its long range interests, we need not look for the enemy, "he is us." — Lavonne Huneck, Victoria.

Coneheads?

Mayor Mike Young is not a stooge of that charitable and benevolent association of political and economic coneheads known as the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, but he certainly gives that impression.

Take his most recent behavior, for example. John Ansell, past president of the VCC, in a political diatribe worthy of Joe McCarthy denounces "creeping socialism" and "left-leaning" pressure groups. His analysis lead him to the conclusion that 70 per cent of aldermanic votes are cast not on the basis of particular proposals, but rather as a result of aldermanic fears of the adverse consquences of voting against "creeping socialism."

To counter this tendency, Ansell demanded Mayor Young appoint an alderman to the VCC board of directors where, presumably, the alderman will be informed of the benevolent character of VCC supported proposals as well as the "leftist" opposition such proposals will generate.

Ansell's laughable ravings generated the ridicule they so richly deserved — everywhere but inside the mind of Mayor Young, who for reasons only he knows decided the VCC was right and should meet Victoria's aldermen secretly. At least Mayor Young's announcement of his intention to comply with Ansell's demand creates the presumption the demand was justified, does it not? After all, why comply with an unjustified demand?

When questioned about the advisability of becoming too closely identified with a special interest group like VCC, Mayor Young nominated himself for the political imbecile of the year award by replying: "You can't really get too close to a group like that, can you?"

Just in case Mayor Young doesn't know it, the people of Victoria disagree. Public officials can get too close to special interest groups and many people believe Mayor Young is much too close to the VCC.

Of course no one would ever accuse Mayor young of having the vision — much less the insight — of his predecessor whose political fortuune was built on widespread public suspicion towards and distrust of the "special interests" of the VCC. Indeed Mayor Young has been out of step with Victoria ever since his cozy trip to Scottsdale, Arizona in March of 1976 to look into the "healthy" relationship between real estate operators and city hall in that desert oasis which many people regard as the land fraud capital of the world.

Behavior such as that trip, this capitulation to the VCC, and the rationale on which it is based, raises serious questions about Mayor Young's judgment.

Fortunately, most of Victoria's aldermen without whose co-operation the proposed secret meetings cannot take place will shun them like the plague. They know, even if Mayor Young does not, that secrecy of this type creates the suspicion of conspiracy. Furthermore, they know that the "special interests" of the VCC are not necessarily synonymous with the interests of Victoria. Where those interests conflict, the interests of Victoria, broadly defined, must take precedence. But most importantly, they know we want our aldermen to continue to decide controversial issues on their private merits after listening to both sides in public 100 per cent of the time. They also know something else Mayor Young and the VCC don't know: that the only secret meeting an alderman should ever attend to get advice is the one he attends with his conscience. — Gentry Hudson, 320 Bessborough Road.

Comfort Money?

Towards the end of December the provincial cabinet announced an increase in the expense rate paid cabinet ministers travelling on government business. The per diem rate is now $35 in Canada, $50 outside Canada, and is "authorized whether expended or not" and is in addition to routine room, board and travel expenses. Ministerial aides and senior officials will receive $25 a day.

Is there a moral difference between one minister swapping his first class airline ticket for a cheaper one and pocketing the surplus and other ministers pocketing $35 a day "whether expended or not"?

Is it just that one minister's character was besmirched for practising what seems to be a practice common to many, i.e. accepting money over and above legitimate expenses?

Surely travelling away from the comfort and convenience of home is the price politicians expect to pay when they assume office? Admittedly ministers should be reimbursed for all legitimate expenses, but do they need comfort money as well?

Perpetuating a per diem rate "whether expended or not" seems to be a rather wasteful drain on the public purse. — Ruby A. Pearson, 2085 Avondale Road.

W.A. WILSON

The Splurge Must Go On

OTTAWA — When the British government [illegible] of England raised interest rates to extreme levels a few years ago they were desperately trying to stop the decline in the value of the pound because its fall was wrecking attempts to bring inflation under control.

The situation was particularly critical for Britain because of the unusually high proportion of food and raw materials which that country must import to keep its industries going. Sterling's decline was adding steadily to British production and living costs and fuelling inflation.

The price of interest rates not much above those now imposed here by the Bank of Canada was a noticeable slowing of the economy, with consequent adverse effects on the already high level of unemployment. In the end, however, it was not high internal interest rates that brought about the recovery of sterling that came about when North Sea oil came on stream in large enough volumes to have a significant effect on the British balance of payments. Today, sterling is a relatively stable currency and it is the two dollars that are weak.

Oil, Not Interest

The British and Canadian economies differ far too greatly for many direct comparisons to be valid but two of the British lessons can be taken to heart here. They are that the price of extreme interest rates was stiff and that, in the end, it was only a fundamental improvement in the British economic situation that brought about a stronger pound.

There is no reason even to try to believe that these lessons will not apply to this country as well. The Bank of Canada's determination to hold the dollar at the 85 cent level, with higher and higher interest rates and huge volumes of borrowed money the main tools at work, must have adverse economic effects within the country, in the form of delayed investment and undesirable effects on employment.

Nor is there any reason to believe that the Canadian dollar will strengthen in international money markets except as a reflection of improved economic conditions in this country. Not all aspects of the economy are troubling. Those most conspicuous in the eyes of the rest of the world, however, are unfavorable: a very high central government deficit, a seriously adverse balance on international payments, high unemployment and superficially a high rate of inflation.

The inflation rate is not nearly as bad as it looks because so much of the price increases for many months now have stemmed either from food or increases in energy costs which result from government policy. With these items removed, the rate of other price increases has slowed to a very favorable extent. This is meaningless to the ordinary consumer, who can hardly stop eating or using transport to get to work, but it is a valid approach in examining what is occuring beneath the economic surface.

But if this is meaningless to the consumer it is also a bit much to expect a New York currency trader to strip the elements of Canadian inflation apart and detect which aspects are responding favorably and which are causing trouble. So it is the obvious, over-all rate that is important in that context as it is with the ordinary person here.

JOE CLARK

The adverse balance of payments cannot be solved by importing more and more capital, although that will finance it over the short to medium term. In the end, however, that approach only worsens the problem because it adds significantly to the debt service and dividends which must be paid abroad and these are already major factors in the country's international deficit.

Nor can we expect to eliminate the deficit by increasing the volume of the commodities which we are now selling abroad. Those exports are already being sold as fast as Canadian producers can find foreign buyers. The only available resource that could immediately be sold abroad in sufficiently enlarged volume to make a major impact on the deficit is natural gas. We have still to see any sign, however, that the federal government has started to look at that issue in the broad context of the total economy rather than the narrower one of conservation.

The most worrying aspect of the latest moves to hold the dollar is the way in which the Bank of Canada and the minister of finance have been sticking rigidly to an approach that has been steadily failing. The repeated increases in interest rates have not, in fact, strengthened the dollar although it can be argued that without them there might well have been an outflow of capital from Canada which would have added to its weakness. Nor have the huge foreign borrowings and their free expenditure in foreign exchange markets produced any lasting strength in the country's currency. Clearly something more is needed but we see no signs that any effort is underway to find that "something more."

There are other dangers beyond inhibition of investment in interest rates at this level. To the extent that they fail to inhibit, whether buying or investing, they are themselves inflationary, adding significantly to costs.

Travel Imbalance

Businessmen who proceed in spite of them develop what could be described as an interest rate psychosis, similar to an inflation psychosis: the expectation that they will be a lasting feature of the economy and hence a cost that it will be practical to pass on to the consumer. One of the greatest gains of the controls period was that it at least curbed, if it did not end, the inflation psychosis.

The massive imbalance on travel, with Canadians spending vastly more abroad than non-Canadians spend here, is a major factor in the international deficit that weakens the dollar. It is, indeed, a billion-dollar factor by itself. Yet men in positions of authority do not trouble to set any example to the people of the country. Trudeau must have his annual winter travels outside the country. Clark must have his tour of foreign capitals. Ministers must go south. Quite silly conferences must be attended. The splurge must go on.

All but forgotten is the reality that the price of measures that do not work, of failure to seek out other approaches, of refusal to set any sort of decent example is more men and women without jobs.

Electric Auto Not For Us?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

There are no guarantees that the Western world will drive merrily away from its oil problems in a little electrically-powered car, but there is compelling evidence that battery-operated vehicles are in our future. Just how close that future is, and the part that Canada might play in bringing it closer are just two of the questions that follow.

Already the United States is witnessing a curious mixture of modern technology and pure nostalgia as electric vehicles, not seen in the streets since the start of the century, return in strange new shapes to pit their batteries against the automobile's gasoline tank. In its renaissance phase, the electric vehicle is still experimental, designers having yet to come up with a model that is entirely satisfactory, but the promise is certainly there.

Federal funds

It is expected that the U.S. Department of Energy will soon choose the first entrants in its demonstration program. About four dozen applicants (significantly, they are mostly large corporations) are competing for federal funds to help finance field tests of electric vehicles. Six years from now, it is anticipated that about 10,000 demonstration vehicles, propelled by batteries (and a $160-million government program) will be on the roads.

And while the Yanks are coming (with little more than a soft whine), where are the Canadians? Not at all where they should be for a nation whose most intelligent industrial strategy would be to select areas of high technology and drive hard toward excellence in them. If research and development are to obtain at last the support they have been long denied, the area of the electric vehicle would seem to be a prime candidate for funds.

Yet, in April of last year, a federal civil servant, F. G. Johnson of the special vehicle division of the transportation industries branch of the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce, said the federal government had done little to help the electric vehicle industry in Canada. He urged government assistance to encourage Canadian initiative in the field of electric vehicles which, he said, could take over 20 per cent of automotive transportation by 1990.

Mr. Johnson said Canada was lagging well behind other industrial countries in this field. Britain, Japan, Sweden and the United States had major research programs under way to develop small electric-powered cars for urban use. Canadians, he added, were paying $1 billion a year for imports of small gasoline-powered cars to conserve energy, though they could have their own $41 billion electric vehicle industry by 1990 if steps were taken now.

Ah, dreams. Meanwhile, the United States, Japan and Europe steadily build up expertise, increasingly attracted by potential savings of oil fuel and reductions in air pollution. (Transportation accounts for about 50 per cent of the petroleum used in the United States and about 90 per cent of its urban air pollution comes from internal combustion engines.)

The concept of late-night battery charging on electric vehicles has the great merit of consuming electrical power when the utilities have excess capacity. The unit costs of electrical power to the ordinary consumer might well drop by this increase in its efficient use. As for pollution, the most concise comment may have been the one in an article in Machine Design: "It is much easier to control one chimney than 100,000 tailpipes"

No noise, smell

Perhaps we should end with a quotation about the status of electric vehicle development:

"Electric automobiles have now become thoroughly practical vehicles, having satisfactorily accomplished single journeys of more than 100 miles on one charge and tours of more than 1,000 miles (from London to Glasgow and back). Electric energy is an economical and readily-applied form of power, which is noiseless in its application, gives rise to neither smell nor refuse, and possesses the advantage that it can be turned on and off at will. It also has features, such as braking power and recuperation of energy, which are not possessed by other kinds of motive power."

It was written in 1903.

Haitians Pique U.S. Social Conscience

THE ECONOMIST

MIAMI — Florida, which already has 400,000 Cubans in Miami alone, is awaiting many thousands more as Fidel Castro releases his political prisoners and allows other families to leave. But the state has also become the battleground for an increasingly bitter and divisive test of American policy towards people from another Caribbean island: Haiti.

Many black Haitians, perhaps as many as 30,000, speaking only Creole French and escaping dire poverty, have entered the United States illegally, most of them by washing up on Florida's coast in ramshackle boats. Now the immigration and naturalization service is increasing its efforts to send the Haitians back to their native land, the poorest country in the western hemisphere. As many as 150 Haitians are being dealt with each day, with only one or two minutes for each case to be heard.

Immigration officials, arguing that most of the Haitians are refugees for economic reasons, see no grounds for giving them wholesale asylum. They insist that the rules must be upheld if the United States is to avoid becoming a haven for people from every poverty-stricken neighborhood in the Caribbean.

DUVALIER
. . . repressive regime

The Haitian problem has raised questions of social conscience and piqued racial sensitivities. Spokesmen for the Haitian community in southern Florida wonder out loud why Haitians are not accorded the same treatment as thousands of Cubans and Vietnamese. Black groups have offered an answer: Haitians are black, the others are not. A lawyer's civil-rights group also contends that federal policy-makers fear that asylum for the Haitians would be tacit acknowledgement of human-rights violations by the government of Jean-Claude Duvalier and would be an impolitic slap at an anti-communist ally. Recently a civil-rights group affiliated with the National Council of Churches has accused immigration officals of "bending, breaking or changing" regulations as part of mass deportation programs.

Bitterness has mounted as personal tragedies have become known, such as that of a Haitian mother separated from her children and that of an eight-year-old girl held in jail for two weeks. Immigration officials contend that these were "oversights".

Most of the Haitian refugees in southern Florida are finding misery in a country famous for opportunity. They are packed into apartments with friends and relatives and almost half of them have no work. Those who do can only find menial jobs at low wages. Local health officials worry about disease. Local government officials, estimating that assistance for the Haitians will cost over $10 million a year, are seeking federal help. At least those awaiting deportation hearings may receive federal food stamps.

Haitians began arriving in southern Florida in 1972, but the number of refugees swelled last summer as the government of the Bahamas began to deport those it had allowed to enter. Since the late 1950s the Bahamas has been a haven for Haitians anxious to find jobs and to escape the tyrannical regime of the late Haitian dictator Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier. But the Bahamas, which once welcomed the Haitians to perform menial jobs, now considers them a burden. Many refugees with the means and the courage are now risking their lives on the voyage to Florida in small boats.

Most of the Haitians are illiterate and apolitical. Papa Doc's son, under pressure from President Carter, has run his country with more tolerance than his father. There is no proof that the 170 refugees sent back so far have suffered any systematic punishment. So is there a question of conscience for Americans?

'Anti-Abortionists Curb Free Speech'

By LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA — Whenever voices are raised to curtail freedom of speech, I find that disturbing. When the voices are raised in Parliament, I find that very disturbing.

It happened twice in the last days before the holiday recess, and both incidents involved anti-abortionists trying to silence those holding other views.

In one instance, the NDP's Stuart Leggatt was trying to introduce a private member's bill "to remove the subject of abortion from the Criminal Code and leave it as a matter to be closely regulated by the individual's conscience and the medical profession".

Literally hundreds of private members' bills, on all sorts of subjects, are introduced in each session of the House. They are routinely given first reading — permission to be printed and listed on the Order Paper — and, for the most part, never heard from again.

(A small number get as far as to be called for an hour's debate at the second reading stage, but none gets any farther without unanimous agreement from all parts of the House.)

However unwelcome a bill may be, it is not regarded as fair play to try to block its very introduction.

But that is what happened with the Leggatt bill.

It did manage to get first reading, but only "on division" — over the objections of some members.

The other incident took place a week earlier, when anti-abortionist Liberal MP Ursula Appolloni initiated an adjournment debate over Ottawa's funding of the Planned Parenthood Federation.

Her objection was to the Fall edition of the Federation's newsletter and she was not at all mollified when Health and Welfare Minister Monique Begin pointed out that the government grant covered only the operation of the organization's national office, not the costs of its publication.

According to Appolloni, the newsletter, "by despicable and insidious innuendo, vilifies the entire Catholic Church".

And how is it that it does such a thing?

Well, almost half of the issue consists of reprints of newspaper and magazine articles — a total of 35 of them — and one of these, she charged, "was a subliminal anti-Catholic message".

Very subliminal, it would seem, because the offending piece turns out to be a reprint from a small Catholic paper in the U.S., the National Catholic Reporter.

Entitled "Pro-Life Isn't", it contends that the "right-to-life movement isn't pro-life at all — it's anti-abortion", which is not at all the same thing.

APPOLLONI

LEGGAT
. . . bill blocked

"There is something lacking", says the editorial, "when concern amounting almost to hysteria can be aroused over a four-month-old fetus threatened in the womb, and no concern aroused about four-year-olds living in squalor, 40-year-olds being executed, and people twice that age, waiting in nursing homes, wanting to give up life".

It goes on to express concern that "in spite of strong social commitment by millions of U.S. Catholics", the public is being led to believe "that anti-abortion is what Roman Catholicism solely stands for in the social, economic and political arena".

How anyone could regard such a piece as anti-Catholic is merely unfathomable. What is apalling is that a member of the House of Commons should think that reprinting it in a newsletter constitutes grounds for a service organization to have its operating grant cut off.

Even without having to face the axe that Ms. Appolloni would evidently like to wield, groups like Planned Parenthood are in for a difficult time in the coming year.

As part of the government's expenditure restraints, family planning grants are to be cut back almost by half — from $2.1 million to $1.1 million.

The foolishness of that sort of "economy" is that its predictable result will be more unwanted pregnancies, some of which will lead to abortions and others to an increase in the number of children in the hands of Children's Aid Societies.

Both will cost government far more than the "savings" from reduced family planning services.

Looking across the border, there is more than a little irony to the recent announcement by Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano of a huge new program of family planning grants.

The irony is that Califano is no less fervent an anti-abortionist than Appolloni. The difference is that his solution is to try to prevent the problem.

Aboard the Gravy Train

By GEORGE BAIN

OTTAWA — The Tories the other day were raising a row in the House of Commons about John Turner's literary career, in effect saying he traded on information gained as Minister of Finance to sell a newsletter to 10 or a dozen businessmen.

Having read excerpts from the Turner letter, there are two things I am moved to say:

One is that the charge of some sort of conflict between his erstwhile public trust and his present private gain simply won't stand up.

From what I have read, there is not a shred of evidence that Turner ever put foot in the Department of Finance. I wouldn't even be prepared — not on the basis of what's in front of us — to swear he knows where it is.

The other is that I am not half so much interested in his ethics, again given the evidence, as I am in his mailing list. If Turner knows where to find 10 or 12 corporate Bigdomes who are prepared to shell out $15,000 a year to have someone write them a letter, I wish he'd share it around.

I've heard about the loneliness of power, but I never knew they got that lonely in the executive suite.

Here obviously is a lucrative field to be explored and, frankly, John Turner has yet to see the day he could write a better letter than I can. And, so far as any revealed special expertise is concerned, well, I can multiply 10 times $15,000 as fast as the next man.

(I have a little more trouble with 12 times $15,000, but, with one of those $19.95 pocket calculators, who's to tell?)

What I mean is, if there are people out there ready to shell out $15,000 to be told "there has been an increasingly poor economic performance," I'd like to get on the gravy-train.

(I don't think that's even an original observation. I'd swear I'd read somewhere before that "there has been an increasingly poor economic performance." There have been hints of it around. I may even have written it myself, just tossed it off casually in the course of some routinely incisive analysis of our national affairs.)

Surprising, eh? I mean that people would pay big bucks to have someone write them a letter once in a while. I mean, for $15,000 you could get a daily newspaper for 384 years, plus. In that time you could almost count on it that someone would mention that "there has been an increasingly poor economic performance . . ."

TURNER . . . lucrative letters

Perhaps even twice.

Also, call it sour grapes if you like, but I don't think Turner's style is all that hot.

He writes awfully long sentences. (Of course, for that kind of money, maybe people demand long sentences.) But look at this from the purely literary standpoint:

"There has been a decline in the traditional strength and independence of the Department of Finance as a powerful countervailing force within the federal government to bring economic and fiscal reality into effective comfrontation with the political requirements and aspirations generally reflected in the other governmental departments and ministers."

I mean, sure, Faulkner wrote long and opaque sentences, and Henry James went on forever, but no one has ever said there was any particular literary merit in long sentences per se.

But, again, the passage cited demonstrates how false is the suggestion that Turner has peddled information gained in his official capacity. There is no discernible information, it's like a murder without a corpse.

The whole affair does, however, have the merit of showing how ministers can make new careers for themselves out of politics. Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie perhaps could advise clients on whether to use leaded or un-leaded gas. Immigration Minister Bud Cullen could offer tips on how to make out an application for a passport renewal.

SWISS PORK CASSEROLE

Mix ½ cup flour with 1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, ½ tsp. monosodium glutomate. With edge of heavy saucer, pound this mixture into 2 lb. pork steak, cut 1 inch thick. Heat 2 tbsp. salad oil in skillet; saute pork until well browned on both sides. Remove to a 10x6x2 inch baking dish. In skillet, place 2 medium sliced onions and ½ medium slivered green pepper. Stir, coating them with drippings. Stir in 1 cup tomato juice, then pour over pork. Refrigerate at least 30 minutes. Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Cover top of baking dish containing pork with foil. Bake for 40 minutes. Thaw 1 package (about 10 oz.) frozen green limas just enough to separate. Arrange limas around pork. Sprinkle with 1 tsp. salt. Bake covered for 45 minutes longer or until pork is fork tender. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Sales of Wine Double In Que.

MONTREAL (CP) — Wine sales have almost doubled in Quebec since 9,000 small grocery stores began stocking some brands in mid-September, according to a liquor corporation official.

Executive Vice-President Fernand Pepin of the Quebec Liquor Corp. said wine sales in the board's 340 stores, which previously were the sole outlets for wine in the province, also increased since that time.

About 2.2 million gallons of wine, valued at $36 million dollars, were delivered to the grocery stores between Sept. 18 and Dec. 22, corporation statistics show.

At that rate the new outlets should sell about 9 million gallons in the next nine months, Pepin said. In 1977 the board sold 9.7 million gallons of wine.

Pepin added that high consumption during the holiday period and the threat of a liquor corporation strike shortly before Christmas caused some "abnormalities" in sales patterns.

A definitive picture of wine sales for both the grocery stores and the board's stores would not emerge until the spring, he said.

Corner groceries are allowed to stock brands bottled or manufactured in Quebec for the board.

B.C. Firm Gets Nod

EDMONTON (CP) — Dillingham Corp. Canada Ltd. of North Vancouver has outbid Alberta firms for the contract to build concrete supports for a bridge leading to the proposed Shell oil sands plant at Fort MacKay, Alta.

The B.C. firm tendered a price of just more than $4.4 million, nearly $1 million below the low Alberta bid from Poole Engineering Ltd. of Edmonton, Transportation Minister Dr. Hugh Horner announced Friday.

The bridge will carry Secondary Road 963 over the Athabasca River. The oil sands plant, planned for an area 55 kilometres north of Fort McMurray, has yet to be approved by the government.

Bennett Signs

Premier Bill Bennett signed the same petition for Canadian unity Tuesday that provincial Lt.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving was criticized for putting putting his name to earlier.

In his Christmas message, Bell-Irving urged people to sign the People to People petition.

Environment Minister Rafe Mair said Bell-Irving was stepping beyond his traditional role as a non-political figure.

But Bennett said the petition is not a political one — a view held by Bell-Irving — and any attempt to encourage all Canadians to remain united and to work towards a stronger country should be supported by everyone.

Cartoonist Recalls Minister's Shovel Quote

make better housewives than plumbers or electricians, a comment which made the cartoonist laugh.

Every time Vander Zalm stuck his neck out, he said, "I took a pot shot at it."

Bierman said his role as a political cartoonist was to satirize political events and politicians and he used newspapers, television, radio and magazines as sources for his ideas.

Cartoons used overdue exaggeration to try to make them a combination of ridicule, satire and lampooning to give the public a chuckle.

Nine cartoons dealing with Vander Zalm were submitted as exhibits.

In cross-examination, he was asked if the cartoon in issue was amusing and made him chuckle. "Yes. Enjoy it is more the word than laugh," he replied.

Asked his views of Vander Zalm as a person, Bierman replied: "I do not know him as a person. I appreciate that he is Dutch."

He denied having any malicious view of Vander Zalm as a person.

He agreed he worked full-time for the provincial government between 1973 and 1977 but when asked if he was censured because of his work as a cartoonist he replied: "No sir, the government got into trouble."

Bierman agreed questions were raised in the legislature about the government trying to curtail his activities as a freelance cartoonist and he was directed not to do cartoons.

He also agreed he regarded this as an infringement of his civil liberties.

Asked if he left the government service shortly after that, he replied: "I left the government because I didn't like the work I was assigned to."

Asked if he bore a grudge against the government for not allowing him to be a full-time civil servant and freelance cartoonist, he said he didn't want to be a civil servant.

Bierman said he thought Vander Zalm's conduct as minister of human resources was not in syncronization with his own feelings as a cartoonist.

He said he never held the view that Vander Zalm was not a fit and proper person to be minister of human resources.

Asked if he deliberately portrayed Vander Zalm in this cartoon as a cruel and sadistic person, Bierman replied that he depicted him as feeble-minded, thoughtless and cruel.

Shown a critical cartoon of Vander Zalm, he was asked if that was another instance of him depicting the minister as a cruel, sadistic and thoughtless person.

"It's true except for the word person," replied Bierman. "The cartoon shows the political minister of human resources. I don't know Vander Zalm as a person so I don't know if he's a cruel and sadistic person."

Editor McLintock testified she began as a general assignment reporter for the Victoria Colonist in 1970, ending up as legislative reporter, and joined the Vancouver Province in January, 1974, as head of its Victoria Bureau until she became editor of the Times in June, 1977.

She first saw the cartoon in the page proof the morning of the afternoon that the newspaper came out.

She thought the cartoon was endeavoring to relate the minister to his comments about Indians going back to the reserves and that he was being insensitive and such action would cause pain to people if he went ahead with the proposal.

"I think I thought that was fair comment," she said.

McLintock said there had been a pattern of actions during his 2½ years as minister of human resources which began with the shovel statement just after he was sworn in as minister of that portfolio.

She considered that a particularly harsh comment considering the high unemployment and the fact that there simply weren't jobs.

She detailed a number of actions and comments by the minister and, about each of them, she said variously that they caused unnecessary fright to people, were punishing people for the slowness of federal bureaucracy and that the housewives-plumbers comment was a degrading statement.

Regarding the comment about Indians, she said Vander Zalm at first said people should be encouraged to return to their homes in the north from skid road and then he said if that didn't work he would consider forcing them by cutting off their welfare.

A reporter raised the question about Indians and Vander Zalm said something to the effect that there were better opportunities on reserves, she said.

"I wondered if he had seen reserves."

Asked if she had an honest belief that the minister had acted in a cruel and thoughtless manner and caused pain to others, she replied: "I think that would be a fair way of saying it, yes."

In cross-examination, she was asked if it was in her mind all the matters which she enunciated in court.

McLintock replied that the relocation of welfare recipients from Vancouver was in her mind and the other dozen or so matters had formed a pattern in her mind and that in this case the minister was inclined to be thoughtless.

Asked if she thought the cartoon portrayed the minister in a cruel and sadistic manner, she replied: "No I didn't."

She said children most often pull wings off flies but they didn't realize the implications of their actions and that was the thought in the cartoon about the minister.

Jocelyn Gifford, an assistant professor at the school of social work at the University of Victoria, thought that a lot of things Vander Zalm did weren't the best that could be done for very vunerable people who receive services from the human resources ministry and who have nowhere else to go.

While Vander Zalm did bring in some helpful programs, by and large his decisions and comments were certainly negative and not the best sort of thing that could be done for such people.

But she agreed that there has to be an establishment of priorities for government funding.

Bruce Eriksen, president of the Downtown Eastside Residents Association in Vancouver, which works for poor people in that area, said when Vander Zalm was mayor of Surrey he said it was unrealistic to take people off welfare because there was no work but the first thing he said as minister "was to give them the shovel despite the fact that most people on welfare are children, the handicapped, the elderly."

He said Vander Zalm changed the regulation defining the handicapped to such an extent that a person practically had to be a vegetable to be a welfare recipient.

He said Vander Zalm insisted on attacking the poor as lazy, shiftless people who live off the public by choice despite unemployment in the province of 105,000 and job vacancies totalling only just over 4,000. He said Vander Zalm's attitude was cruel and irresponsible.

"What does he expect people on GAIN to do with their shovels, dig their graves?" Eriksen asked.

In cross-examination, he blamed Vander Zalm for the insufficiency of welfare payments, saying a United Appeal study showed the payments are 35 to 70 per cent below an adequate level. He said Vander Zalm chopped $110 million from the welfare budget in 1977.

He agreed welfare rates are set by the cabinet but added that his group was told by Premier Bennett that he would not interfere. Eriksen said if Vander Zalm recommended an increase in welfare rates "I am sure the cabinet would go along with it."

Asked if he had ever heard Vander Zalm attack the poor as lazy, shiftless bums, Eriksen said he had, at a Social Credit party meeting. He added, however, that the minister did not use those exact words but that was the impression which was left.

The Montreal Gazette's political cartoonist, Terry Mosher, (Aislin), said he has been involved for some years preparing a book on the history of political cartooning in Canada which will be published this fall and he had seen 500,000 to 600,000 such cartoons.

He introduced a number of examples of political cartooning in Canada and agreed they were provocative and that some people refer to it as black humor.

One cartoon depicted then-Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in 1958, in an allegorical way as Marie Antoinette with the caption "let them eat cake." Diefenbaker's government had just closed the Avro Arrow program throwing 1,400 people out of work.

Another showed Diefenbaker walking on water with the caption "By God, there he goes again."

There was another cartoon showing Premier Bennett as a vampire and leering, holding a blood-covered rock labelled B.C. Pet Rock falling into a bottle labelled B.C. budget plasma.

The defendants' lawyer, Don Farquhar, closed his case at the end of Tuesday's sitting and Rodney Taylor, counsel for Vander Zalm, was to consider overnight whether to call rebuttal evidence. The minister has been the only witness for the plaintiff.

In opening the case for the defendants, Farquhar told Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe that it would be argued that the cartoon was not defamatory. But if it was, he said, it was not a libel because it was a fair comment made without malice on a matter of public interest.

He said the legal test of defamation for a cartoon should be less strict than the written word because the public recognizes cartoons as being for amusement and enjoyment whereas words are generally for information and edification.

Gross exaggeration and the use of symbolism were basic ingredients of a cartoon, he said, and the public would reasonably understand that. If too literal an interpretation was applied to cartoons, it would restrict a work of art.

The cartoon in issue referred to Vander Zalm's role as minister of human resources and this was indicated by a sign in the cartoon. An editorial on the opposite page of the same issue of the Times included reference to movement of people from downtown Vancouver to their origins.

This, Farquhar said, would cause a reasonable reader to draw some association between the two.

NDP Jumping Ahead

Credit overcoming the NDP lead, but that the Conservatives could.

This is possible, he said, because the poll shows the basic support of both the leading parties is much smaller than the votes they usually get.

Only one-third of the respondents indicated they were committed supporters of either the NDP or the Socreds — 21 per cent for NDP and 14 per cent for Social Credit.

More than one third of those intending to vote Social Credit and more than one quarter of those intending to vote NDP told the pollsters they are voting specifically to keep the other major party out of office.

The reason the Conservatives are possible winners with 15 per cent of the vote while the Socreds with 36 per cent are not is that there is a potential for large shifts to the Conservatives that would take votes away from he NDP while the Socreds are already drawing the maximum votes available to them, Stephens said.

Why Not Medicare For Pets?

CERTAINLY IT WAS ONE of the most difficult interviews I have ever conducted. Each scratch of the pen got me a paw in my left ear. Every time I moved I got all of Buck — best described as a much-too-lovable mutt — on top of me.

The same thing happened whenever my face showed the slightest sign of being agreeable. Then Theo the talking budgie landed on my head.

But in between all the pawing and the crash-landings Peggy Caswell somehow managed to get her point across. There should, she insisted, be an insurance policy to cover medical bills for pets.

There isn't. Not a thing. And what would you do tomorrow if your pet whatsit was badly hurt or suddenly came down with a mysterious illness? You wouldn't dream of having it destroyed, would you? Yet what you probably don't know is that the vet's bill could put you in the poorhouse, if you aren't there already.

Take Peggy and Ray Caswell. They're not in the poorhouse but they did get one hell of a shock.

With both of their sons grown and long since left home, Peggy, a licenced practical nurse and Ray, an orderly for 27 years at the Memorial Pavilion (formerly Veterans Hospital), wanted to get a dog for company.

And so they moved out of the Dallas Road apartment where they'd lived for six years and bought a little house on Battleford Avenue to do them until they retire nearer their children's families on the Mainland. That was a year ago.

At the same time they acquired Buck from the SPCA for the not too grand sum of $7. But while little money was involved, it became a big investment in love for the Caswells who grew closer and closer to their mutt as he grew and grew.

Then, on the way to go camping at Weir's Beach in the fall, Buck worked the catch on a window loose and leapt from the back canopy of the family's camper truck as it sped along. He broke his left hind leg.

Peggy and Ray took Buck to one of the big veterinary hospitals in the area where he was X-rayed. They were then told the dog would need an operation and his leg would have to be pinned.

"The vet asked if we wanted him to fix our dog up and we said 'By all means,' " Peggy said. "We never thought of having him put to sleep. I know he was just a little thing from the SPCA but, after all, he'd become one of the family."

The veterinary hospital, however, gave the Caswells no indication of costs involved and when, a few days later, they returned to pick Buck up they were presented with a bill for $330!

"Initially the bill was $250 for the operation," Peggy explained. "But then it started to mount with another $16 for X-rays and $14 a night to leave him there, so much to put the pins in and so much to take them out again. And suddenly it was over $300.

"Well, we couldn't afford to pay that much straight away," Peggy said. "But we paid the whole thing off over three months and I think that was fair enough."

The veterinary hospital didn't.

"They kept pestering us for the money and when Ray phoned to see about having the pins removed and we had just $80 left to pay, the vet told him: 'Bring the money. No money, no work!' "

It must seem never-ending to the Caswells as last week Buck slipped and sprained one of his front paws and they've just had to pay another $26 for an examination and a booster shot.

"My son Douglas who lives in Kamloops has an old dog named Sam and they've spent a mint on him, too," Peggy said. "Someone shot him with a pellet gun and his lung collapsed. They saved him after that but now he's having all his teeth out."

There can often be big expenses with pets, Peggy said, and that's why she feels insurance companies should offer policies to cover vets' bills, much the same way as people are covered under MSA.

VICTORIA SPCA manager Don Adams told me that though there was such a policy available some time ago, there is nothing now.

"The Vancouver SPCA offers coverage to its members but that's because it has its own clinic," Adams explained. "We don't have anything like that over here."

As pensioner Murray Black, a friend of the Caswells, said:

"The thing is, people are walking into this blind if they just go into a vet's or to one of those animal hospitals and want their injured pet fixed up."

Black, who bought his dog for $10 from the SPCA in Montreal seven years ago, said he would not be able to pay the bills if anything happened to it.

"And yet you can't get insurance to guard against it," he said.

"I couldn't pay that kind of money — I'd have to have my dog put to sleep."

CHAINSAW FARMING? That's one way of describing the technique used by the Vantreight family's daffodil and tulip operation to beat the recent cold spell. Chainsaws had to be used to cut through the six-inch-thick layer of frozen sawdust covering the flats of bulbs so that they could be taken from the Gordon Head fields off Tyndall to the protection of the greenhouses. Care is essential in prying off the sectioned blocks to avoid breaking the shoots which have grown up into the sawdust blanket. Grower Ian Vantreight says the method — used only once before, in the early 1950s — was necessary because they couldn't wait any longer for the ground to thaw. "We got through 12 chains and two complete saws this morning," he groaned. (Bill Halkett photos)

Veitch: Priority For Centre

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Tourism Minister Elwood Veitch has put a high priority on a convention centre for Victoria, Chamber of Commerce president Mel Cooper said today.

He said at a meeting Tuesday with the new minister the chamber asked for provincial help in obtaining a conference centre and the minister replied the request had come at a good time.

"Mr. Veitch referred to a report he had just received from his convention department stating that both Victoria and Vancouver urgently need facilities for conferences."

The report shows B.C. in general and the two major urban areas in particular do not have adequate tourist facilities to attract off-season visitors to the province.

"We did not go into financial details at the meeting but obviously a conference centre will require three-way participation by the provincial government, the city and the business community," Cooper said.

Under discussion, he added, is the proposal to construct a conference centre in a waterfront complex on the former Reid site.

"This proposal is rapidly coming to a head. I would expect a decision very soon. We were encouraged by the statement of the minister that the provincial government is aware of the need."

Under a provincial government proposal, private enterprise would operate a restaurant-shopping centre on the waterfront and a conference centre would become part of the project.

A convention board would be appointed to operate the conference centre. Financing the building and operating costs are matters that still must be ironed out.

Other matters discussed at the chamber's first meeting with Veitch, he said, included plans for the coming tourist season.

"Our discussion was quite general but both sides expressed a wish to carry forward with the momentum of our successful season in 1978."

Cooper said package tours and the role of the Marguerite will both be important this year.

"We hope to meet with the minister again soon when we will be able to go into more detail on these ideas. We hope to develop the same kind of open relationship with him that we had with the previous minister (Grace McCarthy)."

Brice Bucks Pickup Over College Snub

Former Greater Victoria school board chairman Susan Brice said today she intends to fight her successor's move to drop three trustees from Camosun College council.

Brice acknowleged Carol Pickup as chairman is entitled to change appointments, but said there is a principle involved.

She said Pickup's method of selecting appointees wouldn't stand up under public scrutiny.

Pickup made her selections without asking trustees for their opinions or suggestions and didn't supply any information about the proposed appointees, Brice charged.

The issue has sparked a procedural dispute that might prove embarrassing to Pickup's intended appointees, Brice said.

Pickup nominated as their replacements trustees Martin Levin and Mary Breer. Also nominated were non-trustee Beryl Young and former trustee Dr. Hal Knight.

In making the changes, Pickup said she was exercising her prerogative as chairman.

She said it is important to give new trustees and members of the community the opportunity to participate in the decision-making process of the college.

The new appointments were angrily opposed by the trustees and debate continued to the close of the meeting at 10:30. The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 15.

The board met for the first time Monday night but was unable to complete even half the agenda.

School board appointees to the council are responsible for a $10 million budget and help form the institution's educational policies, Brice said.

She said she has no idea who Beryl Young is, and can't approve her appointment.

"There was only a name. No address or even a sketchy details of her background. Not one shred of information."

Fisher said today he made it clear to Pickup last week he wants to sit on the college council.

"I told her it was my first priority, but she must have already made up her mind when she talked to me," said Fisher, who added he is the only trustee with three years experience on the college board.

Fisher said all school board appointments to the council should be trustees.

Local taxpayers contribute 15 per cent of the college's $10 million budget and are entitled to representation from its elected officials, he said.

He said Pickup's appointments would mean that only two of the seven seats on the council would be filled by trustees.

The government appoints three people to the board who frequently have little knowledge of college procedure, Fisher said.

Pickup's decision to revoke the appointment is a sign of non-confidence, Fisher said.

Detector Saves Elderly

Police said the 33 residents of McAndrew Lodge, 1037 Lyall, were in bed when the alarm sounded in the basement at 10:25 p.m.

Some of the staff and residents went to the basement to investigate and when they opened the door a chair in the room burst into flames.

They had extinguished the fire and taken the chair outside by the time firemen arrived.

The cause is believed to have been careless smoking.

Lawyer Hired In Rent Hassle

Victoria businessman Nick Liberto said today he has hired a lawyer to help sort out a dispute with the owners of the Ste. Michelle winery site.

The dispute is about whether Liberto's company, Dorosz Tool Co., has defaulted on its rent.

"My lawyer has instructed me to say nothing other than that the reports that allege we have been evicted as a result of our inability to pay rent or non-payment of rent are false."

Liberto said he should be able to clarify the situation by week's end.

A spokesman for Henry Eng, owner of the property, said no rent had been received for December or January for 30,000 square feet of space in the building which was reserved for Dorosz Tool Co.

Mayor Gets the Bird

Crow Blitzkrieg Proposal Shot Down by Allies

By MARK HUME Times Staff

All Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier wanted was a united front.

Perhaps a Greater Victoria task force that could mount a blitzkrieg against the airborne intruders or at least stage commando raids against their home bases.

But Couvelier, the would-be instigator of a war against the local crow population, was shot down by his own allies.

At a Tuesday meeting of the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee, Couvelier got the bird almost before his plan of attack got off the ground.

He was turned on by his colleague Ald. John Mika, Esquimalt Ald. Jim McEvay and others who made it clear the committee didn't want people running around the countryside trying to blast the crows with shotguns and wasn't too keen on hit squads infiltrating nesting areas, shinnying up trees and bashing in the eggs.

"The crows are taking over the world — well, in Greater Victoria," Couvelier said.

But the committee was unmoved.

Before reaching its decision the committee studied a number of letters on the matter, including a report from Saanich police chief Bob Peterson.

The chief said his depratment has been called on numerous times in the past to deal with crows, but has found no satisfactory way to handle the problem.

"Mainly, the complaints were about the early morning noise from these birds, which caused some people a lo's of sleep. Our response to such complaints was, albeit reluctantly, to send a policeman, armed with a shotgun, to or near the complainant's property, where an attempt would be made to destroy the crows . . . (however) Those residents who may not have been disturbed by the crows certainly were disturbed and upset by the sound of the shotgun blasts."

The committee also heard from J.B. Tatum and David Stirling, who wrote that in this day and age there's no room for the "pioneer mentality that supposes that any species of animal that is conspicuous enough or numerous enough for its presence actually to be noticed serves as a good excuse for hunters to go out and shoot it."

Orr's Number Retired In Tear-Filled Tribute

BOSTON (AP) — No one could really believe what was happening, but they came from the past and the present—representing three, and possibly four, generations.

All came with the same mission. They wanted to see Bobby Orr on the ice at Boston Garden once more, and to honor him as an immortal at the age of 30.

Orr didn't disappoint a packed crowd of more than 15,000, and a television audience which included his family in Parry Sound, Ont., in emotion-packed ceremonies.

Although now a financially-secure assistant general manager of Chicago Black Hawks, Orr was still the shy, crewcut kid who bid farewell to junior hockey and Oshawa Generals in 1966 to become one of the National Hockey League's all-time greats with Boston Bruins.

Orr jumped the Bruins after 10 years in 1976 when the club's new ownership refused to gamble on his surgically-scarred knees. He signed with the Black Hawks, becoming a multi-millionaire in the process.

But his knees failed to stand up to the demands of playing pro hockey and he retired earlier this season and was named an assistant general manager with the Hawks.

The Bruins honored him by raising his No. 4 to the Garden's rafters, making Orr only the fifth player in Bruins history to have his number retired. It joined those of Hall of Famers Eddie Shore (2) Lionel Hitchman (3), Dit Clapper (5) and Milt Schmidt (15).

"He was the greatest athlete in any sport," said Bruins captain Wayne Cashman, who recalled Orr's leadership in Stanley Cup championships in 1970 and 1972. "He could do anything out there."

Roger Naples, a Bruins' season ticket holder for 42 years, commented: "I can't say any more about Bobby Orr than has been said already. He has to be one of the greatest, if not the greatest, ever."

Earlier in the day, Orr was saluted in the Massachusetts legislature and at Boston city hall before being honored at the Garden.

The scheduled half-hour program prior to the game between the Bruins and the touring Wings of the Soviet had to be curtailed because of the ovation and "Bobby, Bobby," chants.

"I love you all so much," he said. "I spent 10 years here in Boston and they were the best 10 years of my life. I love you all and thank you very much."

Stephenson Gets His Point Across

The Canadian Press

Wayne Stephenson is a professional, doing what he's paid to do. But he pulls no punches—he's at war with his employer.

The seldom-used goaltender was a standout Tuesday night in Philadelphia Flyers' 5-2 win over Washington Capitals, turning aside 41 shots. Yet the 33-year-old graduate of Canada's national hockey team was fuming following the National Hockey League contest as his feud with Flyers' management continued to simmer.

"I'm beyond the point of proving myself," said the Thunder Bay, Ont., native following his first start since Dec. 7 and only his 10th appearance of the season. "If they don't know now, the hell with it.

"They've declared their lines of war, and I've declared mine, too. I don't worry about it anymore. I've said what I'm going to say."

Stephenson, who was a holdout at the start of the 1976-77 season after being selected to the East All-Star squad the previous year, has been in only 57 games the last three seasons as a backup to Bernie Parent.

When asked what he thought would be a reasonable number of starts in splitting the goaltending duties with Parent, Stephenson snapped: "Why not half of it? Quite a few clubs are doing it now, and getting good goaltending."

Elsewhere Wednesday night, the other three clubs in the Patrick Division—which boasts four of the NHL's top six teams—all posted victories. New York Islanders pulled into a share of first place in the over-all standings with a 7-1 victory over Los Angeles Kings, Atlanta Flames downed Buffalo Sabres 5-3 and New York Rangers dumped St. Louis Blues 5-3.

In an exhibition contest, the touring Wings of the Soviet defeated Boston Bruins 4-1.

Washington, which has never defeated Philadelphia since joining the league — losing 15 and tying four — outshot the Flyers 32-13 in the first two periods but trailed 4-2 as Dennis Ververgaert, Reggie Leach and Bill Barber connected on power plays.

Sandwiched around the power-play scores were goals by Rick MacLeish in the first period and Leach's second goal in the final period. Leach also added an assist, while Bobby Clarke and Bob Dailey had three assists apiece. Robert Picard and Guy Charron scored for the Capitals.

Lorne Henning scored twice in a 33-second span to top off a four-goal New York second period as the Islanders extended their home unbeaten streak to 21 games.

Bryan Trottier started New York's second-period burst, sending a one-handed, five-foot shot past goaltender Ron Grahame at 9:49. The goal, his 29th this season, insured the Islanders' centre of the $500 prize awarded the league's top scorer at the halfway point of the season.

At Atlanta, Guy Chouinard set up three third-period goals as Atlanta rebounded from a two-goal deficit to beat Buffalo. Rookie Red Laurence had scored twice in a span of about 2½ minutes in the second period for the Flames after the Sabres had taken a 2-0 lead with Craig Ramsay's goal at 1:04 of the period.

Ron Duguay and Ulf Nilsson scored 74 seconds apart during a three-goal New York second period and Duguay later added a second goal to lead the visiting Rangers past the Blues, winless in their last 10 games against the New York club—0-8-2.

St. Louis had led 2-0 on first-period goals by Brian Sutter and Larry Giroux. But Walt Tkaczuk scored the first of four straight Rangers goals with five seconds left in the period.

At Boston, Mikhail Varnakov scored twice to pace the Soviet Wings to victory in their final game against NHL opposition. They finished with a 2-1-1 record.

'Just Politics' Says Visa-Loser

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight fighter Kallie Knoetze, still waiting for official notice that his visa has been revoked, says the action by the United States state department is wrong and shrugs it off as "just politics."

"I think a lot of people want to see the fight," the South African said Tuesday night. "This is just politics."

Following considerable protest by civil rights leaders, the visa was revoked Monday and apparently cancels his scheduled 10-round fight Saturday against Bill Sharkey in Miami Beach.

"I stuck by my country's politics when I was in my country and I'll stick by the laws and politics of this country while I'm here," said Knoetze.

Civil rights groups were angered because Knoetze, a white, had wounded a 15-year-old black youth in 1977 while he was a policeman in Pretoria, South Africa.

A national campaign to prevent the six-foot-two, 222-pound Knoetze from boxing in this country was spearheaded by Rev. Jesse Jackson.

"This is a human rights victory," Jackson said in Chicago after learning of the state department action.

"If the fight's off, then I'll simply go home," said the World Boxing Association's second-ranked heavyweight.

Meanwhile, in South Africa, sportsmen and politicians reacted angrily.

"I feel the gall rising higher and higher in my throat, the more I think about it," said Wilf Garforth, head of the Transvaal Provincial Boxing Board.

The state department said it revoked the visa after re-evaluating Knoetze's conviction of obstructing justice and concluding that it was the equivalent of a felony in the United States and therefore grounds for denial of a visa.

"It's a disgrace, said boxing matchmaker Maurice Toweel. "It has nothing to do with sport. It's just a political act.

"What about Sonny Liston and Ron Lyle, both of whom have criminal records far in excess of anything for which Knoetze may be guilty?

Broncos Ride Herd On Punchless Cats

Randy Ruff led the Broncos with three power-play goals. Ralph Andressen and Duane Sutter contributed two-goal performances while Doug Morrison and Gord Williams added singles for the winners.

Barry Pederson scored the lone goal for the Cougars who trailed 8-1 after two periods.

The game also saw goaltender Lee Pickett's first performance in front of the Lethbridge net. Pickett, who plays for Taber Golden Suns of the Alberta Junior Hockey League, blocked 47 Victoria shots. Broncos fired 46 shots at Victoria goaltenders Steve Amiss and Kevin Easterman.

Cougars, now winless in five straight league games, continued to have offensive problems. The Cats have only scored 10 goals over the five-game tour which wraps up tonight against the Tigers in Medicine Hat.

Following the Medicine Hat appearance, Cougars return home for an exhibition game Thursday at 8 p.m. in Memorial Arena against the touring under-18 Czechoslovakian national squad.

In other league games, Brandon Wheat Kings burned Edmonton Oil Kings 8-4, Billings Bighorns edged Seattle Breakers 5-4 and Saskatoon Blades blanked Regina Pats 9-0.

Brian Propp scored three goals and added two assists for Brandon in the Wheat Kings-Oil Kings contest.

Mel Baluk scored two for Edmonton, which was tied 2-2 with Brandon after the first frame, but fell behind 6-3 after the second.

At Billings, Harvie Pocza, Ian McInnes, Cal Roadhouse, Pat Conacher and Pat Rabbitt scored for the Bighorns to rebound from a 3-0 deficit late in the second period.

The Blades lost high-scoring centre Ken Federko after he crashed into the boards and was hurt in the third period. Team officials said he might have suffered a separated shoulder.

CAMPBELL COASTS TO ROOKIE AWARD

NEW YORK (AP) — Running back Earl Campbell, whose league-leading 1,450 yards led Houston Oilers into the National Football League playoffs, was named offensive rookie-of-the-year by an overwhelming margin in a poll conducted by The Associated Press.

The 1977 Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Texas received 82½ of the 84 ballots cast by a committee of sports writers and broadcasters, three from each NFL city. John Jefferson, a wide receiver with San Diego Chargers, received one vote. The other one-half vote went to Tampa Bay Buccaneers quarterback Doug Williams.

Campbell's 1,450 yards surpassed the single-season rookie record of 1,162 set by San Diego's Don Woods in 1974 and broke the all-time Oilers' rushing mark of 1,194 yards established by Hoyle Granger in 1967. His 302 carries and 13 rushing touchdowns also established club records.

Campbell also became the first rookie to win the NFL rushing title since Jim Brown did it in 1957 and came within one of tying Gale Sayers' record of 14 rushing TDs by a rookie.

Jefferson, a bespectacled speedster from Arizona State, tied Campbell for second place in NFL scoring by non-kickers with 13 touchdowns, all receiving.

Pacers End Western Jinx

By The Associated Press

It took awhile, but Indiana Pacers have finally tamed the wild, wild West.

Indiana won on the road against a Pacific Division club for the first time in team history Tuesday night, journeying to Portland and coming away with a 112-104 National Basketball Association victory over the Trail Blazers.

The Pacers had lost 25 consecutive road games to Pacific Division teams in their three years in the league.

"Usually when we come in here, we're blown out by halftime," said Pacers guard Ricky Sobers, who scored 12 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter. "It's very gratifying to win out here, especially because Portland has one of the best home records (16-5) and because this is the first game on our four-game swing."

In other NBA games Tuesday night, Los Angeles Lakers beat New York Knicks 106-94, Denver Nuggets clobbered Washington Bullets 121-90, San Antonio Spurs edged Detroit Pistons 116-114, San Diego Clippers defeated New Orleans Jazz 114-107, Golden State Warriors trimmed Chicago Bulls 103-101 and Houston Rockets beat Kansas City Kings 126-110.

"I'm sure glad to win one out here, finally," said Indiana coach Bobby Leonard. "But it didn't surprise me. We've been playing pretty well lately. We came from behind for a win in Milwaukee and it seemed to give us a pretty good lift."

Johnny Davis scored 25 points on 10-for-15 shooting and Mike Bantom added 21 on 9-for-12 shooting as the Pacers posted their fourth victory in the last five games.

The Blazers, who have lost four of their last five games, lost guard Lionel Hollins, who sprained his right ankle early in the game. His Backcourt partner, Dave Twardzik, led Portland with 23 points.

Divers Compete For Zone Berths

Positions on the Vancouver Island zone team going to the B.C. Winter Games in Kamloops will be at stake Saturday at Crystal Pool when the zone diving championships start at 11 a.m.

Team places will be decided by performances at the event, which will include exhibition performances by Mainland divers.

English Side Moves Ahead

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Derek Randall hit 150 to help England to a 162-run lead over Australia on the fourth day of the fourth cricket test Wednesday.

At the close of play, England, which had trailed by 142 runs on the first innings, was 304 for six. England had resumed Wednesday morning at 133 for two, with Randall 65, not out.

Scores: England 152 and 304 for six; Australia 294.

'ENTHUSIASTIC' KIMBERLEY GETS 1980 WINTER GAMES

Kimberley beat out Trail and Nelson to host the second B.C. Winter Games in 1980, the games committee announced Tuesday.

The East Kootenay centre won over its traditional West Kootenay rivals because it was felt "this was the most enthusiastic submission, and that the community was prepared to work together to put on an outstanding event," said Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis.

Kimberley will receive $260,000 in provincial government grants to host the event.

The 1979 Winter Games get under way in Kamloops March 1.

Losing Isn't Fun

By Canadian Press

Floyd Smith's top priority in getting Cincinnati Stingers back on track is putting some fun back into the game.

That's what the Cincinnati coach insisted Tuesday night after watching his club squander a 3-2 lead as Quebec Nordiques pulled into a share of first place in the World Hockey Association with a pair of unanswered goals in the third period for a 4-3 victory.

Bob Fitchner netted the winner with just 49 seconds left, which was particularly upsetting to Smith.

"There was no reason for that goal," he said. "We just get frustrated out there. We had the game won in the second period, 3-2, and just couldn't score any more goals.

"We came out in the third period and were giving the puck away and, bingo, it's in the net. We've got to get loose out there and get a little fun back in the game."

In Tuesday's only other game, Winnipeg Jets got a goal from Kent Nilsson, his second of the night, at 6:22 of overtime, to down Edmonton Oilers 4-3.

The victory, Quebec's first in Cincinnati this season, moved the Nordiques into a first-place tie with the idle New England Whalers, who enjoy two games in hand.

Big Plans for Metros

TORONTO (UPC) — The owners of the Global television network have bought Toronto's professional soccer franchise and say they intend to make soccer the biggest sports draw in the city.

Paul Morton, president of Global Communications Ltd., announced Tuesday that a subsidiary, Global Sports Enterprises Ltd. had purchased Theme Holdings Ltd., which holds the Toronto franchise in the North American Soccer League. Terms of the purchase were not disclosed.

Theme Holdings last September acquired Prosoccer Ltd., which operated the Metro-Croatia soccer club in the NASL.

Morton said the league and shareholders of Prosoccer Ltd. must approved the ownership change. He was optimistic that the deal would be approved by early next month.

Morton said Global Sports officials have met with soccer league officials who were "helpful and enthusiastic".

DRAFT 285-POUND FIRST BASEMAN

Bosox Go for 'Baby Fat'

By Associated Press

One of the biggest prospective major league baseball players in history — a 285-pound first baseman burdened with "baby fat" — is the property of Boston Red Sox.

The American League team selected six-foot-four Kenneth Cox Jr. of Cincinnati in the free agent draft of amateur baseball talent Tuesday, saying the 20-year-old junior college player is expected to shed some weight.

"The scouts claim he has a lot of baby fat," said Red Sox spokesman Dick Bresciani. "But they also say he has good power, agility and a quick bat."

Elsewhere in the draft picture, Bill Bordley and California Angels wanted each other very badly but Cincinnati Reds have kept them apart for at least six months, and maybe forever.

Bordley is the six-foot-four, left-handed pitcher whom the scouts were calling the star of the draft. Bordley, a strikeout sensation who was 26-2 for the University of Southern California over the last two seasons, was raised on the West Coast and dreamed of playing major league baseball there.

In fact, he loves the West Coast so much he wrote letters to the teams not in California, explaining that he preferred that those clubs not draft him.

In the letter, Bordley said he wanted a certain amount of money and some incentive bonuses. Joe Bowen, vice-president in charge of scouting for the Reds, said that Bordley's asking price was substantial and that one of the incentives was a bonus provided he reached the major leagues within a certain time.

Philadelphia, with the first pick in the secondary phase, listened to Bordley, but, instead, selected Mark Davis, a left-handed pitcher who struck out 191 batters in 96 1-3 innings in his senior year at Granada high school in Livermore, Calif. Shortly after picking Davis, the Phillies announced they had signed him to a contract.

Toronto, very concerned with Bordley's signability and not wanting to waste a first-round draft choice, picked Nattie George, an outfielder from San Jose, Calif. Then came Cincinnati's turn and Bordley was picked.

Left-handed pitchers appeared to be the prize picks with Davis and Bordley going first and third in the secondary phase and Neal Heaton, a southpaw flamethrower from Lake Ronkonkoma, N.Y., being picked by New York Mets as the No. 1 selection in the regular phase of the draft. The regular phase is for players never drafted before.

"A 300-year sentence is not so bad nowadays. With good behavior you can be out by August."

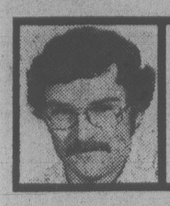
Winter Shows Deadly Side To Unwary and Careless



OUTDOORS
stewart lang

Winter is a time for fun, fellowship and good times in the outdoors.

At the same time, the season offers a wealth of peaceful solitude and muffled silence.

But people tend to forget that it can be deadly.

Over the past holiday season several lives were needlessly lost across Canada because of one basic reason.

The people in question weren't prepared for the conditions they encountered.

And, as we see, this same icy weather can even exist on Vancouver Island.

First in the order of preparedness is to acquire some basic knowledge. Most of the information about clothing and equipment can be gleaned from books but, especially if you're planning to cross-country ski in alpine terrain, a good course on winter survival is almost mandatory.

Strathcona Lodge offers a course that fits the bill exactly.

Inexperience and inadequate equipment were to blame for most of the recent slide and frost-bite incidents in the Rocky Mountains.

Cross-country skiers have been venturing out without adequate clothing or being prepared for the possibility of spending the night out. Many were unfamiliar with route finding in mountainous terrain and were unaware of the avalanche hazard.

Besides adequate clothing, matches and the ability to light a fire under adverse conditions are a necessity.

Even then, things can go wrong.

Last fall I couldn't get a fire to light about 600 feet below the summit of Mt. Arrowsmith because the one item which would have ensured success — a tube of fire ribbon — was in my other pack at home. All of the wood in the area was soaked to the core, a bitter wind was blowing and we were thoroughly chilled.

Even white gas from my backpacking stove couldn't ignite the wood which I'd chipped off the bottom of a dead tree limb. But the fire ribbon, which burns for a longer time at a controlled rate, would have dried the small bits of wood out sufficiently to get a fire going.

As it was, we were able to beat a hasty retreat and warmed up enough with the effort.

But what if someone had been injured?

All of which serves to demonstrate a point. Both the knowledge and equipment are interdependent.

Even straying from the main thoroughfares in the comfort of a vehicle has hidden hazards for the unwary.

If you do a lot of off-road travel, make sure your vehicle is equipped for the possibility of breaking down or getting stuck. In addition, ensure that all occupants of the vehicle are dressed for the weather conditions.

Without going to extremes, carry some tools, matches extra food and essential spare parts — such as fan belts, tape for repairing hoses, wire, tire repair kit, etc. — in your vehicle at all times.

In an emergency, most parts of your vehicle can be utilized for survival purposes.

The seats can be ripped apart and the stuffing used for insulation against the cold. You can start a fire by using your battery, battery cables and a small piece of cloth soaked with gasoline. But be careful to strike the sparks away from the both the battery and the engine compartment. Fumes from the battery and fuel vapour can both explode.

If you've broken down far enough out in the boondocks that a search party is probable, the spare tire can be first deflated and then ignited to provide a plume of black smoke.

The key is to improvise.

Blades Cut Down Buckaroos

Goalkeeper Brent Kneen made 37 stops Monday night to help Duncan Silver Park Blades to a 7-4 South Island Big Six Hockey League victory over second-place Western Homes Buckaroos at Memorial Arena.

Les Closson led Duncan with two goals. Singles were contributed by Larry Meyers, Larry Steinhauer, Earl Morris, Gary Galavan and Neil Galavan.

Neil Paolone (2), Stan Alstad and Cam McIntyre replied for Bucks, who outshot Blades, 41-30.

Allan Shelled

Esquimalt Legion netminder Ron Allan came up with an outstanding display Tuesday but Saanich Braves still collected a 5-3 decision in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Pearkes Arena.

Allan faced 58 shots in the Patterson Division tussle and helped keep Esquimalt close throughout the game. The Legion club trailed by period scores of 1-0 and 3-2.

Reid's Hoop Gives Totems Narrow Win

Will Reid sank a two-pointer with three seconds left on the clock to give flu-riddled Victoria High Totems a 67-65 squeeker over Stelly's Stingers in a Greater Victoria High School Boys' Basketball struggle Tuesday night.

Coach Ash Valdal had to go the entire game with only five forwards, two playing back in the unaccustomed guard spots. All the Totem guards were sick.

In other games, Oak Bay Bays tripped Claremont Spartans 86-37, Parkland Panthers bounced Belmont Braves 68-49 and Esquimalt Dockers edged Dunsmuir Demons, 49-44.

Terry Harris dunked 21 points to set the over-all pace for Totems while Darren Alexander chipped in 16. Dan Barney (16) and John Kristiansen (15) lead Stinger marksmen.

Bays were led by a 22-point performance from Randy Hess and Cliff Reece helped out with 14.

Quinn Groenhyde struck for 30 points and Dexter Williams hit for 20 to lead the Parkland attack. Steve Salt (14) and Vince Tule (10) were high for Braves.

Esquimalt's offence was led by Greg Webber (18) and Andy Aylesworth (13) while Dean St. Pierre counted 20 points in a losing cause for Dunsmuir.

In Girls' League play, Spectrum hammered Reynolds 57-39, Oak Bay bounced Claremont 56-30 and Victoria Tigers downed Stelly's, 46-34.

Heather Boyd (18) and Teresa Boyd (15) were the top guns for Spectrum, which led 29-18 at half time, while Karen McComber dunked 25 points for Reynolds.

Oak Bay, which held a 30-16 advantage at the half, was led the the 16-point display of Heather Benson. Mona McIvor had 10 for Claremont.

Brigid Flynn (14) and Janet Lorimer (13) led Tigers.

PATERA SELECTED COACH OF YEAR

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Patera, who came within a whisker of guiding Seattle Seahawks into the playoffs in only their third year in the National Football League, has been named 1978 coach of the year by The Associated Press.

Patera, whose Seahawks finished the year at 9-7 and in a three-way tie with Oakland and San Diego for second place in the American Conference West, received 25 of 84 ballots by a nation-wide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, three from each league city.

Walt Michaels, who turned the New York Jets' fortunes around in his second year as their head coach, was a close second with 21 votes, followed by Dick Vermeil of Philadelphia Eagles with 13 and Bum Phillips of Houston Oilers with nine.

Nicklaus In, Watson Out Of Bob Hope Golf Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The lure of record purses—$13 million spread over a 10-month schedule—is reflected in the crowded field for the Bob Hope Desert Classic, the kickoff event for the 1979 PGA Tour.

For the first time in many years, possibly the first time ever, there were no qualifying spots available for non-exempt players. The 128-man field was filled entirely by men holding exemptions from qualifying. And this, of course, resulted in what is almost certainly the strongest lineup in the 20-year history of the Hope.

High on the list is Jack Nicklaus, making one of his rare appearances in the marathon event that started a five-day run today on four desert golf courses. The unique format calls for each pro to play one round on all four courses, each day with a different three-man team of amateurs, before Sunday's final round at Indian Wells.

Included among the celebrity amateurs is the team composed of Hope, former president Gerald Ford and actor Clint Eastwood. They'll play one round each with defending champion Bill Rogers, Dr. Gil Morgan, Lee Elder and Hubert Green.

It will be the first of a minimum nine pro-am appearances in tour events by Ford, who is listed with a 15 handicap.

Nicklaus, who won the British and Australian opens last season in an abbreviated schedule, plans to trim his tour appearances even more this season and may make this his only stop on the West Coast.

He indicated he would use the event as the first step in his preparations for the Masters, his first big target of the season.

Tom Watson, the man who is making a challenge to Nicklaus for world golf supremacy, is skipping the event and won't open his 1979 schedule for a couple of weeks.

In addition to Nicklaus, however, the field includes such standouts as PGA champion John Mahaffey and U.S. Open title-holder Andy North, who made up the United States' winning World Cup team, plus Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw, Jerry Pate, Dave Stockton, Lanny Wadkins and Johnny Miller, who used this event as a key to his domination of the game a few years ago.

The tournament carries a $275,000 value, with $50,000 going to the winner, reflecting the approximate 30-percent increase in tour purses this year.

NBC-TV will televise portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Part-Timers Tie Charlton

LONDON (AP) — Upsets marked play in the third round of the English Football Association Cup soccer matches Tuesday night.

The biggest surprise was at Charlton, where the Second Division team was held to a 1-1 tie by Maidstone United, a team of part-timers from the regional Southern League.

Two First Division teams were eliminated by opponents from lower divisions. Birmingham bowed 2-0 to Burnley of the Second Division, while Fulham, another Second Division team, upset the Queens Park Rangers 2-0.

In the opening round at 6:30 p.m., Gord Carmichael of Victoria Club, a finalist in the B.C. mixed last year, takes on Gary Leibel of Victoria Club, a Brier competitor 20 years ago, in the feature match-up while in the second draw at 9 p.m. Barry Harvey of Playland meets Bob Hawkes of the Racquet Club and Bart Longmore of Playland tangles with Steve Skillings of Victoria Club.

Not only that, but the winners of the Harvey/Hawkes game and the Longmore/Skillings test meet in the first draw Saturday morning.

Thirty rinks are entered in the South playdowns while 21 are entered in the North. Victoria Club leads with 12 entries, Playland has eight, the Racquet Club five, Juan de Fuca four and Mill Bay one.

Both halves of the draw are [illegible]. For besides the two games previously mentioned in the lower half, other highly regarded rinks in that portion are skipped by Keith Dagg, Harvey Hodge, Al Frame and Len Stewart.

In the top half are the likes of Brad Clarke, Bruce Coulter, Don Matheson and Bob Gallaugher of the more-favored foursomes in addition to Leibel and Carmichael.

Jim Fennell of VCC has Jack MacBeath and Dave Skipsey to go with holdover Ken Wardell at second and Harvey has a completely new group of Ernie Hawkins and third, and the Kirbys, Cole and Rip, on the front end.

Tim Horrigan, who won the other South Island berth last year, is in Vancouver this year and not entered.

Dagg, Horrigan and Skillings qualified from the Island for the Pacific Coast Curling championships in 1978.

Skillings, who qualified through the Totem, has Murray Walker at third, Rob Cummings at second and Kim Browning at lead.

Four rinks will qualify out of the competition in the Island final at Lake Cowichan, Jan. 26-28, against four from the North Island with two berths in the eight-rink PCCA final at Duncan, Feb. 2-4 as the prize.

Other draw times are Saturday at 10 a.m. and 1, 6 and 9 p.m. and Sunday at 9 a.m., 12 noon and 3 p.m.

Connors May Force Tennis Council Surrender

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors, the world's top-ranked tennis player, turned thumbs down on the new Grand Prix rules Tuesday and vowed to pass up the 93-tournament schedule for 1979, including Wimbledon, the United States Open and other traditional events.

"A few others feel the same way I do, pretty important players, I would say," the game's volatile firebrand told an informal press conference at Madison Square Garden, setting off the $400,000 Grand Prix Masters.

JIMMY CONNORS
. . . threatens boycott

Without specifying, Connors intimated he was talking about Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg, Guillermo Vilas, Davis Cup star John McEnroe and a handful of others who dominate the men's game.

The current Masters Tournament is not immediately affected since it is the final of the 1978 campaign. The rich event will go on as scheduled in the Garden's Felt Forum, starting Wednesday, with Connors seeded No. 1.

Connors originally declined to play in the Masters. He, Borg and Vilas all asked advance bonus money, which was refused. Connors finally yielded.

Borg, the young Swede who has won three consecutive Wimbledons, and Vilas, the moody Argentine who won 50 consecutive matches in 1977, preferred to stay out, as did Vitas Geralaitis, another of the world's top four.

It was this virtual boycott of the Grand Prix's finale that provoked tennis's ruling Pro Council to announce new standards for 1979 which would compel all players to sign up for the Grand Prix in advance and agree to play in a minimum of six tournaments designated by the council.

"My schedule is made by me and for myself," Connors insisted. "I don't intend to let anyone tell me when and where I have to play. When I commit myself to a tournament I do so with the intention of playing seven days. If I play three in a row, I am bushed by the time the next week comes up. I may be selfish, but I have my pride to think of."

The Pro Tennis Council, a 10-man body headed by Bob Briner, was holding frantic sessions in an effort to break the stalemate.

While the body had the support of a majority of the touring pros, it appeared obvious that no tournament schedule could be a success without Connors, Borg, Vilas and McEnroe, the biggest names in the game.

A compromise was being sought. Connors, however, was so adamant that it seemed certain the council would be forced to surrender and offer a less restrictive plan.

The first tournament affected would be the Grand Prix in Birmingham, Ala., next week.

The Council announced the new rules this week, saying that 175 bonus points would be awarded all players signing in advance.

Of the eight players in the Grand Prix, Arthur Ashe, Brian Gottfried, Eddie Dibbs, Harold Solomon and Raul Ramirez all signed. Connors, McEnroe and Italy's Corrado Barazzutti demurred.

Major Recitals Stack Back To Back

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Scheduling of major recitals by Victoria Conservatory of Music has become so tight this season that events are not merely brushing elbows but are jostling each other back to back.

Thursday is an excellent example. In the Conservatory's small recital room in Craigdarroch Castle, faculty members Derry Deane, violinist, and Kathleen Solose, pianist, will perform a program of works by Mozart, Bartok, Faure and Suk, starting at 8 p.m.

At the same time, at the nearby Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, the Conservatory will present violist Elizabeth Butler who has been studying and working abroad for some time.

She will be assisted by pianist Anne Crose in a recital of works by Dittersdorf, Schumann, Bloch, Glazunov, Honegger and Enesco.

Butler is a former student of Sydney Humphreys at the Conservatory. She continued her studies in London and graduated from the Royal Academy of Music in 1976. Recently she has been studying with Pierot Farulli of the Quartetto Italiano in Florence, Italy.

She teaches violin and viola at King's School in Canterbury and has scheduled a series of duo recitals with pianist Allen Reiser, a former student of Robin Wood, in London this spring.

Concert master of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, Deane has done seven tours of Europe and has recorded on the radio of many countries, including three appearances on Radio Netherlands, Radio Norway and Educational Television in Singapore. A world tour included far and middle-east countries as well as Czechoslovakia, Holland and Norway.

She has been artist-in-residence at several U.S. universities, participated in major music festivals and was for three years professor of violin and co-concertmaster of the Guadalajara Symphony. In that country she played more than 40 recitals and was frequently a guest soloist with the Guadalajara and Jalapa symphonies.

W.GERMAN JAILED

EAST BERLIN (Reuter) — A West German was sentenced Monday to 11 years in prison for helping East Germans flee to the West and for directing the operations of an escape aid organization. Klaus-Peter Lang had been found guilty of recruiting agents for the Hamburg-based organization and of obtaining specially-prepared cars for smuggling people over the border into West Germany.

New Music Head

Canada Council's music section has a new leader to succeed Hugh Davidson who has gone to an overseas post.

Charles Lussier, director of Canada Council, announced this week the appointment of Franz Kraemer, well-known music producer and director. He will be responsible for administering the music program and advising the Council on initiatives and policies in the area.

Vienna-born, Kraemer was a composition pupil of Alban Berg and Anton Webern. He immigrated to Canada in 1940 and is now a Canadian citizen.

After study at the Royal Conservatory of music in Toronto, Kraemer joined the CBC International Service in Montreal. Later he transferred to CBC Television in Toronto where he became a producer of music, drama and public affairs.

Over 20 years he has been responsible for producing and directing a large number of operas and dramas as well as the Stravinsky "birthday specials" and musical programs with the National Ballet, Glenn Gould, Seiji Ozawa, Joan Sutherland, and the Toronto Symphony.

In 1975 and '76 he was a member of the advisory board of Canada Council Touring Office. Kraemer will take up his new duties April 2.

Processing Of Cheques Shows Boost

Value of cheques and other payments processed through Victoria area banks during November totalled $4,331,000, up from $3,201,000 in the same month one year earlier.

In October, 1978, the total had been $3,873,000.

The figures, provided by the Canadian Bankers Association, include all activity except cheques drawn on the Bank of Canada, the federal government and between the banks themselves.

Before the Judge

A 38-year-old woman facing charges of attempted murder and wounding with intent was remanded in custody for the second day in a row when she appeared in provincial court Tuesday.

Mary Ann Amadio of 30 Hartland is charged in connection with the Sunday night stabbing of Grace MacKay, 58, of 121 Hartland.

Judge F.S. Green ordered the remand until Thursday afternoon to allow a psychiatric examination of the accused before he can reach a decision on bail.

A man found it even more costly than he had last February with his continued refusal to file income tax returns for 1972, 1974 and 1976.

"I just can't understand you being in this position for the second time," said Judge Green after fining Leonard Nielsen, 2532 Vancouver, $850 after he failed to file the returns when requested last June.

The court was told Nielsen had been convicted last year for the same offence covering the same three years under the Income Tax Act and subsequently fined $600.

Green warned Nielsen that "any court would be considering inprisonment" if he found himself in court again on the same charge.

Nielsen said he had been too busy to file the returns but that he would now do so with the assistance of an accountant.

A 17-year-old motorcyclist was fined $75 and placed on two months probation after pleading guilty to wilful damage during a spin around a municipally-owned lawn in the 400-block Cecelia on Sept. 10.

Kenneth Thynne, 400 Dupplin, rode a borrowed motorcycle on the grass and caused $50 damage. He was ordered to make restitution to the city of Victoria.

Fined on drinking-driving charges were: Florence McDougall, 34, of 213 Cottier Place, $350; Murray Smith, 20, of Port Renfrew, $500.

Sewer Fight Aired Privately

Esquimalt council will meet in camera Monday to discuss the municipality's legal position regarding a faulty sewer installation in a five-year-old condominium.

Works committee was told by engineer Mac Campbell the building's owners — the strata title corporation — should be resonsible for the estimated $12,000 repairs.

But chairman Ken Hill said he thinks the municipality has a moral responsibility to assist the owners, even though there may be no legal onus. Ald. Larry Mann agreed.

An investigation also is being conducted by the Capital Region Health Board.

Suite owner Ruth Davis complained that for 15 months the sewer had been causing trouble by backing up into an area adjoining her basement apartment, but the situation had existed prior to her entry.

FORLORN SIGHT alongside the Ogden Point docks is the ocean-going tug Euphoric, lines slackened but going nowhere. The Panamanian-registered tug has been here since Nov. 7. Her crew has long since been flown home and won't return until another job for their vessel has been lined up.

Sunday Drinks: No Hurry Seen

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen said Tuesday he is not opposed to sensible Sunday drinking, but he's not convinced opening pubs and lounges on that day is a matter of urgency.

Nielsen was responding to an appeal by the B.C. Hotels Association to loosen up Sunday drinking laws in order to bolster the provincial econpomy.

Sunday drinking in B.C. would keep money at home, create more jobs and generate more revenue for the drinking establishments, Noble contends.

He said he intends to make a personal appeal to Nielsen for changes in the law at a meeting in the next week or two.

Nielsen says he has no objections in principle to Sunday drinking if it is done in a sensible way. He pointed out drinks can be obtained on Sunday with restaurant meals.

Noble's request is not out of line, he said, "but their arguments may not be as convincing to me as they are to them."

He indicated opening lounges on Sunday would likely be more palatable to him than allowing the huge beer parlors to serve on Sundays.

He said the association's position that a lot of money goes to the U.S. on Sundays may be accurate but said he's not convinced people go there solely to drink.

"For a lot of people it's a Sunday outing. I'm not sure they would go to a Vancouver beer parlor instead," he said.

The government position is not to convince people to drink more, he said.

"And we won't flog drinking as a salvation of the economy," he said, adding there are incalculable social costs from drinking to be taken into consideration.

Freighter Posts Crash Bond

VANCOUVER (CP) — The owner of a Greek-registered freighter which collided in the harbor Monday night with a tug-boat that later sank put up a $650,000 bond in the Federal Court of Canada Tuesday to allow it to leave the country.

The bond follows the arrest of the 166-metre Telendos requested by Egmont Towing and Sorting Ltd. of Vancouver, whose 14-metre tug Storm Crest was sitting in 18 metres of water in the narrow harbor entrance. It was to be raised today.

The tug's two crew members were treated in hospital in North Vancouver for exposure after the tug sank and they spent a chilling 15 minutes in the harbor's icy waters. Bruce Teenand, 25, and John Davies, 50, both of Sydney, were later released.

Jack Cunningham, lawyer for Egmont, said the civil action was launched to establish the court's jurisdiction before the ship left Canadian waters.

Egmont told the court the collision one kilometre east of the Lions Gate Bridge occurred solely through the negligence of those on board the Telendos, who failed to keep a proper lookout and control of the ship and didn't keep out of the tug's path.

Peach Crop Hit By Cold

VERNON (CP) — Part of the Okanagan Valley peach crop appears to have been destroyed by recent cold weather, John Price, district horticulturist, said Tuesday.

Price said tests of peach trees in the Oyama, Winfield and Kelowna areas showed only 10 to 15 per cent of the dormant fruit buds were still alive.

He said there has been only slight damage reported to peach trees in Summerland and no damage so far reported in the Oliver area.

Price said he expects the grape crop also may be affected.

Assurances On Hospital

Health Minister Bob McClelland Monday assured a medical delegation from Bella Coola the government is still willing to participate in construction of new hospital facilities as long as it has the support of local taxpayers.

The antiquated existing structure built in 1929 has been condemned by fire, electrical and health authorities.

Under the existing sharing formula, the province would pick up 80 per cent of the estimated $1.4 million needed for the new 15-bed wing, but the remainder would have to come from regional district taxpayers through the regional hospital board.

But because of the small tax base in the area, the local share would be well over four mills, McClelland said.

The minister said he wants to be assured local participation is behind the project before giving final ministerial approval.

McClelland said he approved $600,000 toward a new wing in 1976, but for one reason and another, the project never got off the ground.

Now the price tag has risen to $1.4 million, and the minister wants action.

Pacific Press Parties See No Magic Wand

VANCOUVER (CP) — The introduction of a union troubleshooting team into the 10-week strike-lockout at Pacific Press Ltd., won't necessarily mean a quick resumption of negotiations, spokesmen for all parties said Tuesday.

The Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild said that Chuck Dale, an international representative of The Newspaper Guild, and Allan Heritage, a Canadian vice-president of the International Typographers Union, are expected to arrive here next week.

Both men were here during the three month-strike in 1970 and again during a strike in 1972.

"I don't know if it will get talks going again or not," said Jim Young, guild executive secretary. "They certainly don't have a magic wand or crystal ball."

He said the two were deeply involved in settling the recent newspaper strike in New York. They will study all aspects of the dispute here "to see if they can find something we're overlooking."

Pacific Press, which produces the morning Province and evening Sun, has been shut down since Nov. 1 when two of six unions went on strike and the other four unions were locked out. About 1,400 workers are off the job.

A cooling-off period for negotiations was declared Dec. 4. Mediator Peter Dowding said no new talks have been scheduled and he had no idea whether the presence of the two men would effect a resumption of talks.

A press manning clause, which determines how many pressmen are on a given shift, has been a stumbling block in negotiations.

Libel Settlement

VANCOUVER (CP) — A libel action by the former head of the Law Society of British Columbia against The Vancouver Sun and its columnist Allan Fotheringham has been settled out of court, the lawyer for Mary Southin said Tuesday.

John Steaves said all parties to the action had reached an agreement out of court, but would not reveal further details of the settlement.

Part of the agreement included an apology by Fotheringham and Sun Publishing Co. Ltd., which was read in B.C. Supreme Court Monday.

The apology said that a column in the Sun last June 10 stated Ms. Southin had sent a bill to provincial court Judge Les Bewley for representing him before the Judicial Council of B.C., contrary to the standards and customs of the legal profession.

$800M in Tourism

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tourism will bring $800 million to the Vancouver area in 1979, Hugh Main, general manager of the Greater Vancouver Convention and Visitors' Bureau, said Tuesday. Main said the volume of tourists should be up by about six per cent from last year.

Strikes Spread

BURNABY (CP) — Rotating strikes by office employees at Simon Fraser University spread Tuesday after contract negotiations failed on Monday. John Wood of the Association of University and College Employees said AUCE lowered its demands in saying it would accept a two-year contract but the university refused to budge on its wage offer. The university has offered a two-per-cent wage increase in the first year and a four-per-cent increase in the second.

Mine Still Closed

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — The Noranda Mines Ltd. operation at Boss Mountain east of here remained shut down Tuesday following a walkout by 135 employees Friday, which mines manager Garth Lee has claimed is illegal. A Steelworkers spokesman said unsafe conditions at the mine prompted the walkout.

Second Fatality

LANGLEY (CP) — RCMP said today that a second person is dead as the result of a fire Tuesday in a senior citizen's home.

Gordon McKay, 74, died in hospital later Tuesday. Williamina Dunn, 93, was dead on arrival at hospital.

Mushroom Farm Fire

BURNABY (CP) — More than 40 firemen battled a three-alarm fire at a mushroom farm in this Vancouver-area muncipality for two hours before it was brought under control early Tuesday.

RCMP said Cariboo Road was closed to traffic for about 12 hours because of the smoke.

Ed Hlabach, co-owner of the farm, said the fire may have started in the boiler room, where the furnace is kept on to keep the mushrooms warm.

NDP Rapped Over MB

Premier Bill Bennett said Tuesday the NDP is feeding market speculation by suggesting that the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. might buy MacMillan Bloedel (MB) to prevent the Vancouver-based forest products company from being taken over by Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. (CPI).

But the premier again refused to confirm or deny that the government is buying or considering buying MB shares.

Bennett said politicians must avoid making speculative statements that add to stock market uncertainty.

The premier said he was referring to the NDP, "whose statements are given validity, even if they are in the opposition and even if they are only looking for a cheap headline."

Asked if he was ruling out a government purchase of MB, Bennett told reporters they were "asking for the very type of speculation that would create that sort of anticipation."

Under terms of the CPI takeover bid, MB shareholders will be able to sell out to CPI for $28 a share. They would also have the choice of trading each MB share for a convertible preferred share in CPI.

The preferred shares carry no voting power.

Bennett held a special cabinet meeting on the MB situation Dec. 28, then told a news conference that proposals to take over MB were not acceptable to the B.C. government.

LAW ADS BACKED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The ban against advertising by lawyers in B.C. hampers the ability of consumers to shop around and compare rates, the former provincial deputy minister of consumer and corporate affairs told B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday.

Tex Enemark told Justice Albert Mackoff that lawyers who specialize in particular areas of law should be allowed to advertise their rates.

Advertising would tell consumers which lawyer would best suit their needs, he testified, adding that standards should be set that lawyers must meet before publicizing their speciality.

Enemark was testifying in a suit brought against the Law Society of B.C. by North Vancouver lawyer Don Jabour, who has asked the court to rule that the society's ban on advertising contravenes the federal Combines Investigation Act.

The suit follows a decision by a law society committee that ads taken out by Jabour following the opening of his legal clinic last year constituted action unbecoming a lawyer.

Sex Sold Costly Lessons

OTTAWA (CP) — Sex and psychology were the main weapons used by the Fred Astaire Dance Studio to sell $300,000 worth of dance lessons in 29 weeks, provincial court was told Tuesday.

Ted Gulliver, assistant Crown attorney, told Judge Jean-Marie Bordeleau it was disconcerting just how far the organization and its affiliated Single Mingle Club would go to sell dance lessons.

The two organizations and club executive Nancy Lee — also known as Nancy Kester — are charged with 32 offenses under the provincial Business Practices Act of using undue pressure, exaggeration, deceit and misrepresentation on patrons.

Bordeleau was expected to pass judgment today.

In two days of testimony, court has been told the ability to dance was the least necessary requirement of an instructor. What was needed most was the ability to convince patrons to buy more and more of the services offered by the company.

After four free teaser lessons, pressure was applied on the members to buy a general program for $800, a bronze program for $6,000, Patron Club membership for $3,000, an exhibition dancing certificate for $1,700 and entry in a so-called dance Olympics at $800.

Former instructor Mike MacDonald testified Monday that instructors were advised to use body contact to sell contracts and in some cases had sex with club members to increase sales.

He said most members were recently separated or divorced or had otherwise lost their spouse before joining the Single Mingle Club — a pseudonym for the dance studio.

He said the ideal student was "realy, really lonely" and with access to large amounts of money.

Court was told Tuesday that patrons were usually in a state of emotional crisis when they joined the Single Mingle Club where they were complimented and flattered whether they could dance or not.

In some cases, court was told, patrons were made to feel inadequate so they would spend more money. having done this, the patrons then were praised and made to feel more worthy, including receiving flowers and direct personal and physical comforting.

While one 55-year-old divorced woman said "they mesmerized me" into signing up for $15,000 worth of lessons and memberships, a 42-year-old single mother of two told of spending $600 and a 48-year-old divorced woman said she spent $10,000.

The mother of two said the instructors advised her to sell her house to help pay for the lessons.

CHRYSLER SUED, PAYS FOR SPOTS OF RUST

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Perseverance and a four-year battle brought a Niagara Falls couple a total of $200 Monday in small claims court — and it was all over a car's little rust spots that just wouldn't go away.

Lisa and Dennis Fare had claimed $500 in damages for a 1974 Chrysler demonstrator they bought in January, 1975.

The couple told the court they noticed rust spots within a month of purchasing the car.

They said they had it repainted at the lot that sold them the car, only to see the spots reappearing again. The car lot agreed to touch them up.

Mrs. Fare said she began writing to Chrysler in 1976 but a service representative did not appear until December, 1977.

The problem, she said, was that the warranty expired in 1975 and even though she had starting complaining before the expiry date, she was told nothing could be done because the warranty was up.

The Fares took both the dealer and Chrysler of Canada Ltd. to court and Chrysler was found to be responsible for payment.

Chrysler was ordered to pay the couple $170 plus a $30 court cost.

Indians to Protest Cuts in Aid

By BILL LEVITT
Canadian Press

OTTAWA — Indian leaders have promised that 1979 will be a year of demonstration and unrest as the country's 300,000 treaty Indians fight to preserve rights they say are being eroded by federal action.

And they haven't waited long to make good that promise.

-Mohawks near Cornwall, Ont., set up a toll gate for five hours Sunday to collect $1 each from motorists for an emergency health fund they said was needed because of recent federal cuts.

-Mohawks from the Caughnawaga reserve say they will boycott stores in nearby Chateauguay, Que., Friday if the federal government does not fulfill a promise to finance the reserve high school.

-An Indian leader recently threatened to dig up the remains of Sir John A. MacDonald, one of the Fathers of Confederation, to protest alleged desecration of Indian burial grounds.

"There is anger amongst Indian people . . . and we are going to show the government through demonstrations that we are not satisfied," Joe Dion, president of the Indian Association of Alberta, said Tuesday in an interview.

Chief Andrew Delisle of Caughnawaga said: "We're serious. We've waited for government officials to iron out the problems but we keep getting the runaround."

Both said the health of the 300,000 treaty Indians across the country is below the national standard, education is poor and unemployment is rampant on reserves.

But Health Minister Monique Begins' decision last fall to charge Indians for glasses, dentures, drugs and transportation — which had been provided free — has led to a country-wide protest.

A delegation of 30 Maritime chiefs confronted Miss Begin here last month following a Commons committee meeting, Prairie Indian associations called for her resignation and opposition parties attacked the policy in the Commons.

The Indians argue that the federal government is responsible for Indians under the British North America Act.

But the government counters that the BNA act is ambiguous, covering "Indians and Indian lands" and not specifying health care.

The Indians say health care is a matter of right through aboriginal rights, historical treaties and the trust relationship with the federal government.

"It's the trust relationship that has screwed the Indians," said one spokesman. "Now that they have taken all we have, they don't need it anymore."

Dion said Indians ceded land to the Crown without a great fight in exchange for certain guarantees including health and education.

Trudeau Opposes Trip for Royalty

TORONTO — Prime Minister Trudeau has refused to support Ontario's invitation to the Queen Mother to visit other parts of the province when she is here June 30 to attend the running of the Queen's Plate.

The Canadian Press has learned that Premier William Davis received a letter this week from Ottawa saying the federal government has decided not to support the government of Ontario's invitation for the Queen Mother to visit Hamilton and Windsor.

Davis wrote Lt.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon last July, asking her to communicate with the governor-general to invite the Queen Mother for short visits to Hamilton and Windsor, promising a leisurely pace throughout the itinerary.

The Queen Mother would have been invited to attend a garden party in Windsor at a park she and her husband, the late King George VI, had seen on a visit in 1939.

Pipe of Peace Needed in Hythe

HYTHE Alta. (CP) — Fighting has occurred between Indians from the Horse Lake reserve and non-natives ever since the Edmonton Journal printed a story about three weeks ago headlined The Black Hole of Hythe.

Hythe is about 470 kilometres northwest of Edmonton. The story talked about native housing problems and featured an emergency housing trailer which at one time this year was home for 29 persons.

"I am not sure if this (fighting) has been caused as a result of the story—we've never had any problem with white people in Hythe before," Chief Jim Horseman of the Horse Lake band said Thursday.

He said residents of the reserve have been involved in several scuffles and fights with non-natives at the Hythe Pioneer hotel during the last three weeks.

Charges have been laid in connection with a number of the incidents.

Someone involved in one of the fights set a bar door on fire last week, said Alma Henderson, hotel assistant manager.

"We have had more trouble now than we did before. I don't know if it has to do with that (the story) or not."

Talk among both groups indicates the story has something to do with the current trouble, both Mrs. Henderson and Chief Horseman said.

Mrs. Henderson said there had been arguing between Indians and whites in the past, but not with the amount of trouble experienced recently.

"I certainly hope this comes to an end," she said. "All people from the reserve are pretty friendly and Chief Horseman keeps the peace. He is a good man."

Chief Horseman said: "I felt we were getting along fairly well. That is why we (the band) donated $5,000 towards the Hythe swimming pool. We are using the indoor ice facilities at Hythe as our home arena."

Some Hythe residents played on the reserve's fastball team last summer. Several have played on the Horse Lake hockey team.

Store owners in Hythe have set discounts on merchandise bought for prizes in bingo games at the reserve.

There may be a small number of people in Hythe who do not get along with Indian people, but that "small amount" is the same anywhere, Chief Horseman said.

From Jets to Shopping Carts?

CALGARY (CP) — It's been more than a year since Calgary International Airport closed its former McCall Field terminal and moved into newer, larger facilities at the opposite end of the airport property.

The original terminal, which opened in 1956 to the roar of DC-3 engines, still has some limited use, but not for passengers.

The weather office and several general aviation offices are located on its second floor, but the lower floor is deserted, stripped of everything that was portable. It resembles a building frozen in time.

A small blackboard announces the departure of a United Airways Jet to Seattle at 9 p.m. MST on Nov. 29, 1977.

A dozen arrival and departure gates have been put in mothballs, provided with just enough heat to keep machinery from freezing. Baggage tags and dirt coats concrete floors.

A $2.5-million elevated corridor to allow for jet parking remains, despite promises during construction in 1969 that its most attractive feature was that it could be dismantled and moved to other airports.

Airport manager Bill Watts, who will retire in April, says the cost of dismantling it and moving it to another site would be more than the original cost.

McCall Field's owner, the ministry of transport, have entertained a number of ideas for eventual disposal of the building, but the plan which has received the most interest is from Air-Age Distributors to convert the terminal into a shopping mall, with dealers in aviation products setting up shop throughout the terminal.

Watts, airport manager since 1960, says that when the original airport opened, people thought it was one of Canada's best, but 10 years later, it was not good enough.

Bison Sell for $739

The bison were sold to four Alberta ranches and two from Quebec for an average price of $739.09 a head. The sale was part of a program to trim a herd of 600 bison to protect the grazing capacity of the 80-square-kilometre park, located 30 kilometres east of here.

Ed Henderson of the park's warden service said Thursday the herd was last trimmed five years ago. At that time the animals sold for an average of $500 a head. Since then demand for buffalo meat has risen.

"There's a great demand for buffalo by the big hotels," Henderson said in an interview. "They serve them to business people at large banquets."

Detectors Praised

EDMONTON (CP) — Increased use of smoke detectors is responsible for the reduction in city fire deaths to seven last year from 19 in 1977, says Fire Chief Louis Day.

But sprinkler systems "in every building" are also needed in, Day told city council's economic affairs committee. Only six city high-rises are equipped with sprinklers.

Day told the committee installation of sprinklers would reduce the fire department's need for new equipment.

Hope for Teachers

EDMONTON (CP) — The grim job prospects for Alberta teachers may brighten in three to four years, says Patti Browne, assistant dean of admissions for education at the University of Alberta.

The faculty admitted only 490 first-year students this year compared with 648 in 1977.

If enrolment slides 20 per cent again in 1979, there could be a shortage of teachers in three to four years, Browne said in a recent interview.

Faculty officials had set a quota of 600 on the first-year class, but publicity about poor job prospects kept applications to fewer than 500.

Fewer Acres Burned

EDMONTON (CP) — Although there were more forest fires in Alberta in 1978 than the year before, there were fewer total acres affected, the Alberta Forest Service reports.

Last year, there were 657 fires affecting 19,118 acres, while in 1977 there were 556 fires which affected 24,506 acres.

SERVANT PENSION HIKE

EDMONTON (CP) — Retired Alberta public servants will get a 6.5-per-cent pension increase effective this month, Provincial Treasurer Merv Leitch announced today.

The cabinet approved the increase Tuesday for about 10,000 retired provincial, municipal, hospital and university workers and members of the legislature.

A similar increase will go to retired teachers as part of a provincial policy that adjusts pensions to compensate for inflation.

Leitch said the full 6.5-per-cent increase will go to pensioners who have been retired for a year or more. Employees who retired in 1978 will receive a proportionate increase.

The pensions were last increased a year ago, by six per cent.

Tourists Lured by Weak $

By CAROL GOAR
Canadian Press

OTTAWA — Recent travel statistics indicate the country may be on the verge of a turn-around in its nagging travel deficit with the rest of the world, thanks mainly to a weak Canadian dollar.

Statistics for the last few months indicate Canadians have noticeably curtailed their foreign trips while more visitors are entering the country.

Government spokesmen privately admit the long-awaited improvement has little to do with Finance Minister Jean Chretien's exhortations to vacation at home. The department is more or less resigned to the prospect of a perennial winter migration to the United States, said one official.

But they say Canadians and non-U.S. tourists have finally begun to react to last year's 15-per-cent drop in the value of the Canadian dollar compared to its U.S. counterpart.

But the improvement, they say, has come too late in the year to avoid the largest travel deficit in history — several million dollars higher than the 1977-78 $1.64 billion record deficit.

Unofficial government forecasts put the 1978-79 international travel deficit at $1.7 billion and the 1979-80 deficit between $1.5 billion and $1.6 billion.

During the third quarter of the current fiscal year, the country's deficit in international travel, which had been running at an annual level of $1.78 billion since the beginning of the year, dropped to $1.70 billion.

The change was almost entirely due to a shift in travel patterns between Canada and foreign countries other than the United States. While travel with the U.S. showed little change, Statistics Canada recorded a 17.6-per-cent increase in overseas visits by the end of last November compared with the same 11 months of 1977. During the same period, Canadian trips abroad increased bs just 1.1 per cent.

Latest monthly statistics show a 2.4-per-cent drop in Canadian visits abroad during November.

"We're forecasting an even more significant cut in the volume of foreign travel in the future," said a finance official. "Overseas travel is highly responsive to price changes."

A Statistics Canada spokesman put it this way: "There's been a real reversal in travel patterns. The Canadian dollar really looks good to foreign travellers. They're taking advantage of bargain prices."

Canadians were much slower to react to the decreased valued value of their dollar abroad by postponing or cancelling foreign travel plans. But there was evidence they finally decided late last year that overseas holidays were becoming too expensive.

Government officials privately acknowledge they see little chance of improving the travel deficit with the U.S., which reached $750 million last year. Almost three-quarters of the country's travel receipts are from the U.S. and two-thirds of its travel dollars are spent there.

"Let's face it," said a finance spokesman. "Canada doesn't have a Florida or a Hawaii."

Taylor Clarifies Mackasey Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada president Claude Taylor said Tuesday he met Bryce Mackasey last month to discuss the reduced role Mackasey will play when he becomes chairman of the airline's board on Feb. 1.

"To clear up any misunderstanding which may exist, Mr. Mackasey and I met prior to his appointment and we agreed on the separate but complementary roles we each would play in the new Air Canada organization," Taylor said in a written statement.

Management changes in the Crown-owned airline mean that Mackasey, a veteran Liberal politician, will act as chairman of the 15-member board and adviser to the president, but he will not carry out the added authority vested in out-going chairman Pierre Taschereau.

"Mr. Taschereau had assumed certain additional responsibilities because of his background on the Canadian transport commission and as a transportation lawyer," Taylor's statement said.

Taylor added that Air Canada might find Mackasey an extra role "suited to his unique background and talents . . . in particular, he will provide guidance to the company on its social and political responsibilities and purposes."

Airline spokesmen refused comment on a report that Taylor told Transport Minister Otto Lang he would quit unless changes were made in the chairman's function.

Taylor continues as chief executive officer and takes charge of legal affairs and the airline's subsidiary operations, jobs that until now were handled by Taschereau.

Curbs on U.S. TV Not Viewers' Wish

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians will oppose bitterly any further restrictions on their viewing of American television stations, says the Canadian Cable Television Association.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) now has a policy of allowing no more than four U.S. stations on regular cable channels — the three major networks and a public broadcasting service.

"We do not believe the objectives of the (Canadian) broadcasting system can be achieved by the restriction of viewing alternatives," the cable operators said in a brief to a committee established by Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve.

The committee is to make recommendations to the minister on the future of telecommunications in Canada.

The cable companies cited CBC figures showing that 74 per cent of the viewing hours of Canadian audiences are devoted to watching American programming, either on or off cable.

Luring Canadians into watching Canadian-made programs could be achieved in part by the introduction of pay television here, argued the association.

By 1983, up to $30 million annually could be pumped into the making of Canadian programs through revenues of pay television, it said.

More than 100 cable operators applied to the CRTC two years ago for licences to introduce pay television, offering 22 per cent of their gross revenues to Canadian programming.

They were rejected on grounds their applications were premature.

Rabbit Thief Must Hop It

EDMONTON (CP) — A Peruvian convicted of helping steal $48.09 worth of rabbit meat and other groceries from a local supermarket is to be deported Friday. His Canadian wife will remain here.

Pedro Tarazona, 29, originally from Lima, lost an appeal against a shoplifting conviction for a theft last summer.

He and a Canadian accomplice were both fined $50. Defence lawyer David Averback argued unsuccessfully that Tarazona's penalty was much greater because of the associated immigration problem.

Tarazona had been in Canada for one year on a visitor's visa. He will have to apply for immigrant status in Peru if he wants to rejoin his wife here.

Alberta to Fund Rupert Grain Port

WINNIPEG (CP) — Representatives of five governments and the grain-handling industry ended a two-day conference Tuesday, saying that a psychological breakthrough had been reached in their attempts to reform the industry.

Not even a $100-million announcement by Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed took the spotlight away from the new-found optimism.

Lougheed announced that the sum would be made available from his province's heritage savings trust fund to help build a major new grain terminal at Prince Rupert, a project that the conference termed the key to unlocking the present congestion in the grain transport system.

But a closing news conference put greater stress on the spirit of optimism, which all parties agreed was present at the end of the conference.

Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney said a number of issues emerged from the conference, notably firmer support for expansion of facilities at the B.C. port. But he wanted to emphasize that "there was an important psychological accomplishment."

All parties, he said, now agree there is a high probability that Canada can produce and sell 30 million tonnes of export grain in 1985, a 50-per-cent increase from current near-record levels.

Federal Transport Minister Otto Lang, who has recently been publicly preaching the desirability of optimism about Canada's grain-exporting future, basked in unaccustomed praise from the premiers.

A communique prepared by Lang, the three premiers and B.C. Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford noted the importance of grain exports — more than $3 billion a year, Canada's third largest earner of foreign exchange — and the prospects for substantial increase.

Top-level labor and management representatives at the conference agreed to set up a joint committee to review industrial relations affecting grain transport, a move Blakeney said "could well forestall an industrial dispute in the next few months."

Metal Refinery Fire Kills Five

BEAUHARNOIS, Que. (CP) — Five men were killed and another was badly injured when an explosion, followed by a fire, ripped through a Union Carbide Canada Ltd. manganese plant here late Tuesday night.

Quebec provincial police said four other employees survived the accident, apparently the result of an explosion inside a huge manganese furnace.

The dead were supervisory and management personnel who had been running the metal processing plant since a strike was launched Nov. 25 by the United Steelworkers or America, representing Union Carbide's 400 employees at Beauharnois, 30 kilometres southwest of Montreal.

The sixth man, believed to have been badly burned, was transferred today to a Montreal hospital because of the seriousness of his injuries, police said.

The bodies of the five were recovered by firemen, and were transported to a morgue in the nearby town of Valleyfield. Identities of the victims were withheld.

Firefighters from three nearby towns rushed to the plant shortly after the blast occurred around 10.30 p.m., but found themselves unable to do much because of red-hot metal debris.

Electricity to the plant was cut and firemen then let the blaze burn itself out. They worked cautiously because of the presence of dangerous gases, including carbon monoxide, and police kept reporters and cameramen outside the gates of the plant.

14 Years For Hashish

TORONTO (CP) — A man described as the Dutch Connection behind a multi-million-dollar drug-smuggling ring was sentenced Tuesday to 14 years in jail and fined $500,000 for conspiracy to import a ton of hashish.

After losing a month-long legal battle to restrict evidence against him in his Ontario Supreme Court jury trial, Gurdev Singh Sangha, 49, pleaded guilty after the prosecution and defence lawyers agreed on a sentence.

The RCMP estimated the ton of hashish smuggled had a wholesale value of $2 million and a street value up to $4 million.

Mr. Justice John O'Driscoll concurred with the sentence and gave Sangha a year to pay the fine or face three more years in jail.

Federal prosectuor Ari Coomaraswamy called it "the worst possible case of trafficking in hashish which has come before the courts in Canada."

"He (Sangha) was at the top of this large, international organization of drug traffickers which had connections on three continents."

Evidence showed Sangha had operators in India who smuggled the hashish into Canada, others who flew in from England to sell the drug and still others in Europe and Canada who collected and transported the cash to Europe where it was put in Swiss bank accounts.

Swiss authorities froze Sangha's assets on the request of Canadian authorities who found Sangha had placed his illegal proceeds in gold, silver, stocks and bonds, including those of Ontario Hydro, an Ontario Crown corporation. He also put $525,000 into two Hamilton apartment buildings.

In 1968, Sangha was convicted in England of importing narcotics and served three years of a five-year sentence. At the same time, he earned a doctorate in laser technology.

Coomaraswamy said in an interview after the sentencing that he believed the $500,000 fine was the largest ever imposed on an individual in Canada.

During the trial, police said they had spent more than $100,000 investigating but had seized 1,100 pounds of the ton of hashish and $164,000 in money which was being smuggled out of Vancouver in a car.

The judge said Sangha "operated from a control tower in the Netherlands" where he was safe because there was no extradition treaty with Canada for drug offences.

Coomaraswamy said Sangha was caught about a year ago by Belgian police when he was driving through that country on his way back to the Netherlands.

After his arrest, he lost a court battle to stay in Belgium and was extradited to Canada to stand trial.

Previously, three couriers and a payments man received jail terms ranging from two to five years for their roles in the 1976 case.

Airplane Inspectors Stay Off

EDMONTON (CP) — A union spokesman said Tuesday it's unlikely that civil aviation inspectors will return to work for low pay even if the federal government hires more inspectors.

Ron Stewart, western regional chairman for the Canadian Union of Professional and Technical Employees which represents federal aviation inspectors, said potential recruits could make considerably more in private business or the military.

Stewart said the average wage for an aviation inspector is about $23,000 annually. Almost all of the inspectors have their airline transport licence and 10 to 15 years of flying experience.

"With those qualifications, a pilot can easily make at least $35,000 flying for a private firm. And a man with similar qualifications in the military would be making $30,000 to $35,000.

Job Awaiting FLQ Member

MONTREAL (CP) — Former FLQ member Jacques Lanctot, who returned to Canada last week to face charges in the James Cross kidnapping, has a job waiting with a Quebec publisher if he is released from police custody.

Quebec author and editor Victor-Levy Beaulieu made the offer on Tuesday to hire Lanctot as an "editorial secretary" during a 90-minute hearing in sessions court to decide whether Lanctot should be released on bail.

Beaulieu told the court that he did not know Lanctot personally although he knew of him through Mrs. Lanctot. He said the qualifications for the editorial secretary job were his thorough knowledge of French, typewriting ability and "good general culture."

The wiry 33-year-old Lanctot, testifying in his bail application, said that if released his intention "is to find a job, which already seems to be in the works, and to participate in the normal life of Quebecers."

Lanctot, charged with kidnapping British diplomat Cross in 1970, was returned to police cells after judge Maurice Rousseau reserved judgment until Thursday on the bail application.

Also pending is a decision whether Lanctot will be charged with conspiring along with former FLQ member Pierre Marcil to kidnap former Israeli trade commissioner Moshe Golem in February, 1970, and with possession of a concealed weapon, a sawed-off Marlin carbine.

Marcil, who was not present in court Tuesday, was scheduled to be arraigned on those charges today.

Defence lawyer Robert Lemieux said outside the court Tuesday that he would present a motion to quash the charges against Marcil.

The Lazy Man's Way to Riches

'Most People Are Too Busy Earning a Living to Make Any Money'

I used to work hard. The 18-hour days. The 7-day weeks.

For example, this ad took about 2 hours to write. With a little luck, it should earn me 50, maybe a hundred thousand dollars.

What's more, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for something that'll cost me no more than 50 cents. And I'll try to make it so irresistible that you'd be a darned fool not to do it.

After all, why should you care if I make $9.50 profit if I can show you how to make a lot more?

What if I'm so sure that you will make money my Lazy Man's Way that I'll make you a most unusual guarantee?

And here it is: I won't even cash your check or money order for 31 days after I've sent you my material.

If you don't agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested, send it back. Your uncashed check or money order will be put in the return mail.

The only reason I won't send it to you and bill you or send it C.O.D. is because both these methods involve more time and money.

And I'm already going to give you the biggest bargain of your life.

Because I'm going to tell you what it took me 11 years to perfect: How to make money the Lazy Man's Way.

O.K.—now I have to brag a little. I don't mind it. And it's necessary—to prove that sending me the 10 dollars . . . which I'll keep "in escrow" until you're satisfied . . . is the smartest thing you ever did.

I live in a home that's worth $250,000. I know it is, because I turned down an offer for that much. My mortgage is less than half that, and the only reason I haven't paid it off is because my Tax Accountant says I'd be an idiot.

My "office," about a mile and a half from my home, is right on the beach. My view is so breathtaking that most people comment that they don't see how I get any work done. But I do enough. About 6 hours a day, 8 or 9 months a year.

The rest of the time we spend at our mountain "cabin." I paid $30,000 for it—cash.

I have 2 boats and a Cadillac. All paid for.

We have stocks, bonds, investments, cash in the bank. But the most important thing I have is priceless: time with my family.

And I'll show you just how I did it—the Lazy Man's Way—a secret that I've shared with just a few friends 'til now.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." When I started out, I was so deep in debt that a lawyer friend advised bankruptcy as the only way out. He was wrong. We paid off our debts and, outside of the mortgage, don't owe a cent to any man.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share, but I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better; I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that—nothing more, nothing less—the results will be hard to believe. Remember—I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again—I guarantee it.

". . . I didn't have a job and I was worse than broke. I owed more than $50,000 and my only assets were my wife and 8 children. We were renting an old house in a decaying neighborhood, driving a 5-year old car that was falling apart, and had maybe a couple of hundred dollars in the bank.

Within one month, after using the principles of the Lazy Man's Way to Riches, things started to change — to put it mildly.

- We worked out a plan we could afford to pay off our debts — and stopped our creditors from hounding us.
- We were driving a brand-new Thunderbird that a car dealer had given to us!
- Our bank account had multiplied tenfold!
- All within the first 30 days!

- I live in a home that's worth over $250,000.
- I own my "office". It's about a mile and a half from my home and is right on the beach.
- I own a lakefront "cabin" in Washington. (That's where we spend the whole summer — loafing, fishing, swimming and sailing.)
- I own two oceanfront condominiums. One is on a sunny beach in Mexico and one is snuggled right on the best beach of the best island in Hawaii. — Maui.
- I have two boats and a Cadillac. All paid for.
- I have a net worth of over a Million Dollars. But I still don't have a job . . ."

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

Here are some comments from other people. I'm sure that, like you, they didn't believe me either. Guess they figured that, since I wasn't going to deposit their check for 31 days, they had nothing to lose.

$260,000 in eleven months

"Two years ago, I mailed you ten dollars in sheer desperation for a better life . . . One year ago, just out of the blue sky, a man called and offered me a partnership . . . I grossed over $260,000 cash business in eleven months. You are a God sent miracle to me."

B. F., Pascagoula, Miss.

Banking deposits from zero to thousands

"It is all I can do to get to the bank with one wheelbarrow! I'm just going to have to get a second one to accommodate the volume . . . Since December, until the present time, I have built my business from zero up to where some days, my banking deposits are in excess of thousands."

D. J. A., Westminster, Calif.

Made $16,901.92 first time out

"The third day I applied myself totally to what you had shown me. I made $16,901.92. That's great results for my first time out."

J. J. M., Watertown, N.Y.

'I'm a half-millionaire'

"Thanks to your method, I'm a half-millionaire . . . would you believe last year at this time I was a slave working for peanuts?"

G. C., Toronto, Canada

Getting everything we want

"We can't keep this to ourselves anymore — you were right! We're on the road to getting all (everything) we want in this world! We sold the $17,000 house we had and got another one . . . It's worth $65,000. We have a paid-for Ford pickup, paid-for 17 ft. boat, we bought a Cadillac, we have a paid-for Grand Prix . . ."

Mrs. M. C., Anaheim, Calif.

$7,000 in five days

"Last Monday I used what I learned on page 83 to make $7,000. It took me all week to do it, but that's not bad for five day's work."

M. D., Topeka, Kansas

Can't believe success

"I can't believe how successful I have become . . . Three months ago, I was a telephone order taker for a fastener company in Chicago, Illinois. I was driving a beat-up 1959 Rambler and had about $600 in my savings account. Today, I am the outside salesman for the same fastener company. I'm driving a company car . . . I am sitting in my own office and have about $3,000 in my savings account."

G. M., Des Plaines, Ill.

I know you're skeptical. After all, what I'm saying is probably contrary to what you've heard from your friends, your family, your teachers and maybe everyone else you know. I can only ask you one question.

How many of them are millionaires?

So it's up to you:

A month from today, you can be nothing more than 30 days older — or you can be on your way to getting rich. You decide.

Joe, you may be full of beans, but what have I got to lose? Send me the Lazy Man's Way to Riches. But don't deposit my check or money order for 31 days after it's in the mail.

Remember Mother's Stews?

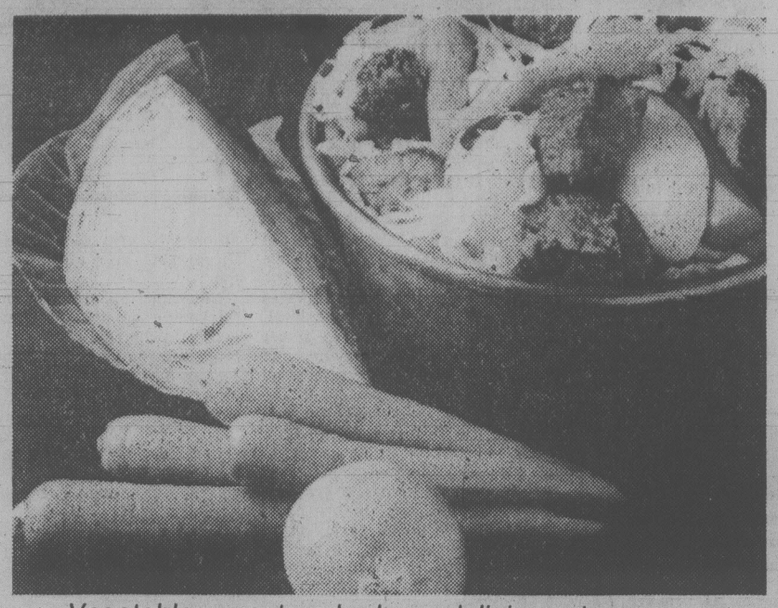
By KAY SPICER



Vegetables, meat and a long, delicious simmer . . .

As a small child I always loved the aroma of dinner simmering on the back of my mom's wood-burning stove. Magic took place in the dark interior of the stew-pot. Ordinary foods, like chunks of meat and vegetables, turned into marvelous, tasty concoctions after a few hours. The flavors varied with the meats, vegetables and seasonings she used.

Today, I enjoy not only eating stews but making them. I put together many different combinations just as my mom did.

My many appliances and pots are different and up-to-date but the method is the same. Flavors blend and mingle as the mixture cooks slowly producing great results.

Stewing is a super way to prepare less tender cuts of meat. These are the cheaper ones. The long cooking at low to moderate temperature tenderizes tough meat making it far more palatable. Proving again that keeping a food budget under control these days doesn't mean you have to cut down on good eating.

LAMB STEW

- 4 pounds lamb riblets or breast of lamb or boneless lamb shoulder, cut into serving-size pieces
- 3 medium-size onions, peeled and quartered
- 2 cups water (for the stew)
- 3 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon leaf rosemary, crumbled
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 6 medium-size potatoes, pared and cut into 1-inch pieces (about 2 pounds)
- 1 large sweet potato, pared and cut into 1-inch pieces (about 10 ounces)
- 1 (10-ounce) package frozen peas
- ¼ cup flour
- ⅓ cup water (for the gravy) Chopped parsley, optional.

Heat kettle or Dutch oven over medium heat. Brown lamb a few pieces at a time. (No need to add extra fat for browning.) Remove pieces as they brown. Saute onions in drippings for about 10 minutes until they begin to brown (for added flavor.) Remove and reserve.

Return meat to kettle. Add water, salt, Worcestershire sauce, rosemary and pepper. Heat to boiling; lower heat; cover and simmer 30 minutes. Add potatoes, sweet potatoes and onions, pushing them down under liquid. Simmer 30 minutes longer until meat and potatoes are tender.

Add frozen peas and simmer another 10 minutes. Lift out meat and vegetables into a shallow, heated serving dish. Let fat rise to top of broth and skim off.

Heat broth to boiling. Boil five to 10 minutes to reduce slightly. Blend flour and water in a small cup until smooth. Stir into boiling broth and continue stirring until gravy thickens and bubbles for one minute. Pour over lamb and vegetables. Sprinkle with chopped parsley if you wish. Serve with curried fruit salad (apple, orange, celery and curry mayonnaise).

For cooking in slow-cooker: Brown lamb and onions. Place in slow cooker with seasonings. Reduce the water to one cup. Pour over meat. Surround meat with potatoes and sweet potatoes. Cover cooker. Cook on low (190° to 200° F.) for eight hours or on high (290° to 300° F.) four hours or until meat and vegetables are tender. Stir in peas and cook on high for 15 minutes. Remove meat and vegetables to platter. Thicken juices for gravy as previously directed.

Makes 6 servings.

DEVILLED BEEF

- 1 6-pound boneless beef chuck steak, cut 2 inches thick
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- 2 cups chopped onion
- 2 cups water
- 2 envelopes or 2 cubes beef bouillon
- 2 tablespoons dry mustard
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
- 6 to 8 medium-sized carrots, peeled, cut in 2-inch lengths
- ½ (12-ounce) package medium egg noodles
- 2 tablespoons butter

Cut chuck steak into 3-by 2-inch pieces. Heat vegetable oil in Dutch oven or large kettle. Cook meat a few pieces at a time until well-browned on all sides. Remove pieces as they brown. Return meat to Dutch oven. Add onion, water, bouillon powder or cube, dry mustard, Worcestershire sauce, horseradish, salt and hot pepper sauce. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low. Add carrots. Cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, 1½ hours or until meat is tender — or place covered Dutch oven or ovenware kettle in 350° F. oven for 1½ hours. About 30 minutes before meat is done prepare noodles as label directs. Drain and toss gently with butter or margarine. Remove meat to warm platter with slotted spoon. Arrange noodles on platter around or next to meat. Skim fat from sauce in Dutch oven and discard. Pass sauce to serve over meat and noodles. A crisp Waldorf salad with crisp celery and chopped walnuts would make a perfect accompaniment.

Makes 12 servings.

BEEF & CABBAGE STEW

- 2 pounds boneless stewing beef
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 2 cups beef bouillon
- 6 white potatoes, peeled and halved
- 1 pound fresh whole carrots, scraped and cut in half lengthwise.
- 4 cups shredded cabbage
- Salt and pepper to taste

Brown stewing beef in hot oil in a Dutch oven or large heavy saucepan. Drain off any drippings. Add beef bouillon and sliced onions. Cover and simmer until meat is almost tender for about 1½ hours. Add white potatoes and carrots. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes or until vegetables are almost tender. Add shredded cabbage. Cover and cook about five minutes longer or until cabbage is tender crisp. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Accompany this one-pot meal with basil-sprinkled tomato slices and your favorite ice cream for dessert.

Makes 6 servings

TIMELY TIPS: When altering your favorite stew recipe for the slow-cooker, reduce liquid to about one cup as the slow cooker method of simmering foods saves all the food's natural juices.

To brown meat quickly and perfectly, heat oil or fat until almost smoking. Add just enough meat to cover bottom of pan (no more), leaving a little space around each piece. Brown pieces on one side until little beads of blood show on the upper surface. Turn with tongs (do not puncture with a fork); repeat until evenly brown on all sides.

For extra meaty-flavour, add water, wine or broth to meat browning pan and scrape all the cooked juices from the bottom of the pan; add the liquid to the stew-pot, casserole or slow-cooker.

By HILDA BEASTALL

Until spring changes the situation, we shall use substitutes among the vegetables for our daily quotas of the vitamins A and C, together with the old standbys — prunes and bananas, both useful sources of these vitamins and several essential minerals. Both are delicious fruits and liked by most people.

You may have alternatives in a supply of home-grown berries in the deep-freeze. Don't forget these during January and February when the need for fresh fruit is urgent. I have known homemakers who keep the supply on hand for the full year until just before the following season's crop and then say they don't know what to do with the new crop. Surely this year's commercial prices for fruit will urge more use of these fine berries during winter.

These are fortunately the kind of fruits that need no preparation (once they are frozen) or cooking before serving. Berries combine with salad ingredients better than with other fruits, for each kind of berry has its own delicious flavor.

Berries go perfectly with half a cup of homemade plain yogurt, or into a bowl of custard made with skim milk and eggs, but no vanilla to disguise the berry flavor.

For an occasional change, use thawed berries folded into an omelet and left for three minutes in the covered pan over the heated element with the switch off. Or make a batch of muffins with frozen berries the same way as for the famous Blueberry Muffins of Eastern Canada. And berry pies are another favorite. For these the shell can be baked and stored in refrigerator to fill with thawed berries at the time needed.

Dried prunes are a useful fruit to buy in winter when fresh fruit is high in price. They also have gone up in price in the last five years, now $1.79 for 907 gms of the medium size. I find this size a better buy than the small ones, as there are fewer stones in a serving and therefore less waste. And the stones are about the same size, although there is more flesh on the medium than on the small.

At around 60 prunes to a pound (454 gms), 10 servings cost 90 cents, before cooking. With the teaspoon of sugar added to the boiling water, plus an allowance in cost for the 20 minutes or so of simmering heat, the cost for a serving of six prunes comes up to just around 10 cents. Leave out sugar, substitute a teaspoon of black molasses and you have more minerals and a richer flavor than with sugar.

To lessen time of cooking, let the dried prunes soak in cold water enough to cover freely, for two hours or more. Soak overnight for sun-dried prunes. Cook in same water. A teaspoon of fresh lemon juice or the discarded skin of half a lemon will add both flavor and traces of extra nutrients.

Once you have a pound of cooked prunes in a covered glass jar in the refrigerator, you have one important ingredient for several delicious dishes.

A gelatin salad using a few prunes, some of the juice, and odds and ends of other fruit and vegetable on hand, will result in an appetizing lunch or supper dish at low cost.

PRUNE SALAD MOULD

1 cup prune juice
1 Tbsp. (1 envelope) plain gelatin
¾ cup orange juice (fresh or frozen)
¼ tsp. finely chopped onion or chives
½ tsp. salt
2 tsp. sugar
½ cup finely chopped apple
¼ cup finely chopped celery with leaves
12 whole cooked prunes, stoned.

Heat prune juice to near boiling. Meanwhile, soften gelatin in ½ cup cold orange juice reconstituted from frozen. Add gelatin mixture to hot prune juice to dissolve in large basin.

Add onion (or chives) salt and sugar; cool until mixture begins to thicken around edges. Put basin in refrigerator or other cold place for several minutes.

Meanwhile, chop the apple and celery; pour remaining ¼ cup orange juice over this at once to prevent loss of Vitamin C and discoloration.

Now add this mixture to thickening gelatin, stirring gently to distribute evenly. Pour into shallow glass dish (or six pyrex cups) and set in refrigerator to chill until firm.

To serve, cut into six squares, or empty the cup moulds on plates with shredded green cabbage, green lettuce or curly endive.

Decorate each plate with two halves of hard boiled egg, and enjoy with homemade wholewheat buns with Cheddar cheese for a complete nourishing meal at reasonable cost.

The Norwegians use dried prunes for a winter pudding to serve with cream or custard. We can use our own homemade yogurt as an inexpensive and nutritious topping.

PRUNE PUDDING

2 cups cooked prunes, stoned
1 cup prune juice
1 Tbsp. sugar
2 Tbsps. cornstarch
2 Tbsp. rice flour
2 Tbsp. fresh lemon juice with pulp

Cut open each prune, remove stone. Add juice and bring to boiling point in saucepan.

Mix sugar, cornstarch, and rice flour. Add gradually to prune mixture stirring to keep smooth. Cook gently 10 or 12 minutes to thicken.

Pour into individual pyrex cups to unmould later or into individual glass serving dishes. Chill, and serve topped with yogurt sprinkled with grated nuts. Serves four.

Once the prunes are cooked, they have a variety of uses in daily fare and their high nutrient values make them a reasonable subsitute for at least some of the higher-priced fresh fruits at this season.

Ground Lamb Treat

If you are like many Canadian cooks, you menu plans probably call for a lot of hamburger — in loaves, patties and casseroles. But did you ever consider there are a number of delicious alternatives to ground beef?

The test kitchens at Lawry's Foods of Canada Ltd. have created a whole collection of recipes using all kinds of ground meats from pork to lamb, and chicken to turkey.

Here's a menu using ground lamb or ground pork in a most unusual fashion:

MENU

Lemon Lamb
Rice or Noodles
Tossed Salad with Mandarin oranges
Chocolate Brownies and Ice Cream

LEMON LAMB

2 teaspoons Lemon Pepper
1 cup water
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 pounds ground lamb (or pork) shaped into 16 balls*
1 large onion, sliced
1 tablespoon olive oil
½ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon Seasoned Salt
1 teaspoon oregano
1½ pounds fresh green beans, cut in 1-inch pieces
¼ cup slivered almonds

Combine Lemon Pepper and water. In a large skillet, saute lamb in vegetable oil until brown. Add onions and saute. Add olive oil; carefully stir lamb balls and onion to coat. Add Lemon Pepper and water mixture, lemon juice, Seasoned Salt and oregano.

Cover, simmer for 25-30 minutes; add green beans; simmer 10-15 minutes until crisp/tender. Sprinkle with almonds. Serve on fluffy rice or noodles. Makes six to eight servings.

*2 pounds boneless lamb or pork, cut in 1-inch cubes, may be used in place of ground lamb or pork. Increase cooking time to 1½ to 2 hours or until meat is tender.

Throw-away shavers for men don't come in pretty colors but they do cost less than colorful shavers for women. Is color worth the extra cost when you drop a space-saving shaver in your travelling bag? A tube of men's shaving lather costs less, too.

When your pretty permapress tablcloth doesn't come clean, wash it again. A second washing usually removes stains. And if you'll be shopping for a new easy-care tablecloth, solid colors and whites tend to show wrinkles and stains more than printed ones.

Nutrition Columnists No Substitute for MDs eating right

By RUTH FREMES and ZAK SABRY

We get many letters from our readers describing health problems and asking our advice. Obviously, we cannot answer their letters for the simple reason that health problems need the help of a qualified physician.

Furthermore, any health disorder requires a medical examination. It could not be discussed in a letter or in a column. We repeatedly caution our readers against books and articles that are supposed to help diagnose and treat medical problems.

When we discuss nutrition concerns and recommend courses of action, we are dealing with prevention — not treatment of health problems. We are talking to the healthy individuals who wish to stay healthy. At no time do we discuss the treatment of illnesses.

For example, we have often discussed diet and heart disease. There are many factors that contribute to the risk of having a coronary, and diet is one of these factors.

Extensive research in the past several decades has demonstrated that high consumption of fat and of saturated fat and cholesterol raises the level of blood cholesterol. Research has also shown that the higher the blood cholesterol, the higher the chances of getting a coronary. These are statistics and chances we are talking about, not individuals.

The point to read in this table is that the chances of getting a coronary almost doubles when the blood cholesterol rises above 250 mg per 100 ml of blood serum. Again, we are talking about chances, not certainties. But, this information is valuable in raising concern about our health when blood cholesterol reaches above a certain level. It is a preventive measure.

A person who has had a coronary must follow the treatment prescribed by the attending physician and the diet worked out by the dietitian in charge. No one other than these specialists should be consulted or should be expected to pass judgment on the treatment.

If dissatisfied with the treatment you are getting, you may seek another opinion from a qualified physician and/or a qualified dietitian. Under such conditions, you may discuss what you read in books or magazines with your doctor or dietitian but follow only their prescribed treatment.

Having said that, we will answer two letters that address themselves to this very issue.

Dear Ruth and Zak:

My husband is on a fat-controlled diet (because of his high blood cholesterol and triglyceride) obtained from the North York General Hospital.

I read with interest, Chapter 4 of your book Nutri-Score, which gives information on the blended butter recipe. I have made it, and my husband enjoys it better than margarine.

His diet calls for six servings of fat 'A' and seven servings of fat 'B'. I make the blended butter with safflower oil, which is considered class 'A'. When I called the dietitian, she claimed that a serving would come under a class 'B' fat, because of the butter content.

These diets are much easier to put into practice, and there are so many varying opinions on the subject. My husband has had artery bypass surgery already, so I am anxious to follow any preventive measures.

Do you consider blended butter an 'A' fat or a 'B' fat? I am anxious that my husband gets sufficient of the 'A' fat. Name and Address Withheld.

Dear Reader:

Blended butter is a mixture of butter, which is high in saturated fatty acids (and appears to fall in the 'B' category of the diet give to your husband) and an oil, such as the safflower oil that you use, which is high in polyunsaturated fatty acids (and appears to belong to the 'A' category). The dietitian was correct in classifying the blended butter because she knows your husband's condition and his specific dietary needs. The diet given to your husband was specifically tailored to his needs and should be followed very strictly.

Dear Ruth and Zak:

Could you give me some information regarding cholesterol in eggs. My husband has recently had to go on a low-cholesterol diet due to heart truble. He is allowed only three eggs a week.

Yet, I read recently in the 'Family Fitness' column that the cholesterol scare had gone out of eggs; but I haven't read or heard of this anywhere else. W. W.

Dear W. W.:

The cholesterol scare is not out of eggs. Recently, the committee on diet and cardiovascular disease recommended to the Minister of National Health and Welfare that Canadians should cut down on their intake of saturated fat and of cholesterol. Eggs are high in both.

Eggs are also high in many nutrients which make them an excellent food. So, the advice of many nutritionists has been to control the number of eggs in the diet, not to cut them out completely but not to eat eggs to the exclusion of other foods.

In your husband's case, he must follow the low-cholesterol diet given to him by his physician. If the diet specified three eggs a week, it means that he would benefit from that many eggs and his condition should tolerate them.

Do not listen to anything you hear and do not follow anything you read, when you have a prescribed diet.

It's Tasty, If Not Authentic

By PIERRE FRANEY

For years I have railed against cooks who "pretend" that they were "cooking French," while dishing up platters of French dishes that were no more authentic than sushi or guacamole.

On the other hand, I was recently served a dish that the maker declared to be Indian, and while I have reasons to believe that it was more a flight of fancy than anything else, I was tempted to reproduce it.

Therefore, in this instalment there is a recipe that I have broadly labelled Shrimp a l'Indienne, and if the name offends any of my friends who are established Indian cooks, I apologize.

It is, on the other hand, a tasty dish made with, in addition to fresh shrimp, such spices as cardamon and cumin, hot chilies and coriander. It also contains sour cream, which I believe to be un-Indian.

Assemble all the ingredients for the main course. Then, put the rice on to cook. It will not demand your attention again for 17 to 20 minutes, or longer, so you can proceed to the shrimp dish with a certain leisure. The total cooking time for the dish (peeling the shrimp is the most time-consuming part of all) is less than 10 minutes.

SHRIMP A L'INDIENNE

1½ pounds fresh shrimp, about 36 to 38
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon chopped hot fresh green or red chili or ¼ teaspoon dried red pepper
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
½ teaspoon ground cumin or use an equal amount of curry powder
Juice of 1 lime
1 cup sour cream
½ cup plain yogurt
¼ cup chopped fresh coriander (cilantpo) leaves

1. Shell and devein the shrimp. Rinse well and pat dry. Set aside.

2. Heat the butter in a skillet and add the onion. Add the chili. Cook briefly and add the shrimp, salt and pepper to taste. Cook, stirring often, about three minutes.

3. Add the cardamon and cumin and stir. Add the lime juice, sour cream and yogurt. Bring gently to the boil, stirring. Sprinkle with coriander and serve hot with saffron rice.

Yields four servings.

SAFFRON RICE

1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic, finely minced
½ teaspoon stem saffron, loosely packed
1 cup raw rice
1½ cups water
Salt to taste

1. Heat the butter in a saucepan and add the onion. Cook until wilted. Add the garlic and saffron and stir.

2. Add the rice. Stir well and add the water and salt. Bring to the boil, cover and cook over low heat until rice is tender, about 17 to 20 minutes.

Yields four servings.

PICTOU, N.S. (CP) — Local dogcatchers have problems keeping caught dogs caught. Town officials say dog lovers have been coming to the local pound when dogcatchers are off duty and sawing through cage bars and releasing the animals. Albert Cyr, dog control officer, has suggested the pound be moved to another, less remote area of town.

Fear, Anxiety: Definitions

The terms "fear" and "anxiety" are often used interchangeably. Many readers want to know the difference. They are both related, yet distinctly different.

Fear is the response of the body to some threat. When an oncoming automobile frightens us, we tense our muscles and prepare ourselves to jump out of its path. Fear may also come from some inner problems that are distressing.

When the body reacts to fear, it does so in one of two ways. We can come face to face with the problem and, in a mature way, deal with it. Or we can run away from the threat and hope that it will disappear if we do not come to grips with it and confront it. These responses are known as the "fight-or-flight" reaction to any threat. When fear mobilizes our forces, the reaction is a protective one.

Anxiety is another body reaction of apprehensiveness and restlessness. Many people are unable to recall its exact cause. Sometimes one awakens in the middle of the night with the oppressive feeling of tension and concern about an almost nonexistent problem. Since the threat is not obvious, confrontation with it is not possible, and the anxiety continues to mount.

Fear, therefore, acts as a body defence and as a signal that some danger exists. Anxiety, however, is a more vague reaction that cannot be controlled as easily.

When attacks of anxiety occur frequently, last a long time and produce extensive incapacitating panic, trained psychological guidance is essential. For, unless it is corrected and completely understood, anxiety becomes fixed and tends to become progressively worse.

Anxiety neurosis can produce a variety of disabling symptoms, but is often eased a great deal by talking out problems that at first seem unrelated. It is only when they are exposed and brought into the light that anxiety can be diminished and freedom from this special kind of pain be eased.

I have often pointed out that some people adamantly refuse to acknowledge their need for psychological guidance. It is ironic because these same people would undergo the most elaborate tests to find out the basis for a physical ailment. They consider a psychological problem with some degree of shame and feel it should be carefully hidden from themselves and from those around them.

Some parents are very resistant to the suggestion that their child may need psychological diagnosis and treatment. Very often, treatment is put off for such a long period of time that the problem becomes ingrained and difficult to eradicate.

Both fear and anxiety deserve the same professional care that would be given a broken leg or an attack of pneumonia.

DEAR READERS: My recent item, "What to Do about Obscene Telephone Calls," prompted a rash of responses. Some berated me for suggesting that a police whistle be kept by the phone to blast the caller into the next county. ("What if your mother-in-law calls and you mistakenly think the obscene caller is calling again? That blast could seriously impair her hairing," one reader stated.)

Well, here's the official word from the telephone company: If you should get an obscene phone call, HANG UP!

That's right, just hang up. That's the fastest, most effective way to discourage annoying calls. The people who make them actually need an audience. And taking that away from them — by hanging up — takes away their entire motivation for making the calls in the first place.

So at the first disturbing remark, simply hang up. Gently — because any reaction at all can serve to encourage them. Don't yell, don't speak, don't even mutter. Don't give the caller the satisfaction of any response whatsoever. Just hang up.

If the caller continues to harass you, call the business office of your phone company. They have people trained to deal with this type of situation. And they will do everything, including working with your police department, to avert further problems.

Obscene phone calls are illegal. A convicted offender can be sentenced to up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

But the best thing to do is just remember that simple rule: It's your telephone — if you don't like what's being said, HANG UP!

DEAR ABBY: What advice have you for a 23-year-old girl who, everybody says, is pretty and smart, but who lives in a small town with snobbish people who won't let her forget that she lives on the wrong side of the tracks?

— ME

DEAR ME: The next time the train comes through — get on it.

Professor Beats the Weather With His Hydroponic Garden

TORONTO (CP) — Icy winds howled outside Steve Tobe's home, but in his basement the University of Toronto zoology professor had enough fresh vegetables for a salad.

He was holding two freshly-picked tomatoes and surrounding the plants from which they came were blooming cucumber vines, two kinds of lettuce, large green peppers, parsley, chervil, chive, spinach and sweet marjoram.

"Those cucumbers will soon be climbing all over the walls . . . nice long English ones," said Tobe, whose garden grows without soil.

The plants, nourished by a water-based solution and supported by a combination of gravel and sand, are grown by hydroponics.

"It all started as a hobby and I kept getting sucked in," said Tobe, 34. "Now it's more than a hobby. But it has tremendous potential for Canadians in particular in view of our lousy climate."

When he started several years ago with a few plastic pots, "I had gigantic tomatoes and cucumbers growing out of them."

"I pour in a little nutrient each day, let it sit in the gravel for 10 minutes and drain it off. That's all it takes."

In conventional soil, plants seek out nutrients, but in hydroponics, nutrients are supplied and "the plants don't have to use up any energy."

Tobe said Canadians do not take advantage of their homes or their gardens to grow food uncontaminated with pesticides and fertilizers.

"There's a very significant saving in our vegetable bills," he said, adding that he and his wife, Martha, "tend to eat a lot of vegetables."

He said his hydroponic garden produces tomatoes and lettuce as good as or better than vegetables in season.

"Certainly they're better than the plastic tomatoes from California or Mexico in the stores at this time of year. They're loaded with pesticides and it makes quite a difference. When we make a salad, it tastes like a salad."

Another University of Toronto professor, William Friend, also has discovered hydroponics.

"It can be raining, hailing, absolutely terrible outside, and I can go down to see the gorgeous thing that is my garden growing in abundance," Friend said.

Friend said he sees the technique as the gardening of the future, especially in outer space where the plants "would be an easy, colorful, and perhaps tasty way of renewing oxygen supplies on extended trips through the universe."

MEAT BUYING TIPS

By ELAINE Q. BARROW
The Associated Press

No homemaker needs to be reminded that one-third to one-half of most food budgets goes for meat.

Yet a former butcher says you can save up to one-third of this meat bill by buying in bulk and cutting it yourself.

The trick is learning to identify, buy and cut various types of meat, says Jon McClure, former college instructor and food columnist who worked his way through school as a journeyman meat cutter.

McClure suggests buying pre-trimmed bulk roasts such as bottom rounds, ribs or chucks. And he recommends buying them from retail supermarkets.

Buying in bulk and cutting it up yourself, he says, "saves you the cost of that individual packaging and all that handling, wrapping and wages — and waste is kept at a minimum."

One of the most economical and least expensive cuts, McClure says, is a chuck blade roast. One roast, 2 to 2½ inches thick, weighing five to seven pounds, can be portioned to provide five meals for a family of four.

He says many people have little knowledge of the varying cuts and types of meat.

In addition to learning how to identify meats, he urges learning to recognize bone shapes that help determine the degree of tenderness you can expect.

Beef cuts with round bones are less tender, as are blade-bone cuts in beef, veal, pork and lamb, he explains. Proper tenderizing and marinating, he advises, enable one to take advantage of the less tender, less expensive cuts from the chuck, brisket, flank, rump, foreshank, plate and neck.

His do-it-yourself economy applies also to fowl. "If you cut up your own chicken, you are getting, in effect, a free chicken for every two you buy."

Common ¢ents

By KATE MacQUEEN

Once you open a vacuum can or bag of shelled nut meats, leftovers should be kept in a sealed container and refrigerated. How can you tell walnut meats are fresh? A kernel should snap into and be white or light inside. If dingy or rubbery, nut meats are likely rancid.

★ ★ ★

Stale corn or rice flakes won't taste that way if you turn them into quick pie crust. Crush 1½ cups of flakes. Mix in ⅓ cup margarine and ¼ cup sugar. Press onto bottom and sides of nine-inch pie pan. Bake at 375° F. for 5 to 8 minutes. Cool and fill with a favorite pie filling.

★ ★ ★

Fresh peaches are extremely perishable; don't bruise them. At room temperature, decay develops rapidly and spreads to other peaches in the bowl or basket. If you want to slow ripening, put peaches in the fridge for no longer than a week.

A Brolly-Bashing Protest?

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press

LONDON — Angry commuters lashing out at railway staff with furled umbrellas?

It could happen, says the normally staid and conservative London Chamber of Commerce.

If it does, it will be one more sign that Britons are becoming fed up with the mounting wave of labor unrest which is disrupting their lives.

Chamber spokesman Brian Wright said that with one-day-a-week train stoppages threatening to escalate into a full-scale national strike, it is "a fair bet" that umbrella battles might break out on the platforms.

"There is no doubt that there is a certain amount of antagonism coming in," Wright said in an interview.

"Most of the previous strikes on southern region have just been in some areas. This is the first total one we have had for some time."

Wright was speaking of today's stoppage covering the entire southern region, which he estimated would keep about 500,000 persons away from work.

And further down the line is the threat of a country-wide rail strike next week.

The recent gasoline tanker drivers' dispute, still not fully settled, has had British motorists lining up for blocks for fuel suddenly selling at £2 (almost $5) a gallon, almost three times its normal price.

Drivers of the slower, start-stop commuter trains—28,000 of them—immediately put in for a bonus too, asking more than twice that amount. Now, a third union, representing 200,000 railwaymen in other jobs, says it wants whatever the others get.

A British rail official has said "the money is not available."

YOUTH ATTEMPTED RADIATION SUICIDE

LONDON (Reuter) — Scientists are studying a young man who tried to commit suicide with an overdose of radiation and survived with little apparent harm, the National Radiological Protection Board says.

"We rarely find an individual with such a high exposure," a board spokesman said.

Graham Chester, 19, stole radioactive elements used in engineering from a firm in his northern England home in Grimsby, placed them about his body and lay down in a ditch.

He survived with little more than a rash, but a board spokesman said he apparently absorbed 150 "rads" of radiation. A rad is an international measure of radiation, set at an upper limit for radiation workers of about five rads a year.

The board is examining regular blood samples to see how long the radiation effects last.

White Lands Act Struck

SALISBURY (Reuter) — Rhodesia's controversial Land Tenure Act, which divides the country into whites-only and blacks-only areas, is expected to be struck from the statute books by the end of this week.

A bill repealing the act was given second reading in the biracial house of assembly Tuesday, where not a single white member spoke against the move. One white member described it as "one of the birth pangs of our new nation."

Other legislation scrapping discrimination in public places, schools, hospitals and voters' rolls was due to pass through the house before white Rhodesians vote Jan. 30 in a referendum on a modified form of black-majority rule.

Prime Minister Ian Smith said the arrangement he has reached with three Rhodesia-based black nationalist leaders was not ideal, but was the best available in the circumstances.

Meanwhile, a military communique said Tuesday that a black auxiliary policeman was killed by Patriotic Front guerrillas in a black township outside the Rhodesian city of Bulawayo. One of the insurgents responsible had been killed by security forces, it added.

The communique also announced the deaths of one white civilian, one black member of the security forces, 14 guerrillas and three collaborators and two black civilians in the previous 24 hours.

Drunken Birds Taking Death Flights?

SEATTLE (AP) — Birds have been smashing themselves into fast-moving cars on Interstate 5 in south Seattle.

Highway and bird experts say it seems certain that the death flights — which have claimed about 40 robins and a few starlings, wrens and nuthatches the past two weeks — are brought on by eating a bright red berry called cotoneaster pendula.

The birds may get drunk and woozy from eating the fermented berry and wing out blithely onto the fatal freeway, said George Kessack, Washington Transportation Department roadside management supervisor. Kessack said they also gorge themselves so heavily, they cannot gain altitude and try to zoom across the freeway at grill and windshield level.

The department planted the berry on about 40 acres of freeway right-of-way to provide ground cover and "a bright, attractive red at a time of no color in winter," Kessack said.

Road crews have installed plywood cutouts of the robins' natural enemy, the Cooper hawk, but so far to no avail, he said.

"A lady called us yesterday and said she stretches pantyhose in her garden and birds stay away because they think it's a snake," he said. "One of our guys is going to try that."

However, George Orans, a University of Washington zoology professor, said he thinks the birds may have got lost in big-city traffic.

"Our city birds are pretty freeway smart," Orians said. "When you get extremely cold weather in the interior and further north, the birds exhaust their food supply there and then head into the food supplies here.

China 'Favors' an Increase In U.S. Asian Naval Power

PEKING (UPI) — China would "look favorably" on the expansion of American naval power in the Far East to counter a mounting Soviet threat, Chinese vice-premier Teng Hsiao-ping told a group of visiting U.S. senators.

Teng also told the delegation that Peking would not object to Taiwan maintaining its armed forces and asked the United States to remove its troops from South Korea.

The senators did not quote the Chinese leader verbatim, but delegation leader Sam Nunn read a two-page joint statement on their two-hour discussion with Teng Tuesday.

At the Great Hall of the People, some 500 Chinese and Americans attended a reception where they pledged to work together for peace.

Leonard Woodcock, chief of the U.S. Liaison office in Peking, told the reception, "Friendship and co-operation between the American and Chinese peoples can be an enormous force for good."

"We look forward to expand co-operation between us in many fields," the official New China News Agency quoted Woodcock as saying.

Teng indicated to the senators he would welcome increased U.S. military commitment to the region to offset the Far East expansion of Soviet air and naval forces in the Far East.

The senators said China's tolerance for non-communist armed forces expansion even extended to the five-nation Association of South East Asian Nations — ASEAN.

That group — linking Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand — has expressed increasing wariness of Vietnam's apparent expansionist tendencies and has made no secret of its fear the Soviet Union hopes to extend its influence through Vietnamese expansion.

However, Teng urged that American troops withdraw from South Korea and Seoul settle its differences with North Korea without foreign collaboration.

The statement read by Nunn said China's viewpoint, as expressed by Teng, was that "Taiwan authorities would possess the same powers they enjoy now."

"Security forces would remain. There would be no requirement that Taiwan would disarm in order to achieve reunification," the statement said. It said Teng "emphasized that the people-to-people and economic relations between Taiwan, Japan and the United States and other countries could remain" after unification.

They added that another inducement for Peking's encouragement to Taiwan to keep its military force intact was fear of Soviet influence.

Second Madrid Judge Killed

MADRID (AP) — A Supreme Court judge was shot to death Tuesday in Madrid as he left home for work, the second high Spanish official to be killed in less than a week.

The assassination of Justice Miguel Cruz Cuenca brought renewed cries for a military takeover to stop the bloodshed. It was Spain's sixth politically-related killing since Jan. 1.

Police said two or three young gunmen waiting in a bus stop crowd shot the 67-year-old jurist as he walked to his official car.

The killers escaped in traffic. Police checked air and train passengers and traffic at dozens of roadblocks around the capital.

Police said they suspected the Basque separatist organization ETA of being responsible for the killing. The ETA, which seeks independence for the Basque provinces in northern Spain, claimed responsibility for the Jan. 3 assassination of Madrid's military governor, Gen. Constantino Ortin.

After being informed of Tuesday's killing, King Juan Carlos cancelled a speech before an army group. Aides said the king was suffering from a muscle ailment. Last weekend, the king had criticized military men for joining a right-wing demonstration at the funeral of Gen. Ortin.

Cruz Cuenca was the second jurist to be assassinated in Madrid. ETA gunmen last November killed Jose Francisco Mateu, former head of the late dictator Francisco Franco's political court.

"Spain has lost all hope of looking for safety in civilian authority," the extremist New Force party said in a statement.

Rightist, who have often called in street demonstrations for the army to seize power, were reported preparing to demonstrate at the judge's funeral today.

Safe Freezing of Tissue Solved?

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A British researcher has passed what he describes as a milestone in efforts to freeze living tissue and thaw it without damage.

Dr. David Robinson, formerly head of Britain's Microbiological Research Establishment and now with Georgetown University, told Reuters that his team's discovery may hasten the day when whole organs can be deep-frozen for use in transplant operations.

However, he and other researchers still caution against predicting the day when people can be frozen alive and brought back years or even centuries later.

Robinson said his research group has been able to freeze a cell culture through the danger zone of -30 Celsius to -130 Celsius and restore it with minimal cellular damage.

Cultured cells have been successfully frozen by other researchers, but Robinson's team is believed to be the first to succeed with a concentration of cells high enough to approximate living tissue—about 10 million cells a centimetre.

"Lesser amounts of cells can be frozen with no problem," he said. "But for some reason extreme damage occurs with larger cell concentrations."

The secret, he believes, lies in the lysosome, the so-called suicide sack, contained in every cell.

Normally, the lysosome, a sack-like constituent of cells which contains enzymes, digests the food a cell needs for survival. However, the cell walls are sometimes ruptured during the freezing process. When they are thawed, the enzymes escape, devouring the cell itself and neighboring cells that might otherwise survive.

By introducing a highly-alkaline solution in the thawing process, "we make it impossible for the enzymes to operate efficiently," he said.

Tear Gas Lobbed At Lima Strikers

LIMA (UPI) — Police lobbed tear gas and fired into the air to disperse demonstrators on the first day of a 72-hour general strike that shut the majority of the nation's factories.

Thousands of heavily armed police and soldiers stood guard Tuesday to counter the leftist strike called to demand a wage increase of $50 a month to keep up with the nation's inflation rate of 75 per cent.

The strikers also demanded reinstatement of fired labor leaders and price ceilings on essential foods, medicines and bus fares.

Police hurled tear gas and fired over the heads of small groups of strikers who blocked streets with rocks, garbage heaps and burning tires north of the capital of Lima.

Armored cars kept traffic flowing into the capital. The strike cut down on public transportation, but most commercial businesses were open in the South American nation of 16 million people.

The greatest gains in the strike, organized by the Communist Party-controlled General Confederation of Peruvian Workers, were scored in factories located around the capital.

Most major industrial plants east of Lima and on the roads leading west to the port of Callao were shut and guarded by private security men, police and soldiers.

"The strike had almost total success with industrial workers," said Genaro Ledesma, a member of Peru's Constitutional Assembly and leader of the far left Workers, Students and Peasants Popular Front coalition.

The leftist military government of Francisco Morales Bermudez said the strike caused only minor disruptions and predicted the "the tendency toward normality should be accentuated tomorrow."

PILOT THOUGHT HE HAD FUEL

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — The pilot of a United Airlines DC-8 that crashed on the outskirts of Portland, Ore. Dec. 28 killing 10 persons said Tuesday he thought he had adequate fuel.

Malburn McBroom, interviewed for the first time by reporters at his home here, said, however, that when flames poured from the engines "I could no longer be sure I had enough fuel to make the airport."

McBroom said he chose the best spot he could for a crash landing of the jet which demolished two empty houses and slammed into a grove of trees while carrying 189 persons on a flight from Denver, Colo. to Portland.

McBroom, recovering from injuries, said the first sign of trouble on Flight 173 came when he lowered the landing gear as he approached Portland.

The 27-year veteran with United said he instinctively felt something was wrong, and that lights on his control panel strengthened that suspicion.

After tests while circling indicated a problem with the landing gear, he said he informed the passengers and the crew began to prepare for a possible emergency landing.

"There were, in fact, two emergencies," he said. "The one we knew about was the abnormal landing gear situation. We didn't know we had less fuel than we thought we had."

Gandhi Backers Win at Polls

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indira Gandhi's party scored impressive victories over Prime Minister Morarji Desai's forces in their first election test since he engineered Mrs. Gandhi's expulsion from Parliament and week-long imprisonment last month.

Final result were announced early today for the balloting on Sunday in Andhra Pradesh, a southern state that remained securely in the grip of Mrs. Gandhi's supporters when Desai's Janata party ousted Mrs. Gandhi's government in 1977.

P.S. Sankar won the Secunderabad seat by 19,945 votes over the same Janata man who lost by only 3,847 votes in 1977. In the Siddipet district, Nandi Yelliah defeated his Janata rival by 174,079 votes.

Grant-Aid Device Hit By U.S. Duty

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. treasury department, in a precedent-setting case, has slapped a countervailing duty on a Canadian import produced by a company which received a Canadian government research and development grant.

In an announcement, the department said a year-long investigation has determined that the grant to Honeywell Ltd. constituted an export subsidy within the meaning of the U.S. countervailing duty legislation.

As a result, an extra duty equal to the level of the subsidy—nine per cent, as indicated by treasury figures—was imposed this week on a Honeywell device used primarily by the oil industry to prevent the overfilling of tank trucks and storage tanks.

Thousands of the device—known as an optic liquid level sensing system—were imported by the U.S. last year.

A Canadian official said Tuesday the case represented the first time the countervailing duty legislation was used against a foreign research and development program.

The legislation is designed to stop countries from subsidizing exports to the U.S.

"It does create a precedent," the official said in an interview. "But how wide a precedent it is will depend on what happens down the pike."

The case, which the official said was one of the most hard-fought by Canada, involved $250,000 Honeywell received in 1975 under a Canadian program for the advancement of industrial technology.

Canada and Honeywell argued that since the grant was made under a research and development program, it should not be defined under U.S. legislation as an export subsidy.

Treasury ruled, however, that the money went largely toward helping Honeywell "introduce a commercially-successful product on the market."

The technology for the sensor was known to Honeywell long before it applied for the grant, treasury said, noting that the company filed in 1973 for a patent of the principal elements of the system. The company began work on the device in 1971.

The department also noted Honeywell's spending in other areas focused largely on practical or production-oriented aspects of the device.

Treasury stressed that the Honeywell decision should not be seen as an indication that all other foreign research and development grants made under the Canadian program constitute export subsidies. A case-by-case approach would be taken if further investigations are required.

It said that since research and development covers such a diverse range of action, "a determination of whether a bounty or grant has been bestowed requires an examination of the particular uses to which the funds were put."

The Canadian official said the U.S. plans, as a result of multinational trade negotiations, to change its countervailing duty regulations later this year.

The new rules will set the damage or threat of injury posed by an import to a domestic industry as the basis for changes in tariffs. At present, the question of damage is not addressed in such cases.

MR. MARVIN

Silent Start to Marvin Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge who is considered a legal expert on domestic relations will hear a $1-million lawsuit filed against actor Lee Marvin by the woman he lived with for six years.

The actor and his former lover, Michelle Triola Marvin, did not speak to each other at Tuesday's pre-trial hearing.

"It's very strange, when you walk down the hall with someone you've been very close to and they ignore you," Miss Marvin said within earshot of reporters. "I guess we're supposed to ignore each other. Aren't those the rules?"

In court, their lawyers spoke for them. Marvin Mitchelson, representing Miss Marvin, said she will waive a jury trial in the lawsuit, which may set a precedent for forcing one partner to pay alimony to the other even though they were never married.

Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall, a family court judge and expert in domestic-relations law, said he will hear final pre-trial motions Thursday morning, after which testimony can begin.

"We have a judge who can deal with the complex legal issues perhaps more readily than a jury," said Mitchelson.

He said he was worried that a jury might be swayed by emotions rather than facts.

The white-haired actor, who won an Oscar in 1965 for Cat Ballu, declined to comment on the case Tuesday. He said he "hadn't any idea what the lawyers were saying."

Miss Marvin, 46, shed a few tears in court. She said she was nervous and found the court experience "frightening."

"I know what's coming," she said. "I am going to have to disclose some very personal details of our life. And that is painful."

Miss Marvin, who legally changed her name during their six-year relationship, says she is suing Marvin for the amount she says is her fair share of the money he earned while they lived together.

Marvin, 54, says he owes Miss Marvin nothing — and, in fact, contends that she owes him $1 million. He has countersued for that amount as reimbursement for companionship and other services.

Like It or Lump It, U.K. Bumping Airline

LONDON (CP) — Despite Canadian objections, all passenger air traffic between Canada and Britain probably will be routed through the one-runway Gatwick Airport here by 1980, a British trade department official said Tuesday.

Although Air Canada opposes moving its passenger facilities from congested Heathrow Airport, the official indicated Britain was adamant that such passengers, whether travelling on Air Canada or British Airways, use the Gatwick terminal.

Air freight between the two countries would continue to be shipped through Heathrow.

"The question is no longer whether they should move, but how they should move and when," said the official, who asked not to be identified. "From a planning standpoint, the sooner the better."

He said Britain has set the target date as 1980, "but we're not wedded to that."

About 400,000 round-trip passengers a year, split equally between the two airlines, fly between Canada and Britain.

Air Canada opposes the move basically on an economic basis, and the official conceded "Air Canada will be worse off initially on the Gatwick move."

However, if Air Canada accepts proposed—but unspecified—changes in the Canada-Britain Air Services Agreement, it would benefit in the long run, he said.

The switch in airports would be made regardless of Canadian reaction, but "we hope it won't be necessary to make it an order," he added.

Talks have been going on quietly and amicably and the Canadians have agreed to study the situation further, he said.

The official said Air Canada has greatly overestimated the costs involved and had not fully taken into account benefits such as savings on landing fees and fuel, which he estimated would be about $2 million a year.

The official admitted under questioning that there were also operational difficulties at Gatwick. Among them, the lone runway was not long enough to permit long-haul, non-stop flights to take off without either scheduling a fuel stop or flying with only part loads.

NON-SMOKERS GET COURT BRUSH-OFF

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court says non-smokers have no constitutional right in the United States to be free from the annoyance and reputed health threat of inhaling tobacco smoke.

The court refused to hear a suit aimed at outlawing smoking in New Orleans' Superdome during public performances.

The lawsuit against Louisiana Stadium and Exposition District, the state-formed unit that runs the Superdome, was filed last year by seven Louisiana residents on behalf of all non-smokers who attend Superdome events.

Their suit contended that non-smokers' constitutional rights were being violated by allowing smoking to take place in a public place.

A lower court had ruled that it is up to a state legislature or the U.S. Congress to ban smoking if that is deemed appropriate.

Tanker Owners Deny It Unsafe

PARIS (UPI) — Owners of the French tanker that exploded at a Gulf Oil terminal in Ireland's Bantry Bay Monday, killing 50 crewmen and dockworkers, say the ship met equipment and maintenance safety regulations.

They denied charges by the French Seamen's Union that the Betelgeuse and other ships owned by the company had been refused entry to certain U.S. ports because they were in poor condition.

"As with all vessels of our company, the tanker Betelgeuse was regularly maintained and possessed all international certificates of security," the Compagnie Francaise de Navigation said.

"The entire crew, all French, had great competence and perfect qualifications," the firm said, noting 30 of the vessel's crew had been employed for more than 10 years.

"It still is impossible to know the causes of the accident. We must wait for results of official inquiries. Our essential task now is to bring all possible aid to the mourning families."

At Bantry, Gulf Oil spokesman Mike Regester said bad weather hampered divers trying to get near the Betelgeuse's sunken stern. Helicopters flew over the site early today for a better look but still had not come close enough to determine what caused the tanker explosion, one of the most costly in terms of lives lost.

Bubonic Plague Hits Wyoming Hunters

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — A hunter cut his finger on a bone of a rabbit he had just killed and contracted bubonic plague, the "black death" that ravaged 14th century Europe.

A Eugene, Ore., man was infected during a rabbit-hunting trip with his brother near Worland, Wyo., in early December, Dr. Lawrence Cohen, State Health and Social Services administrator said Tuesday. The victim was successfully treated and has returned to work in Eugene, he said.

The bubonic case was the first in Wyoming history.

Cohen said two other rabbits taken on the hunt also were infected with bubonic plague and advised hunters to take precautions in handling dead rabbits and their meat and to be sure the meat is cooked properly.

He warned that freezing the meat will not kill the plague-causing bacteria and he advised against handling frozen raw rabbit meat. But he said cooking a carcass so the internal temperature is raised to 180 degrees for 15 minutes would kill the bacteria and make the meat safe to eat.

In addition to being the first recorded case of human plague in Wyoming, Cohen said there were several other unusual factors:

—The disease was not transmitted through the usual means, a flea bite.

—The exposure came in winter, when fleas normally hibernate, rather than summer, when plague in animals is most common;

—Less than 10 plague cases involving rabbits have been reported in the United States.

Because of the extreme cold weather in the Worland area, it has been impossible for state personnel to capture additional rabbits and determine how widespread the plague is, Cohen said. That work will be done as soon as the weather permits, he said.

Cohen said state health officials suspect the plague-carrying rabbits are an isolated case, but he noted any fur-coated animal, particularly a hibernating one, that attracts fleas "is suspect."

Bubonic plague symptoms include high fever, generally associated with severe chills, nausea, vomiting, severe aching and gland swelling in the area of the infected wound, Cohen said. Incubation time usually is four or five days after a flea bite, but the Oregon man's incubation period was "almost like direct inoculation" because of the greater amount of bacteria transmitted, he said.

Because of the rarity of bubonic plague in humans, Cohen said, "I'd hate to be the doctor to see the first case, because plague would not be one of the things running through my mind at all."

Confirmation the Oregon man had been infected with bubonic plague came after blood samples were tested at public health agencies in Idaho, Oregon and at the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Cohen said.

According to some estimates, several epidemics of "black death," spread by travellers, wiped out almost entire populations in some European towns in the 14th century.

Save-Moresby Suit Planned

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

The Islands Protection Society said Tuesday it intends to take the provincial government to court in an attempt to force a public hearing over the planned logging of wilderness areas in the southern Queen Charlottes.

The IPS move came the day after Forest Minister Tom Waterland announced that Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd.'s tree farm licence (TFL) covering the South Moresby Wilderness Proposal area will be automatically renewed.

Waterland said no public hearing would be held.

But IPS spokesman Richard Kreiger says that his organization plans to seek an injunction against the TFL and to seek a court declaration to force a public hearing.

"We're asking for a right to be heard," said Kreiger.

Kreiger added that the government's Environment and Land Use Committee (ELUC) is in the process of completing an extensive report on the Moresby area.

"For the minister to renew the TFL before that report is completed is incredible," said Kreiger. "It's a sham."

The ELUC study has been in the works for more than a year and is based on reports from numerous agencies.

Among those who expressed concern about the Moresby logging proposal have been the federal fisheries department and the provincial fish and wildlife branch.

Federal fisheries has warned that logging in the region could cause extensive damage to salmon streams through slides and massive erosion.

Fish and wildlife representatives have asked ELUC to consider a moratorium in the area.

"Waterland should have waited until that study was completed before making his decision," said Kreiger.

In announcing his intention to renew TFL 24 the minister made no mention of ELUC.

Vancouver lawyer Garth Evans, who will act on behalf of the IPS, said that he did not want to discuss the case until after he's filed an action.

"Let me say though that, pretty clearly, what the IPS wants is a public hearing and I'll be proceeding on that basis."

Evans said that the IPS also objected to the issuance of the TFL at this time "and I feel there are certainly areas of attacking it through the courts."

Rayonier took out a 20-year TFL in the Moresby area in 1958. That licence was due to expire in May.

Kreiger said the government has renewed the licence ahead of time despite recent statements by officials in the ministry of forests that the TFL would no be issued early.

Esquimalt Dogcatcher Getting Too Costly?

Inflation is chasing the dogcatcher in Esquimalt and aldermen don't think the municipality can afford the stakes.

Members of finance committee this week referred to budget sessions a request by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for a 10 per cent hike in the $22,517 fee it charged last year for catching animals at large and other pound services.

Esquimalt could hire its own animal control officer, as does Saanich, Ald. Colin Blair suggested. But Ald. Ken Hill pointed out salary and fringe benefits would raise the annual cost to more than $20,000 and the idea was dropped.

Municipal treasurer Peter Cairns told the committee at 10 per cent higher, the SPCA bill in 1979 would be $24,768. The cost in 1978 was 10 per cent higher than the previous year.

Cairns recommended council recognize the order of Finance Minister Evan Wolfe in holding municipal spending to a 5 per cent increase this year, allowing budget deliberations in March to make the decision.

Following a petition from 58 residents in the Carrie-Craigflower area seeking a pedestrian-controlled traffic signal, engineer Mac Campbell said Craigflower is a provincial responsibility, but he will report back later.

MULTILINGUAL TELEVISION BROADCASTING

Following Public Hearings held in September, 1977 and 1978 in Toronto, Ontario, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission issued a Public Announcement dated December 27, 1978, setting out its policy with respect to multilingual television broadcasting in Canada.

Simultaneous with the release of the above-noted announcement the Commission issued Decision CRTC 78—780 approving an application by Multilingual Television (Toronto) Limited for a multilingual television station at Toronto.

Copies of the complete text of the Public Announcement and decision are available at the CRTC office, Central Building, Les Terrasses de la Chaudiere, 1 Promenade du Portage, Hull, Quebec, the Western Regional office, Suite 1130, 701 West Georgia Street, Vancouver, British Columbia, the Montreal Regional office, Suite 2114, 800 Victoria Place, Montreal, Quebec and the Atlantic Regional office, Room 428, Barrington Tower, 1894 Barrington Street, Scotia Square, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Lottery 'Slush' Figures Bared

A detailed enumeration of lottery funds distribution lends further support to the NDP allegation the grants are used for political purposes, Eileen Dailly (NDP-Burnaby North) charged Tuesday.

Analysing the disbursement of grants under the special events and miscellaneous sections, Dailly discovered a total of $1.7 million in grants were awarded to projects in Social Credit ridings, while projects in NDP ridings received just over $121,000.

"The ministers who awarded those grants gave an enormously disproportionate ratio to their political friends in the Social Credit caucus," she charged.

To arrive at the figures, Dailly excluded grants made to province-wide organizations and grants made in Vancouver and Victoria.

Although the Socreds outnumber the NDP only about two-to-one, Dailly says 93 per cent of ticket buyers' money went to help Social Credit politicians.

"Such a flagrant imbalance confirms that the lottery is being used as a political slush fund by this administration," she said.

Under the cultural category of lottery grants, Dailly says $970,000 went to Socred ridings, while $232,000 went to NDP ridings.

Dailly first raised the issue when it was disclosed a $100,000 grant was issued to build a footbridge.

Air 'Piracy' Laid to Alta.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson has urged the Canadian Transport Commission to reject Pacific Western Airlines' application for non-stop service between Calgary and Vancouver.

The Alberta government-owned airline company's latest move is "inter-provincial economic piracy bankrolled by (the) provincial treasury," he said.

In a letter to CTC head Edgar Benson made public Tuesday, Gibson says he favors non-stop service between the two cities, but the route should go to a B.C. carrier, not one whose actions hurt the B.C. economy.

Not long after the Alberta government purchased the airline, it moved the company headquarters from Vancouver to Calgary.

"When a provincial government takes it upon itself to intervene in the national transportation system in a manner both unfriendly and adverse to the interests of another province, that simply cannot be condoned," he says in his letter.

The Liberal leader also said such moves by PWA will have "serious effects on Canadian harmony."

FAMED ARCHITECT NERVI DIES AT 87

ROME — Pier Luigi Nervi, one of the world's greatest architects and a pioneer in the use of reinforced concrete, died Tuesday. He was 87.

Some of his most famous works included the headquarters of the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization in Paris, Rome's Sports Palace and central railway station and the Vatican's modernistic audience hall that carried his name until Pope John Paul renamed it the Pope Paul VI Hall last month.

Nervi, a native of Sondrio in northern Italy, obtained his civil engeering degree from the University of Bologna in 1913. Later he received honorary degrees in Argentina, Britain, West Germany, Poland and the United States.

Nervi had his own engineering firm in Rome and also taught architecture. He was a member of various foreign academies.

Goodbye, Dolly Says Mr. Blackwell

LOS ANGELES — Dolly Parton has replaced Farrah Fawcett-Majors as the "worst-dressed woman" on the annual ratings list of California designer Mr. Blackwell.

"Too many yards of Dolly poured into too few inches of fabric," Blackwell said in his 19th annnual review Tuesday.

Suzanne Somers, star of the television series Three's Company, was second on Blackwell's worst-dressed list, with Greek heiress Christina Onassis Kavzov third and model Cheryl Tiegs fourth.

Miss Somers, Blackwell said: "Looks like she was hit by a flash flood!"

About Mrs. Kavzov, he said: "Mother Earth is playing Russian roulette with her wardrobe!"

Blackwell said Miss Tiegs rates "the three Ts — Tiegs, tacky, togs . . . a moulting road runner."

Fawcett-Majors, now fifth on the worst-dressed list, "strikes a minor chord in fashion," he said.

Eighth place was shared by Cindy Williams and Penny Marshall, stars Laverne and Shirley. Blackwell described them as a "double feature disaster."

Linda Ronstadt, ranked ninth, "hits a high note in song; but a low note in fashion." Another singer, Bette Middler closed out Blackwell's Top 10.

French Quints Born

NANCY, France — A 20-year-old woman gave birth to quintuplets in hospital here Tuesday after having been treated with hormones, hospital sources reported. The mother, Marie-Helene Guidon, entered hospital several weeks ago in anticipation of a multiple birth. The condition of the three-month premature babies was not available.

NEW YORK - From now on, Suite 923 at New York's Holiday Inn is likely to be a reservation in demand — especially among Burt Reynolds fans visiting the Big Apple. He's on location there, with Candice Bergen, shooting a scene for their latest film, Starting Over. Pat Kiss, the Inn's director of sales, says the movie company picked the hotel's bridal suite — not for a love scene — but because it happens to have the terrace and alcove called for in the script.

DENVER - The management at Denver's Brown Palace Hotel is off the hook on charges of black magic bigotry. Judge Robert Kingsley says they fired Kathy Estes because she was inefficient and disobedient — not because she's a witch. Ms. Estes filed a discrimination suit after her dismissal in 1972, claiming a case of hex bias. Kingsley's Tuesday ruling steered clear of any legal definition of what constitutes discrimination against a witch.

Rape-Case Rideouts Reconciled After Three Weeks

Times News Services

SALEM, Ore. — Three weeks ago, Greta Rideout was in court testifying her husband John beat and raped her. Today the couple is living together again, having reconciled their differences, their attorneys said.

The couple was involved in the first case in the U.S. where a man was charged with raping his wife while they were married and living together.

Mrs. Rideout earlier filed for divorce but Jean Christensen, her attorney in the divorce case, said Tuesday night, "Greta called me and they are definitely reconciled."

Rideout, 21, was found innocent Dec. 27 by an eight-woman, four-man jury after a six-day trial that included detailed accounts of Mrs. Rideout's sexual history, including homosexual fantasy. Mrs. Rideout, 23, a clerical worker, claimed Rideout beat her and raped her.

Rideout, a cook in a Salem restaurant, denied he forced his wife to have sex with him but admitted he slapped her during an argument in their apartment Oct. 10, the day of the alleged rape.

The attorney who successfully defended Rideout, Charles Burt, asked Tuesday if the couple were back together, said, "They came into my office and told me that late this afternoon. My understanding is they are reconciled. It's sort of different."

She said Mrs. Rideout was "blown away by the new John."

Rideout said after his Dec. 27 acquittal that he felt both he and his wife were deeply hurt by the trial. Asked at the time how he felt about his 23-year-old wife, he said: "I don't know."

When the verdict was announced, Mrs. Rideout said she was angry, but not hostile toward her husband.

Opening lead - five of hearts.

As a general rule, if you're a defender and have the opportunity to win a trick for your side, you win it. However, there are times when — for tactical reasons — it is better to stand pat and refuse a trick you can win.

There is no magic rule that tells you when to do one or the other. It all depends on the circumstances, and they vary so much from one deal to the next that your decision basically becomes a matter of exercising good judgment.

Let's say you're West in this deal and lead a heart. Your partner wins the trick with the queen, continues with the ace, and then plays the king of hearts. South follows to all three rounds of hearts, and the question is whether or not you should win the third trick by ruffing with your queen of trumps.

Let's see what happens if you ruff. Declarer discards a club or a diamond from dummy and wins the rest of the tricks. He takes your diamond or club return in dummy, leads the nine of spades, which wins, and then takes another trump finesse to land the contract.

But is you discard a club or a diamond at trick three, you defeat the contract. Declarer must ruff the third heart lead in dummy and is sure to lose two trump tricks regardless of what he does next.

On what basis should you discard rather than ruff the king of hearts at trick three? That's a fair question, and it's entitled to a fair answer. You should reason that there's very little chance of beating the contract unless your partner has a trump holding as good as the K-x-x or J-8-x-x, and you should shape your defense to meet that possibility. Accordingly, you should discard rather than ruff. If you do, you sink the contract.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on clarity, an end to confusion, understanding of basic values. Diversify, fight inflation, experiment, ask questions, arrange an "entertainment." Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. What seems far away is closer than might be imagined. Act accordingly!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emphasis on brothers, sisters, short journeys, articles, notes and messages. Aquarius, Scorpio figure prominently. You will read between the lines. You will gain access to "private information." You will be better-informed, stronger and more confident.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You locate missing link — or person. Profits can build, cash flow resumes. Accent on personal possessions, finances. Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently. You recently suffered "financial embarrassment." Now, you make a roaring money comeback!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What you seek becomes available. Personal and business activities feature discovery and fulfillment. Be confident, direct, dynamic. You make significant gains, financial picture is brighter, home life is happier.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Much that occurs is behind the scenes, clandestine — hints are subtle, suggestions are discreet. Get antenna up, be perceptive, turn on extrasensory perception. You could gain access to confidential information. You learn how to make the most of knowledge.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on wishes that come true, friendships that become meaningful relationships. Imprint style; give full play to creative resources. Organize material, bring ambitions into focus. Member of opposite sex cares — very much — and you'll know it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasis on climbing towards goal, getting rid of superfluous material, aiding one who helped you in past. You finish important task, assignment, project. Aries figures prominently. Individual, accustomed to giving orders, makes major concession. You win!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You discover new, unique ways to express and communicate. Leo, Aquarius persons play key roles. You get green light — you'll be more independent in thought, action. You meet someone who could open door of opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Involvement in money transaction commands attention. Aquarius figures prominently. Follow through on inner feelings — don't risk basic security. One who talks a big game may actually be quaking. Know it and proceed in manner that insures your own rights.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Go slow, check various areas, factors, ask questions. Be wary of legal traps. Communicate, ask questions, accept invitation to social gathering. Someone close to you could be "stretching the truth." Know it and prepare accordingly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Service, routine and nutrition command attention. Keep up with current news concerning employment opportunities, markets, going rate. Another Aquarian figures prominently — and so does the number 4. You will be given something of value — on silver platter. Show appreciation!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be ready for tests, challenges. Accent creativity, children, swift decisions. You'll have opportunity to piece together bits of information — complete story is available. Young person grants you key vote of con-dence.

IF JANUARY 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a combination of emotion and practicality, intuition and materialism; you are loyal, sensitive and have digestive problems. Aquarius, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. June will be your most significant month of 1979, a year featuring greater security, a feeling that you "own" your residence, a sense of belonging — and being loved. Social life is active in January. Significant change occurs in February. You redecorate or change residence in April. You seldom miss the brass ring — when you decide to achieve, you do so. You are a valuable ally and a formidable foe. You're on path to greater happiness.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J.A.H. HUNTER

"That clock's been in the family a long time," said Emily. "A wedding present."

"The year is carved on the base, but figure it out," Emily replied. "Take the sum of its last two digits. Add that to the sum of the two digits of that sum, and to the square of their sum. You get the last two digits again."

All that for a simple date! What was it?

MAKE INFLATION YOUR SERVANT
This is what happens when you have a long term lease. Not only is your own rent fixed at a surprisingly low level, but as the rental market inflates, the value of your lease increases. Prestige location on Fairfield side of Beacon Hill Park. One BR, sauna baths, whirlpool, workshop, rooftop lounge, covered parking. You pay $29,500 for 95-year lease, which works out at $26.00 per mo. (plus actual cost of upkeep). When you no longer need the apartment, then sell the remaining term of the lease for the then market value. If you are tired of being hit in the pocket book by continually higher rents, then investigate this. You'll be glad you did. Don Bacon, Byron Price & Assoc. Ltd. 595-6588 or 385-2458.

HOW TO WRITE
CLASSIFIED ACTION
AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Flower Pots Youngsters Can Make

January and February are months when parents and teachers look for projects to keep the six-to-10-year-olds interested. Why not bring out the old but useful idea of making plant containers from discarded food containers? These can be used later in winter for seed sowing indoors and for setting out the seedlings as they need more space before being planted in the garden.

Small flower pots of clay are not too easy to get nowadays and are high in price when found; plastic pots can be bought but many parents and teachers do not wish, or are not able, to make these purchases..

Even the most conservative household has a few non-disposable food containers brought in during a month. They are emptied but apart from loading the garbage can, what can be done with them? They are certainly non-returnable to any business for the same use again, but a little imagination brings other uses, for the rigid plastic containers and egg cartons are waterproof and not easily destructible.

Tin cans of various sizes have been used for years in home gardening. I suppose the prairie and eastern farmer's wife started the idea when pioneering in the wilds of Canada's early days. Who doesn't remember seeing the honey pail geranium thriving in old house windows across the country?

Since then, nurserymen gathered the larger cans, burned out the oily ones, and grew plants in them for a year or two before offering them for sale with no distrubance of the roots before planting in the garden. This was the begining of container-grown plants.

For the indoor gardening project, a few empty cans of sizes ranging from the small milk cans to those squatty ones used for ground coffee or tobacco are suitable.

First the containers, plastic or tin, must be well washed in soapy water to remove food or other particles. Often the lids will serve as catch saucers underneath after filling with soil mixture.

Every plastic container, such as margarine and cottage cheese tubs, needs to have a row of holes punched in the side near the bottom with a sharp nail driven in with a small hammer. Keep the lid on while punching to give rigidity to the tub sides. Holes around the outside give better drainage than those punched in the base of containers.

Tin cans need thorough washing, too. Remove labels, punch two or three holes near bottom at sides, these with the sharp point of a combined bottle opener and can puncher; three in small cans, four in larger.

Now comes a decorative touch. Scraps of waterproof wallpaper may be pasted on. Wrapping paper with a pattern may be cut into size and shape, a use for discarded Christmas wrappings.

A band of plain paper on the side of each container will form an information label to record the kind of seed or plant name, with date of sowing or planting and other important points. In a school class, the name of the child responsible for the container must also be recorded on the label. This adds much interest to the child and gives him or her a sense of responsibility and ownership.

Foil trays are found in some homes where frozen meals are used, while plastic trays are sometimes a part of commercial packing for certain raw foods. These two items make good drip saucers for the containers having drainage holes. There will be slight dampness always and occasional drainage after watering.

This project serves two purposes: one is to interest youngsters in the production of food, giving them the idea that it is important and at the same time of great interest; the other is to make a second use of discarded material, thus avoiding to some degree the vast quantity of waste material surrounding civilization today.

Regional Takeover Of Parks Proposed

The Capital Regional District has been asked to take over and maintain 225 acres of parkland now being handled by the provincial government's parks department.

Regional board chairman Murray Glazier said Tuesday the parks are the 106-acre Thomas Francis Park and the 119-acre Freeman King park.

The board running the two parks and the Victoria Natural History Society, sponsor of the parks, had asked the provincial government to give jurisdiction to the regional district because, as Class C parks, provincial maintenance is minimal.

Glazier said while the government has chastised regional districts for their budgets, this is the second time in a week the government has asked the regional district to take over one of its functions. The first instance was dog control in unorganized territories.

The regional district already has 10 parks, covering 6,000 acres. Its parks budget for 1978 was $507,880, of which the provincial government contributed $64,100.

Glazier said his first step will be to call for a report on how much maintaining trails, signs and garbage collection and other services in the parks will cost. He said vandalism had been a problem in both parks.

He said the natural history group is willing to continue to provide a part-time naturalist and staff the nature centre, services which cost the society slightly more than $2,000 in 1978.

While stressing the parks turnover is another instance of the government shelving responsibility to other levels of government, Glazier said it is appropriate the parks be included in the regional system.

"They are of value to the whole region — indeed beyond that — there ought to be provincial support for it (parks maintenance)," he said.

"We'll accept our responsibilities and we can do it because we've got the people on the maintenance staff to do what has to be done," he added. "It really would be a good system of parks. They will be a tremendous addition to the regional parks system."

HEAT FELLS 20

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — At least 20 persons were taken to hospital after collapsing as temperatures here soared to 44 degrees Celsius.

In southeast Australia, scores of firefighters battled a brushfire that has already destroyed 10,000 acres of tinder-dry woodland.

Firemen were using bulldozers and aircraft in a bid to control the huge blaze, which was burning forest and national parkland in the state of Victoria.

Fresh Frozen Heroin

GLASGOW (AFP) — Scottish Chinese restaurant owners were startled last week when they opened packets of frozen shrimps from Hong Kong to find they were packed with heroin. Police said the drug, with a black market value of several million pounds, was smuggled into Britain from a ship which had been diverted from the southern English port of Southampton to Newcastle.

SERVICES FOR ROAF IN OTTAWA

Funeral services were held in St. Alban the Martyr Church in Ottawa today for Brig. William Roaf, former B.C.-Yukon Commissioner of Boy Scouts and first chairman of the Museums Board of Greater Vancouver.

Well known in Victoria, he served 21 years with the Department of Veterans' Affairs, becoming its western regional administrator.

A veteran of the Second World War, Roaf was for 20 years deputy commandant of the B.C. Corps of Commissionaires' board of trustees. He was also master of the Cascade Lodge of Vancouver Freemasons.

He is survived by his widow, Mary, sons John of London, Alan of Toronto and Peter of Ottawa, and a brother John of Vancouver.

Saanich Cutbacks Warning

Saanich may have to reduce its present level of municipal service or slash capital expenditures, or both, to comply with Finance Minister Evan Wolfe's five-per-cent ceiling on the 1979 municipal budget increase.

That forecast came from municipal controller Roy Broughton, who told the finance committee Tuesday night Saanich would have "great difficulty" meeting the provincially-imposed restrictions without such cutbacks.

Broughton noted that 1979 wage settlements for municipal staff have yet to be negotiated, but pointed out that even a five per cent increase would amount to $540,000 — or more than 54 per cent of the allowable $995,000 budget increase.

Meanwhile, goods and services the municipality acquires have had cost increases of more than 10 per cent and in some cases as high as 34 per cent, he said.

The recent government announcement also decreed that 1979 mill rates should be held to the 1978 level, but Broughton said Saanich's general purpose mill rate may have to be slightly less than the 1978 rate to stay within the maximum five per cent budget increase.

Ald. Howard Sturrock said the clear message from the controller's statement seems to be that Saanich cannot accept budget increases of more than five per cent by agencies such as the Greater Victoria Library Board.

Otherwise, he said, Saanich will have to prune its expenditures in other fields to compensate for the violation of spending guidelines in certain areas.

The library board has submitted its provisional 1979 budget reflecting a 5.5 per cent increase over last year, but that doesn't include any provision for salary increases.

Broughton said once 1979 salary adjustments are incorporated the actual increase will probably be closer to 10 per cent.

Fuel Cost Hike Causing More Fires: Chief

During November Saanich firefighters received nearly three times as many calls as in the same month of 1977, and Fire Chief Art Fryer says one of the reasons is the steady increase in oil prices.

More and more Saanich residents are turning to solid fuels to replace or supplement oil furnaces, he told council's protective services committee, and this in turn has led to more chimney fires.

Fryer said officers in the department's inspection branch have noticed a significant increase in the number of heating systems using wood or coal.

He was replying to Mayor Mel Couvelier, who wanted to know why there had been 140 fire calls last November, compared with only 48 a year previously.

Fryer explained that another factor in the department's recent busy spell has been grass fires, caused by an unusually dry winter.

"We have noticed a tremendous jump in grass fires," he added.

Tax Fight Looms Again Over UVic

Saanich is about to renew the fight for tax or grant compensation from the provincial government in recognition of the services the municipality provides to the University of Victoria.

And this time the municipality may ask neighboring Oak Bay and UVic itself to join the assault.

The brief will be presented for approval at council's next regular meeting on Monday and at that time council will probably ask Oak Bay council and the university to endorse the approach.

Municipal controller-treasurer Roy Broughton said in a memorandum to the committee that UVic's recent report assessing the economic impact of the university on the surrounding area created the impression that taxes or grants in lieu of taxes should not be paid to municipalities within whose boundaries the institution is located.

Broughton quoted one reference in the university report, to the effect that "Essentially the municipalities provide only police and fire services."

But actual services provided extend far beyond that, to include such things as sidewalks, sewers, storm drainage, parks, libraries and recreational services, the official said.

"It should also be remembered that students not only come from other places in British Columbia but from other countries, and it would therefore seem illogical that any one or two municipalities should be required to subsidize their education, even if it is a relatively small amount involved."

However, J.E. Currie, assistant to UVic president Dr. Howard Petch, assured aldermen that the university is "on the same side as the municipalities on this question of taxation."

In other business Tuesday night the finance committee:

— Recommended that the interest rate on prepaid property taxes be increased from the present eight per cent to nine per cent, retroactive to Jan. 1. The increase brings Saanich more in line with rates paid by neighboring municipalities.

— Urged council to make a grant of $250 to the Vancouver Island E & N Steering Committee, the group fighting to keep passenger rail service alive on the Island.

— Decided to ask the Capital Region Board to draft a standard set of regulations governing the sale of fireworks, for the use of all Greater Victoria municipalities.

Tree-Cut Law Ideas Hacked

Since it first surfaced nearly a year ago Saanich's proposed tree-cutting bylaw has been chopped and hacked around considerably, but that mutilation was nothing to the treatment the latest draft received Tuesday night.

By the time municipal officials, aldermen and indignant residents had finished pulling the document apart with verbal chainsaws, the end result was something akin to a clear-cut logging operation.

After a lengthy debate council's finance and legislative committee referred the matter to the municipal solicitor to draft a bylaw of more restricted scope, applying principally to certain designated areas of tree protection and to commercial and industrial developments.

Among the specific criticisms of the latest bylaw draft by senior officials were complaints by the municipal solicitor that several sections were ultra vires or sloppily worded.

Municipal engineer Clifford Warren predicted the proposed "blanket approach" to tree protection would cause delays in approving building permits, and planner Gil Laurenson said he preferred education to legislation.

But Ald. Fred Severson called it discriminatory and said it was almost an insult to Saanich residents because the inference was that they were all ready to cut down trees on the merest whim.

Arborist Michael Gye, a member of the Citizens' Environmental Advisory Committee which prepared the draft bylaw, expressed disappointment at the criticism and suggested the whole question of tree protection policies be put to a referendum.

"I feel perhaps it might be an idea to get to the root of the matter and find out whether Saanich people really do care about a steadily decreasing tree population," he said.

Mayor Hopeful On Police Board

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier expressed the hope Tuesday that the provincial cabinet will choose a Saanich police board replacement for lawyer Bob Hutchison from a list of names already submitted by the municipality.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom "has the ball" and knows there is a vacancy to be filled following Hutchison's resignation last week, the mayor said.

First Saanich council objected on grounds that it had not submitted Hutchison's name for consideration, and because the B.C. Police Commission had not approved the appointment.

Then the Saanich Police Association applied to the B.C. Supreme Court for a writ to have the appointment declared illegal.

Couvelier said the logical step now is for Gardom to recommend a replacement for Hutchison from among the three names recommended by Saanich: Eldon Roe, Patricia Carfra and Alan Peterson.

TV Only for Eclipse

Dr. Sean B. Murphy, president of the Canadian Opthalmological Society, says the only completely safe method of viewing the sun is on television.

"Other devices like pinholes and filters are subject to misuse with cases of retinal burn from visible and infrared radiation to the retina occurring and resulting in serious and permanent loss of vision."

Murphy says the society, which is the national scientific association of eye physicians and surgeons, "is not in favor of promoting any device that could be misused and lead to retinal damage."

NDP Jumps Ahead in Poll

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The NDP is a solid eight point leader over the Socreds with 44 per cent of the decided voters, according to a province-wide poll conducted in December by Canadian Opinion Research.

The poll — commissioned by the provincial Conservative party — shows the Socreds trailing with 36 per cent, the Tories with 15 per cent and the Liberals in last place with five per cent.

A surprisingly high 67 per cent of the voters told the pollsters their minds were made up.

The results indicate marked increases in popularity for both the NDP and the Tories, while the Socreds and Liberals have fallen from voter favor.

Barrett refused to discuss the results of the poll saying he never comments on political polls.

In the December, 1975 general election, the Socreds won 49 per cent of the popular vote while picking up 35 seats, the NDP received 39 per cent for 18 seats, the Liberals gained seven per cent and the Tories under four for one seat each.

The Tory party has almost quadrupled its popularity since the election giving rise to hopes by Tory leader Vic Stephens that the party is on its way back in B.C. provincial politics.

In releasing the results of the poll, Stephens today told a press conference the poll shows the Conservatives don't take votes away from Social Credit as is popular belief, but gained its strength from the NDP.

Stephens said the poll proves that if Premier Bill Bennett goes for an early election, he's going to lose.

"There's a great disenchantment in the land at this moment," he said.

And the Tory leader feels the people of B.C. are growing weary of voting against one of the two major parties out of fear.

He said there's no doubt Bennett will rely heavily on the NDP resurgence to try to scare voters into voting Social Credit but Stephens says he will meet that fear campaign head on and feels voters are ready to do the same.

The poll surveyed the public's reasons for their voting preferences and what factors might cause them to change.

Based on that response Stephens said there is no possibility of Social

Tory Lead Slipping In Gallup Charts

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Liberals breathed a collective sigh of relief today after the latest Gallup poll showed the Progressive Conservatives' lead over the governing party is slipping.

The latest public opinion poll shows that among decided voters, support for the Conservatives dropped to 40 per cent from 45 per cent the previous month.

Liberal support increased to 38 per cent from 35 per cent and New Democratic Party support remained at 18 per cent. Four per cent of the decided electorate supported other parties and 33 per cent were undecided.

"We are pleased but not complacent," Senator Alastair Graham, Liberal party president, said in a telephone interview from Halifax.

Walter Baker, Conservative House leader, said he was not surprised at the results.

Baker (Grenville-Carleton) said Conservative Leader Joe Clark and he had predicted "there would be a coming together of the major parties."

"It would be healthy for the party (Conservatives) if we do not maintain the lead so we are not lulled by a false sense of security."

Kaplan said voters are realizing that "changing the government is not the solution" to their problems.

He said Canadians are rejecting Clark because of his stand on the Crown corporation Petro-Canada and his promise to negotiate sovereignty-association with the Quebec government.

Interviews for the poll took place Dec. 1 to 4, just after the three-day federal-provincial economie conference in Ottawa. At the conference, Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers were unable to make progress toward an industrial strategy.

Romania-Soviet Rift on Cambodia

Times News Services

Romania broke ranks with the Soviet bloc today to denounce the Soviet-supported Cambodian takeover as a menace to world peace.

The official Romanian Communist Party newspaper Scinteia said the insurgent move is "a heavy blow for the prestige of socialism" and a threat to East-West detente.

"No reasons and arguments whatsoever can justify intervention and interference in the affairs of another state, whatever their form, especially when two socialist countries are involved," the newspaper said in an article quoted by the official Agerpress news agency.

The Romanian statement was issued one day after the Soviet Union and other Eastern European governments recognized the new government in Phnom Penh.

Romania's break with Kremlin policy was the second in six weeks.

Late in November, President Nicolae Ceausescu told of major differences between his country and its Warsaw pact allies over military spending and defence co-ordination.

Meanwhile, in New York former Cambodian chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, seeking U.N. condemnation of Vietnam's "naked aggression" against his country, conferred for more than an hour today with Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

According to reports received in Bangkok, officials of Cambodia's ousted Khmer Rouge regime today claimed they are fighting "house to house" against Vietnamese invaders that have swept over the country.

The report came from Thai foreign ministry officials who said they met today with three Khmer Rouge officials in the Cambodian border town of Poipet and were handed a letter from a senior Cambodian communist.

The Thai officials told UPI correspondent Paul Wedel the letter was from former foreign minister Ieng Sary, the No 2 man in the Khmer Rouge regime.

Contents of the letter were not disclosed, but there was speculation it might contain a request for political asylum.

Ieng Sary and other Khmer Rouge leaders are thought to have escaped Phnom Penh and headed north along Highway 5 on the western side of the Tonle Sap lake hours before the capital fell Monday.

Intelligence sources said the Vietnamese had slowed their advance into the northern part of the country, apparently to close up communications and supply lines.

WOMAN KILLED

Glenella Hardy, of 347-2251 Cadboro Bay Road, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday night.

Mrs. Hardy was struck by a car shortly before 4 p.m. Saturday as she walked across the road in front of her apartment.

The driver of the car was Lorraine Alice Ayers, 49, of 3940 Smuggler's Cove Road.

Cancer Caused By Beer?

HAMBURG (AP) — Concern over the presence of a suspected cancer-causing agent in beer is spreading in West Germany, the self-proclaimed beer capital of the world.

The weekly magazine Stern reported here Tuesday that a West German study of 158 domestic and foreign beers found the agents — known as nitrosamines — in 111 brands.

Nitrosamines have caused cancer in animals when given in huge doses, but scientists do not agree on whether there is a danger to humans.

The U.S. Brewers Association said last September that initial studies showed some American beers contained tiny traces of nitrosamines — two or three parts per billion. Further tests are being conducted.

But the West German study found concentrations up to 68 parts per billion, Stern said, with heaviest doses in dark and strong beers.

"In view of the high consumption of beer (in Germany) even the smallest concentrations of nitrosamines are to be taken seriously," said the director of the study, Prof. Rudolf Preussmann of the Cancer Research Centre in Heidelberg.

The average West German drank 38.7 gallons of beer a year in 1977, the latest year for which figures are available.

The German Brewers Association said the study showed the most popular types of beer were practically free of nitrosamines.

We're Too Individual: Clark

TOKYO (CP) — Canadians are too individually oriented to learn to work for their common good as well as the Japanese, Opposition Leader Joe Clark said today.

"We simply have a different culture, we're far more individually oriented," he told an impromptu news conference in a Tokyo subway station after a sweaty five-minute ride with hundreds of Japanese commuters and an entourage of embassy officials, reporters and cameramen. (See Fotheringham on page 3).

Looking back on a four-day visit here before leaving on a 14-hour flight to New Delhi, Clark said he is impressed "by the way Japan operates as an integrated community."

However, he said that he believes it is probably impossible to transfer to Canada the kind of national unity found in Japan.

China Agrees To $1B Wheat Deal

PEKING (Reuter) — China has agreed to negotiate a long-term wheat-purchase agreement with Canada which should amount to at least $1 billion during a three-year period, Trade Minister Jack Horner said today.

Horner told a news conference in Peking the Chinese said they intend at least to maintain and perhaps increase purchases of Canadian wheat in the future.

The managing director of the China National Cereals, Oil and Foodstuffs Corp. will lead a mission to Canada in late February to negotiate a long-term contract with the Canadian wheat board, the minister said.

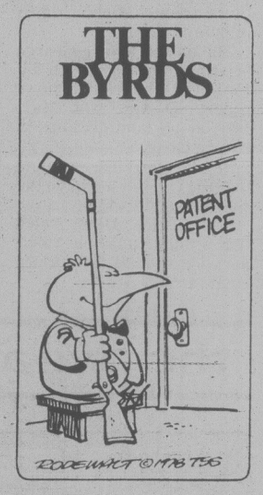
He said the Chinese also have expressed concern over Canadian transportation facilities, and the mission will begin its tour with a visit to the Vancouver port facilities. It is expected to arrive about Feb. 22, although the final date has not been fixed.

Horner said that China has purchased an average of 2.4 million tons of wheat annually from Canada during the last 10 years. Purchases in 1977-78 amounted to 3.5 million tons, while China has so far contracted to buy three million tons in the period from September 1978 to August 1979.

The minister said no specific duration has been agreed on for the proposed agreement, but the Chinese "may well be interested in a longer period than three years."

On pricing, Horner said the Chinese have clearly stated they have no complaints with the prices set by the Canadian wheat board and this is not expected to be a problem. In the past, he said, the Chinese have paid 25 per cent down on delivery and have completed payment in 18 months.

The minister, accompanied by Canadian businessmen, arrived in Peking last Sunday. He will leave for Canton Thursday and then go to Hong Kong.



Shovel Quote Cited

Cartoonist Bob Bierman was reminded of his life in Nazi-occupied Holland by a comment of Bill Vander Zalm when he was appointed human resources minister in 1975, B.C. Supreme Court was told Tuesday.

Bierman, freelance cartoonist for the Victoria Times, was testifying on the second day of a libel action brought by Vander Zalm against Times Publishers, a division of FP Publications (Western) Ltd., then-publisher Stuart Underhill, editor Barbara McLintock and Bierman over a June 22 cartoon.

The comment was to the effect that able-bodied welfare recipients should pick up a shovel and work for their income.

Bierman was being asked what actions and comments by Vander Zalm were in his mind as he prepared the cartoon in issue. One of them, he said, was the shovel statement.

"It scared me, to a certain extent. It recalled the time in my life when that sort of statement was being made in my home country during the German occupation and forced labor and the Nazi times," he said.

Of the cartoon in issue, showing Vander Zalm pulling wings off flies, Bierman said he tried to say in his cartoon that the minister had a cruel attitude towards underprivileged people cared for by his ministry, especially Indians.

The flies, he said, depicted the helpless Indians that in the minister's words were being attracted to the big lights of the city. The minister was depicted as clipping their wings so they couldn't roam around any more and be attracted to the bright lights.

What prompted the cartoon, he said, was a comment by Vander Zalm to the effect that Indians would have better opportunities if they returned to their reserves.

He referred to a number of other statements attributed to Vander Zalm and said it was his over-all impression that the minister's statements were thoughtless, not well thought out.

One of them, he said, was to the effect that women

3 Teenagers Held in Robbery

Two juvenile girls and a 15-year-old boy are in custody after an elderly storeowner was attacked with a knife and robbed of about $200 Tuesday night.

The girls, aged 15 and 16, and the boy are to appear in Family Court charged with armed robbery.

Victoria police said Matthews was closing his shop about 9:30 p.m. when two girls walked in.

One bought a candy bar and as Matthews was putting away the money the other girl came behind the counter, pulled a knife and demanded the money in the till.

As Matthews struggled with the girl — at one point she bit him on the right wrist — the other girl snatched a handful of bills from the cash tray.

Matthews said at the same time he saw a boy trying unsuccessfully to open another cash register at the rear of the store.

Constable Brian Tugwell, who was on foot patrol in the area, spotted the girls running along Yates and ducking into Maynard Court.

Although unaware there had been a robbery, he radioed other officers in the area to look out for the girls since they were acting suspiciously.

Two officers a block away on Johnson saw the girls ran out of an alley and were questioning them when the report of the robbery came through.

The boy was found in a nearby restaurant.

PO Mail Forwarding Trimmed

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The post office has cut back on its service for redirecting wrongly-addressed mail.

No longer will post office employees use telephone directories, city directories or other sources to put the correct address on much of the mis-directed first-class items mailed in Canada.

The directory services will only be used for mail of international origin; first-class items of value; and special service items — registered and certified mail, COD's, Post Pak, telepost and special delivery — and first, second, and third-class domestic parcels containing items of value.

All other wrongly-addressed mail will be returned to sender or, in cases where there is no return address, left in the post office where it arrived.

Victoria post office spokesman Buzz Sawyer says the service is being trimmed for cost-cutting reasons.

He said last year there were 25.5 million pieces of mail that couldn't be delivered.

Using all available sources, post office staff were only able to redirect nine million pieces.

The cost for providing the service with a 38-per-cent success rate was $2.8 million.

He said every imaginable item finds its way to the post office's directory service section, including truck axles, wallets, hotel keys, social security cards, money and cheques.

He said the problem is people move around a great deal and those trying to correspond with them don't keep up with their change of address.

Sawyer said the only way to ensure your letter doesn't end up in the dead-end section of the post office is to make sure you keep all your correspondents advised of your current address.

Why Not Medicare For Pets?

CERTAINLY IT WAS ONE of the most difficult interviews I have ever conducted. Each scratch of the pen got me a paw in my left ear. Every time I moved I got all of Buck — best described as a much-too-lovable mutt — on top of me.

The same thing happened whenever my face showed the slightest sign of being agreeable. Then Theo the talking budgie landed on my head.

But in between all the pawing and the crash-landings Peggy Caswell somehow managed to get her point across. There should, she insisted, be an insurance policy to cover medical bills for pets.

There isn't. Not a thing. And what would you do tomorrow if your pet whatsit was badly hurt or suddenly came down with a mysterious illness? You wouldn't dream of having it destroyed, would you? Yet what you probably don't know is that the vet's bill could put you in the poorhouse, if you aren't there already.

Take Peggy and Ray Caswell. They're not in the poorhouse but they did get one hell of a shock.

With both of their sons grown and long since left home, Peggy, a licenced practical nurse and Ray, an orderly for 27 years at the Memorial Pavilion (formerly Veterans Hospital), wanted to get a dog for company.

And so they moved out of the Dallas Road apartment where they'd lived for six years and bought a little house on Battleford Avenue to do them until they retire nearer their children's families on the Mainland. That was a year ago.

At the same time they acquired Buck from the SPCA for the not too grand sum of $7. But while little money was involved, it became a big investment in love for the Caswells who grew closer and closer to their mutt as he grew and grew.

Then, on the way to go camping at Weir's Beach in the fall, Buck worked the catch on a window loose and leapt from the back canopy of the family's camper truck as it sped along. He broke his left hind leg.

Peggy and Ray took Buck to one of the big veterinary hospitals in the area where he was X-rayed. They were then told the dog would need an operation and his leg would have to be pinned.

"The vet asked if we wanted him to fix our dog up and we said 'By all means,'" Peggy said. "We never thought of having him put to sleep. I know he was just a little thing from the SPCA but, after all, he'd become one of the family."

The veterinary hospital, however, gave the Caswells no indication of costs involved and when, a few days later, they returned to pick Buck up they were presented with a bill for $330!

"Initially the bill was $250 for the operation," Peggy explained. "But then it started to mount with another $16 for X-rays and $14 a night to leave him there, so much to put the pins in and so much to take them out again. And suddenly it was over $300.

"Well, we couldn't afford to pay that much straight away," Peggy said. "But we paid the whole thing off over three months and I think that was fair enough."

"They kept pestering us for the money and when Ray phoned to see about having the pins removed and we had just $80 left to pay, the vet told him: 'Bring the money. No money, no work!'"

It must seem never-ending to the Caswells as last week Buck slipped and sprained one of his front paws and they've just had to pay another $26 for an examination and a booster shot.

"My son Douglas who lives in Kamloops has an old dog named Sam and they've spent a mint on him, too," Peggy said. "Someone shot him with a pellet gun and his lung collapsed. They saved him after that but now he's having all his teeth out."

There can often be big expenses with pets, Peggy said, and that's why she feels insurance companies should offer policies to cover vets' bills, much the same way as people are covered under MSA.

VICTORIA SPCA manager Don Adams told me that though there was such a policy available some time ago, there is nothing now.

"The Vancouver SPCA offers coverage to its members but that's because it has its own clinic," Adams explained. "We don't have anything like that over here."

As pensioner Murray Black, a friend of the Caswells, said:

"The thing is, people are walking into this blind if they just go into a vet's or to one of those animal hospitals and want their injured pet fixed up."

Black, who bought his dog for $10 from the SPCA in Montreal seven years ago, said he would not be able to pay the bills if anything happened to it.

"And yet you can't get insurance to guard against it," he said.

"I couldn't pay that kind of money — I'd have to have my dog put to sleep."

CHAINSAW FARMING? That's one way of describing the technique used by the Vantreight family's daffodil and tulip operation to beat the recent cold spell. Chainsaws had to be used to cut through the six-inch-thick layer of frozen sawdust covering the flats of bulbs so that they could be taken from the Gordon Head fields off Tyndall to the protection of the greenhouses. Care is essential in prying off the sectioned blocks to avoid breaking the shoots which have grown up into the sawdust blanket. Grower Ian Vantreight says the method — used only once before, in the early 1950s — was necessary because they couldn't wait any longer for the ground to thaw. "We got through 12 chains and two complete saws this morning," he groaned. (Bill Halkett photos)

Veitch: Priority For Centre

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Tourism Minister Elwood Veitch has put a high priority on a convention centre for Victoria, Chamber of Commerce president Mel Cooper said today.

He said at a meeting Tuesday with the new minister the chamber asked for provincial help in obtaining a conference centre and the minister replied the request had come at a good time.

"Mr. Veitch referred to a report he had just received from his convention department stating that both Victoria and Vancouver urgently need facilities for conferences."

The report shows B.C. in general and the two major urban areas in particular do not have adequate tourist facilities to attract off-season visitors to the province.

"We did not go into financial details at the meeting but obviously a conference centre will require three-way participation by the provincial government, the city and the business community," Cooper said.

Under discussion, he added, is the proposal to construct a conference centre in a waterfront complex on the former Reid site.

"This proposal is rapidly coming to a head. I would expect a decision very soon. We were encouraged by the statement of the minister that the provincial government is aware of the need."

Under a provincial government proposal, private enterprise would operate a restaurant-shopping centre on the waterfront and a conference centre would become part of the project.

A convention board would be appointed to operate the conference centre. Financing the building and operating costs are matters that still must be ironed out.

Other matters discussed at the chamber's first meeting with Veitch, he said, include plans for the coming tourist season.

"Our discussion was quite general but both sides expressed a wish to carry forward with the momentum of our successful season in 1978."

Cooper said package tours and the role of the Marguerite will both be important this year.

"We hope to meet with the minister again soon when we will be able to go into more detail on these ideas. We hope to develop the same kind of open relationship with him that we had with the previous minister (Grace McCarthy)."

Brice Bucks Pickup Over College Snub

Former Greater Victoria school board chairman Susan Brice said today she intends to fight her successor's move to drop three trustees from Camosun College council.

Brice acknowleged Carol Pickup as chairman is entitled to change appointments, but said there is a principle involved.

She said Pickup's method of selecting appointees wouldn't stand up under public scrutiny.

Pickup made her selections without asking trustees for their opinions or suggestions and didn't supply any information about the proposed appointees, Brice charged.

The issue has sparked a procedural dispute that might prove embarrassing to Pickup's intended appointees, Brice said.

Pickup nominated as their replacements trustees Martin Levin and Mary Breer. Also nominated were non-trustee Beryl Young and former trustee Dr. Hal Knight.

In making the changes, Pickup said she was exercising her prerogative as chairman.

She said it is important to give new trustees and members of the community the opportunity to participate in the decision-making process of the college.

The new appointments were angrily opposed by the trustees and debate continued to the close of the meeting at 10:30. The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 15.

The board met for the first time Monday night but was unable to complete even half the agenda.

School board appointees to the council are responsible for a $10 million budget and help form the institution's educational policies, Brice said.

She said she has no idea who Beryl Young is, and can't approve her appointment.

"There was only a name. No address or even a sketchy details of her background. Not one shred of information."

Fisher said today he made it clear to Pickup last week he wants to sit on the college council.

"I told her it was my first priority, but she must have already made up her mind when she talked to me," said Fisher, who added he is the only trustee with three years experience on the college board.

Fisher said all school board appointments to the council should be trustees.

Local taxpayers contribute 15 per cent of the college's $10 million budget and are entitled to representation from its elected officials, he said.

He said Pickup's appointments would mean that only two of the seven seats on the council would be filled by trustees.

The government appoints three people to the board who frequently have little knowledge of college procedure, Fisher said.

Pickup's decision to revoke the appointment is a sign of non-confidence, Fisher said.

Detector Saves Elderly

Police said the 33 residents of McAndrew Lodge, 1037 Lyall, were in bed when the alarm sounded in the basement at 10:25 p.m.

Some of the staff and residents went to the basement to investigate and when they opened the door a chair in the room burst into flames.

They had extinguished the fire and taken the chair outside by the time firemen arrived.

The cause is believed to have been careless smoking.

Lawyer Hired In Rent Hassle

Victoria businessman Nick Liberto said today he has hired a lawyer to help sort out a dispute with the owners of the Ste. Michelle winery site.

The dispute is about whether Liberto's company, Dorosz Tool Co., has defaulted on its rent.

"My lawyer has instructed me to say nothing other than that the reports that allege we have been evicted as a result of our inability to pay rent or non-payment of rent are false."

Liberto said he should be able to clarify the situation by week's end.

A spokesman for Henry Eng, owner of the property, said no rent had been received for December or January for 30,000 square feet of space in the building which was reserved for Dorosz Tool Co.

Mayor Gets the Bird

Crow Blitzkrieg Proposal Shot Down by Allies

By MARK HUME Times Staff

But Couvelier, the would-be instigator of a war against the local crow population, was shot down by his own allies.

At a Tuesday meeting of the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee, Couvelier got the bird almost before his plan of attack got off the ground.

He was turned on by his colleague Ald. John Mika, Esquimalt Ald. Jim McEvay and others who made it clear the committee didn't want people running around the countryside trying to blast the crows with shotguns and wasn't too keen on hit squads infiltrating nesting areas, shinnying up trees and bashing in the eggs.

"The crows are taking over the world — well, in Greater Victoria," Couvelier said.

But the committee was unmoved.

Before reaching its decision the committee studied a number of letters on the matter, including a report from Saanich police chief Bob Peterson.

The chief said his depratment has been called on numerous times in the past to deal with crows, but has found no satisfactory way to handle the problem.

"Mainly, the complaints were about the early morning noise from these birds, which caused some people a loss of sleep. Our response to such complaints was, albeit reluctantly, to send a policeman, armed with a shotgun, to or near the complainant's property, where an attempt would be made to destroy the crows . . . (however) Those residents who may not have been disturbed by the crows certainly were disturbed and upset by the sound of the shotgun blasts."

The committee also heard from J.B. Tatum and David Stirling, who wrote that in this day and age there's no room for the "pioneer mentality that supposes that any species of animal that is conspicuous enough or numerous enough for its presence actually to be noticed serves as a good excuse for hunters to go out and shoot it."

Tourists Lured by Weak $

By CAROL GOAR
Canadian Press

OTTAWA — Recent travel statistics indicate the country may be on the verge of a turn-around in its nagging travel deficit with the rest of the world, thanks mainly to a weak Canadian dollar.

Statistics for the last few months indicate Canadians have noticeably curtailed their foreign trips while more visitors are entering the country.

Government spokesmen privately admit the long-awaited improvement has little to do with Finance Minister Jean Chretien's exhortations to vacation at home. The department is more or less resigned to the prospect of a perennial winter migration to the United States, said one official.

But they say Canadians and non-U.S. tourists have finally begun to react to last year's 15-per-cent drop in the value of the Canadian dollar compared to its U.S. counterpart.

But the improvement, they say, has come too late in the year to avoid the largest travel deficit in history — several million dollars higher than the 1977-78 $1.64 billion record deficit.

Unofficial government forecasts put the 1978-79 international travel deficit at $1.7 billion and the 1979-80 deficit between $1.5 billion and $1.6 billion.

During the third quarter of the current fiscal year, the country's deficit in international travel, which had been running at an annual level of $1.78 billion since the beginning of the year, dropped to $1.70 billion.

The change was almost entirely due to a shift in travel patterns between Canada and foreign countries other than the United States. While travel with the U.S. showed little change, Statistics Canada recorded a 17.6-per-cent increase in overseas visits by the end of last November compared with the same 11 months of 1977. During the same period, Canadian trips abroad increased bs just 1.1 per cent.

Latest monthly statistics show a 2.4-per-cent drop in Canadian visits abroad during November.

"We're forecasting an even more significant cut in the volume of foreign travel in the future," said a finance official. "Overseas travel is highly responsive to price changes."

A Statistics Canada spokesman put it this way: "There's been a real reversal in travel patterns. The Canadian dollar really looks good to foreign travellers. They're taking advantage of bargain prices."

Canadians were much slower to react to the decreased valued value of their dollar abroad by postponing or cancelling foreign travel plans. But there was evidence they finally decided late last year that overseas holidays were becoming too expensive.

Government officials privately acknowledge they see little chance of improving the travel deficit with the U.S., which reached $750 million last year. Almost three-quarters of the country's travel receipts are from the U.S. and two-thirds of its travel dollars are spent there.

"Let's face it," said a finance spokesman. "Canada doesn't have a Florida or a Hawaii."

Taylor Clarifies Mackasey Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada president Claude Taylor said Tuesday he met Bryce Mackasey last month to discuss the reduced role Mackasey will play when he becomes chairman of the airline's board on Feb. 1.

"To clear up any misunderstanding which may exist, Mr. Mackasey and I met prior to his appointment and we agreed on the separate but complementary roles we each would play in the new Air Canada organization," Taylor said in a written statement.

Management changes in the Crown-owned airline mean that Mackasey, a veteran Liberal politician, will act as chairman of the 15-member board and adviser to the president, but he will not carry out the added authority vested in out-going chairman Pierre Taschereau.

"Mr. Taschereau had assumed certain additional responsibilities because of his background on the Canadian transport commission and as a transportation lawyer," Taylor's statement said.

Taylor added that Air Canada might find Mackasey an extra role "suited to his unique background and talents . . . in particular, he will provide guidance to the company on its social and political responsibilities and purposes."

Airline spokesmen refused comment on a report that Taylor told Transport Minister Otto Lang he would quit unless changes were made in the chairman's function.

Taylor continues as chief executive officer and takes charge of legal affairs and the airline's subsidiary operations, jobs that until now were handled by Taschereau.

Curbs on U.S. TV Not Viewers' Wish

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians will oppose bitterly any further restrictions on their viewing of American television stations, says the Canadian Cable Television Association.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) now has a policy of allowing no more than four U.S. stations on regular cable channels — the three major networks and a public broadcasting service.

"We do not believe the objectives of the (Canadian) broadcasting system can be achieved by the restriction of viewing alternatives," the cable operators said in a brief to a committee established by Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve.

The committee is to make recommendations to the minister on the future of telecommunications in Canada.

The cable companies cited CBC figures showing that 74 per cent of the viewing hours of Canadian audiences are devoted to watching American programming, either on or off cable.

Luring Canadians into watching Canadian-made programs could be achieved in part by the introduction of pay television here, argued the association.

By 1983, up to $30 million annually could be pumped into the making of Canadian programs through revenues of pay television, it said.

More than 100 cable operators applied to the CRTC two years ago for licences to introduce pay television, offering 22 per cent of their gross revenues to Canadian programming.

They were rejected on grounds their applications were premature.

Rabbit Thief Must Hop It

EDMONTON (CP) — A Peruvian convicted of helping steal $48.09 worth of rabbit meat and other groceries from a local supermarket is to be deported Friday. His Canadian wife will remain here.

Pedro Tarazona, 29, originally from Lima, lost an appeal against a shoplifting conviction for a theft last summer.

He and a Canadian accomplice were both fined $50. Defence lawyer David Averback argued unsuccessfully that Tarazona's penalty was much greater because of the associated immigration problem.

Tarazona had been in Canada for one year on a visitor's visa. He will have to apply for immigrant status in Peru if he wants to rejoin his wife here.
